Brigade gets new CG

Veteran aviator

Brigadier General John R. Dailey, son of the Air Station's first commanding officer, will assume command of the 1st Marine Brigade at 3 p.m., today, on the flight line between hangars 101 and 102 here.

BGen. Dailey is taking over from Brigadier General O.K. Steele, who is being reassigned to Headquarters Marine Corps, and will assume duties as the Legislative Assistant to the Commandant of the Marine Corps.

The new CG's father, Colonel Frank G. Dailey, commanded the Air Station from the time it was turned over to the Marine Corps by the Navy and was recommissioned from January 1952 to August 1954.

Brigadier General Dailey has been the Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Aviation at Headquarters Marine Corps since May 24, 1982. He entered the Marine Corps in 1956 and was designated a Naval Aviator in 1958. He has flown the C-54, the C-119, the A-4 "Skyhawk," the F-8 "Cru-sader," the RF-4B, and the EA-6A.

He served in Vietnam in 1966 and, from 1972 to 1973, commanded a Navy task unit supporting combat operations in North Vietnam.

In 1968, BGen. Dailey served with the Air Force in the Aeronautical Systems Division at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, where he served as Joint Test Force Director for prototype reconnaissance systems.

He has also served as commanding officer of Marine Aircraft Group-11; Chief of Staff of the 3d Marine Aircraft Wing; and Head, Aviation Plans, Programs, Budget and Joint Doctrine Branch, HQMC.

BGen. Dailey is married to the former Mimi Rodian of Copenhagen, Denmark. They have a daughter, Lisa, and a son, Nils.

Aviation birthday, May 30

For Marine aviators, the sky's the limit

by SSgt. Greg Berry

Comparing an F/A-18 Hornet to the World War I biplane, Sopwith Camel, is a good way to measure how far Marine Corps aviation has progressed in 73 years.

The aviation community of the Corps' air/ground team celebrates its anniversary Wednesday, for it was in 1912 that First Lieutenant Alfred

A. Cunningham received orders to the fledgling aviation camp at Annapolis, Md.

He later went to Marblehead, Mass., where, on Aug. 1, 1912, he soloed in a Curtiss seaplane to become the first Marine pilot and the fifth naval aviator. He received only two hours and 40 minutes instruction before soloing.

Marine aviators led the way in the early days of America's involvement in World War I. The 1st Marine Aeronautic Company became the first American aviation unit of any service to be completely equipped, trained and sent overseas. The unit flew antisubmarine patrols from Ponta Delgada in the Azores.

The 1st Marine Aviation

Force was attached to the U.S. Naval Northern Bombing Group in France. During their distinguished service for the Allied cause, two of the flying Leather-necks earned this country's highest military decoration.

Five DH-4 and three DH-9 DeHavillands, dropped more than 2,000 pounds of explosive on a railway junction at Thielt, Belgium, during the first all-Marine air combat operation on Oct. 14, 1918. When the formation headed home, they were intercepted by eight Fokker and four Pfalz fighters.

One of the Marine aircraft, lost engine power and became separated from the main group. Second Lieutenant Ralph Talbot and his observer, Corporal Robert G. Robinson, were attacked by 12 enemy fighters and Robinson became severely wounded. For their actions that day they were awarded the Medal of Honor.

Heroic actions have been plentiful in the Corps, but the defense of Wake Island during the early days of World War II deserves special mention. All the Americans there, including the aviators of Marine Fighter Squadron (VMF)-211, fought gallantly.

Under the command of Major Paul Putnam, the crews and pilots of the 12 Grumman Wildcats stationed there helped stave off the Japanese takeover for 16 days.

During the first amphibious assault against the island, the Japanese lost nine ships and more than 5,000 men. The Marines suffered no casualties in that first assault, but did lose two aircraft.

There were only 27 officers and 422 enlisted Marines manning the defenses of Wake, along with five soldiers, a 68-man Navy detachment, 70 members of Pan American's staff, and 1,146 civilians.

Marine aviators became heroes to the American public during the Pacific campaigns. Exploits of their air-to-air struggle against the Japanese were highlighted in newspapers; and years later, Major Gregory R. "Pappy" Boyington, played by actor Robert Conrad, could be seen on television with his "Black Sheep Squadron."

The spirit of the Corps' aviators continued through both the Korean and Vietnam Wars. Their spirit still hasn't changed, even though the aircraft they fly have made tremendous advances in all aspects.

In the beginning, the bi-wing, two-seater DeHavillands comprised the mainstay for Marine pilots. Today, the Corps' aviators perform vertical takeoffs and landings, while some even reach for the stars aboard space shuttles.

Memorial Day: Remembering our veterans

"Today Americans everywhere pay our respects to those who gave their lives for freedom. We lay wreaths and flowers at their graves, fly the flag, and join together in ceremonies honoring their courage and heroism. For those who have lost loved ones in the defense of liberty, Memorial Day is a sad time; but our sorrow and heartache at their loss should be matched by a solemn pride in their bravery and devotion.

"Over two hundred years ago, General George Washington rallied his troops before the Battle of Long Island with the words, 'The time is now near at hand which must probably determine whether Americans are to be freemen or slaves... the fate of unborn millions will now depend, under God, on the conduct of this army... we have, therefore, to resolve to conquer or die.'

"Washington's gallant army and the millions of Americans in uniform who followed during the next two hundred years shared that resolve. Many have made the ultimate sacrifice. We owe them our thanks that we are free to voice our opinions, elect our leaders, and enjoy the fruits of our labor.

"On this special day for all Americans, I ask my fellow citizens to join me in honoring the living memory of the brave men and women who have laid down their lives in the cause of liberty."

Ronald Reagan
President

"Memorial Day brings memories — remembered names and faces, remembered stories — of those we honor today.

"In tribute not only to our valiant dead, but to all veterans, and all members of our Country's Armed Forces, I'd like to retell just one of those stories. It's a true story, recalled in poignant detail by a Marine veteran of World War II, a company commander on Okinawa 40 years ago.

"On Okinawa, Marines fought directly beside Army units as a major component of the Tenth Army under the overall command of Lieutenant General Simon Bolivar Buckner, USA. On June 18, 1945, a major tragedy struck the American forces. General Buckner was mortally wounded in an enemy bombardment. In a last valiant attempt to rise he stretched out his hand for someone to help him. Stunned by the gravity of his wounds, those around him hesitated.

"Then, a Marine PFC moved forward and instinctively grasped the dying officer's hand. Kneeling by him, speaking softly in the few moments that remained, he repeated over and over, 'You are going home, General...' In the raw emotion of those moments, there was another presence on that battlefield, a presence as real as the distant diminishing sounds of artillery. And there was a hope, kindled among those gathered that their dying commander could sense that presence and hear the words "... going home..."

"Upon General Buckner's death, Major General Roy S. Geiger, Commanding General of the III Amphibious Corps on Okinawa, assumed overall command of all U.S. Army and Marine Corps forces in Okinawa, the first Marine general to command a major Army unit in combat.

"As Marines, we are committed to serving our Country with honor — to keeping faith with every American serviceman who fought and wept, and died, on a distant battlefield. So, today, we remember an enlisted Marine who grasped an Army general's outstretched hand and let him know he did not face his last moments on earth alone. Semper Fidelis, Marines!"

Military spouses honored for unselfish contributions

by Sgt. Christopher Wood

They stand in the shadow of the nation's defenders. But America's military spouses will have their contributions in the spotlight tomorrow, as the nation observes "Military Spouse Day."

President Reagan, in making the proclamation, commended military spouses for their historical contributions. "Since the early days of the Continental Army," Reagan stated, "the wives of our servicemen have made unselfish contributions to the spirit and well-being of their fighting men and the general welfare of their communities."

Activities to recognize spouses are scheduled at military installations across Oahu. At Kaneohe Bay, spouses can receive a 25 percent discount on lunch meals at all clubs, with the presentation of an ID card. Marines and sailors here are encouraged to take their spouses to lunch.

Navy Exchanges at Pearl Harbor and Barbers Point will hold a one-day sale, with discounts of as much as 20 percent.

At Camp H.M. Smith, Lieutenant General C.G. Cooper, Commanding General FMFPac, will be the guest speaker at a 7:45 a.m. ceremony to honor military spouses. The Camp's Officer and Staff NCO clubs will also offer a lunchtime, two-for-one special for military couples.

President Reagan called for the day of recognition to thank spouses for years of sacrifice and service. "As volunteers, military spouses have provided exemplary service and leadership in educational, community, recreational, religious, social and cultural endeavors," Reagan said. "And as parents and homemakers, they preserve the cornerstone of our nation's strength—the American family."

Spouse Day

May 23

One such "cornerstone" is Carol Frizell, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Bill Frizell, commanding officer of SOMS. "I enjoy my life," said Carol, a military spouse for 18 years. "I like to travel, so I don't mind transfers. After three years in one place, I tend to get a little restless."

Carol is a volunteer with the Navy Relief Society, works with the Officers Wives' Club, and is involved with a tennis club at Kaneohe Bay.

"I'm involved in these things because I enjoy them," she said. "I think that, generally, military spouses give a lot to the community. Officers' wives and enlisted wives alike do a lot for charity and donate thousands of dollars to worthy causes."

But Carol cautions against categorizing military spouses. "Ann Landers recently printed several letters from military spouses," Carol remarked. "But I think it's very important that we don't categorize them. Each one is different and has her own interests. There's no typical military spouse."

One thing they do have in common is a constant apprehension for their spouses' safety. Carol sees a positive side to that ever-present fear. "It keeps you appreciative of each day," she said. "If something goes wrong in the world, you immediately wonder how it will affect you knowing that your husband would be one of the first involved in any conflict."

Carol sees little difference between officers and enlisted wives, except that the former might have fewer monetary concerns. "We all face similar problems," she said. "But we also make similar contributions."

One such enlisted wife is Astrid Rivera, wife of HM2 Albert Rivera of the Branch Medical Clinic. "I've been a military wife for four years, so I'm used to it," she commented. "But it takes awhile to adjust."

According to Astrid, one of the best things about being a military spouse is traveling from place to place. "I hate packing up and moving, but I love to see new places," she remarked. "You get to go places you'd never think of going."

Military spouses, Astrid said, give as much to the military as they get. "They contribute to their husbands in many ways," she commented. "They stand by him, which makes it that much easier for him to do well in his job."

Occasionally, a spouse makes it much easier for his wife to do well in her job, since not all military spouses are women. But whether man or woman, military spouses throughout the nation can take pride tomorrow as their contributions are in the spotlight.

Two local men give blood regularly so others can live

by Sgt. L.C. Brooks
The body performs miraculous deeds. Among them is the ability to replenish its blood supply on a regular basis.

This replenishment, which is 10 to 12 pints, allows blood donors, like Hajime Fujita and Henry Pundyke Jr., to contribute every two to three months . . . and each has donated approximately six times their own supply over the years.

Fujita, a utility foreman at Facilities Department here, has been donating blood since 1956. "I gave blood the first time because I heard on the radio that it was needed. I felt pretty good about being able to help others, so I continued. I'm healthy, so why not," said Fujita.

Fujita feels good after donating blood, not tired or weak like other donors, "I guess I'm just used to it," said Fujita. "I'd like to encourage others to give blood. I know some of them are afraid of needles. I used to be, but it's not as bad now," he said.

Pundyke, a plant and equipment supervisor at the Facilities Department here, has been giving blood only a short time when compared to Fujita. But in Pundyke's 12 years of giving the "gift of life," he's become as committed as his fellow donor.

"I've given a little more than 65 pints in 12 years," said Pundyke proudly. "It's an excellent way to do a community service without really getting involved or committing a lot of time," he said.

Pundyke does admit that this type of community service does have an effect on his body. "I always have to go home and take a nap after I give blood," he said.

Donors like Fujita and Pundyke are vital people to any blood bank operation.

Sgt. L.C. Brooks photo

Hiram Fujita (l) and Henry Pundyke, Facilities Department here, have been giving the "gift of life" for a total of approximately 40 years.

'This is absolutely the finest command for a brigadier general.'

BGen. O.K. Steele reflects on his tour

Story by SSgt. Bob Torres
Photos by
Cpl. Brenda Kusay

Brigadier General O. K. Steele will relinquish command of the 1st Marine Brigade to BGen. John R. Dailey today during ceremonies at the flight line starting at 3 p.m.

Brigadier General Steele first enlisted in the Marine Corps in September 1955 and graduated from recruit training in San Diego. He attended the 16th Officer Candidate Course at Quantico, VA., and was commissioned in June 1956.

The Oakland, Calif., native later returned to San Diego and served as a Series Commander in 1958, where he had first hand experience in the making of a Marine.

"Physically, I think our troops today are just as tough," said the general. "Moreover, they're just as dedicated as Marines were in 1958. Throughout, I think the recruit training process is a far better one now than it was then."

While still at San Diego, BGen. Steele, then a lieutenant, was selected as the aide-de-camp to Brigadier General R.G. Weede, who became the commanding general of the 1st Marine Brigade. Lieutenant Steele accompanied BGen. Weede to Kaneohe Bay.

"I remained as the aide-de-camp for six months before I requested reassignment to the regiment," recalls the general. "I spent one year as the executive officer of the Recon Co., followed by 14 months as a rifle company commander. Never in my wildest dreams did I ever think that I'd come back here as the commanding general."

"When I took the battle standard from BGen. J. W. Moore, it was a very humbling experience," he continued. "Humbling in that when I was a lieutenant, I recall being overawed by all the fine senior commanders who were serving at the time. Down in the pit of my stomach I questioned whether I could ever measure up."

Although he knew that the position as a commanding general would be challenging, he tried not to make radical changes when he took over.

'When I brief BGen. Dailey, I'll let him know what a lucky person he is. The officers, SNCOs and troops (here) are the finest.'

"I would say that there were no significant changes from what BGen. Moore left because the Brigade was in great shape," said BGen. Steele. "However the Brigade was in the process of changing missions. We were transitioning from providing the 31st Marine Amphibious Unit, where forces are afloat, to supporting air deployments."

"With the 31st MAU, we would spend five and a half months deployed, be back for seven and a half months, and then go out again. The time spent here was just as intensive as the training they were getting in the Western Pacific."

'Nobody wants to fight, but if you're going to, it's good to know that you're going in with a good outfit.'

"Going to the Unit Deployment mission has caused major changes. Now we are out for six months and back for a year. Consequently, we had to sit down and look into the future to see how this was going to impact on the conduct of training in the Brigade."

And as the mission of the Brigade changed, so did the training.

"The mission has changed, and I think it's for the good," said the general. "I know the ground, air and BSSG commanders see it the same way. First of all, it's going to strengthen the battalions and squadrons. They're going to be better prepared because they're going to spend more time on fundamentals."

"Additionally we can do more things to train as a Brigade. The regiment, for example, will have all its artillery back here with two of its infantry battalions. The same applies to MAG-24 and the BSSG. What I contend is that we'll learn to fight better as a Brigade."

Training areas, and the actual opportunity to work as an air/ground team, play an important part in preparing for the Brigade's mission, which can affect its state of readiness.

"I believe in good fighting trim and heading in the right direction," said the general; "particularly with respect to air/ground training. I am a firm believer that any Marine organization that's going to go out and fight, is going out as a Marine Air-Ground Task Force. And I feel that we're blessed here because we're able to train that way daily."

"On the minus side, although we've had more than our share of amphibious operations, eventually, we will begin to lose that edge that we had. The fact that someone else is taking over that responsibility will reduce our amphibious experience. Therefore, we're going to have to come up with some form of simulation through courses and other concepts, rather than the practical side, so we can retain an acceptable state of readiness."

"Puhakaloa Training Area is an example where we used a minimum of forces for training," continued the general. "We set up artillery for fire support and we were able to use KC-130s to fuel our aircraft, enabling them to provide close air support. We were able to set up fire support coordination, and set up a regiment and compliment it with other elements of the Brigade."

During his tenure, BGen. Steele feels there are still goals for the Brigade that need work.

"I don't think that anyone can ever leave a command and feel that he didn't leave something unaccomplished," he said.

"There's been some things — like training areas in Hawaii where we have made headway, but there is still much to be done. We could open up more ranges or Kahoolawe so that company commanders could work out different problems of fire and maneuver, using organic and attached weapons. Kahoolawe is just perfect for that."

"At PTA it's super training for working out combined arms problems. It's also good for the helicopters as high-altitude flying. They're up there at 6,200 feet and the aircraft handles differently; it's good experience."

Along with all the complexities, the Brigade has the reputation of being a first class fighting unit.

"This is absolutely the finest command for a brigadier general," said BGen. Steele. "It's always been that way, and I hope it always will be. It's certainly tremendous experience for us to come back here and see that the Brigade is just as fine a place to serve as it was 25 years ago."

"When this Brigade went into Vietnam, people said that the troops swaggered in, because the felt good about themselves. Nobody wants to fight, but if you're going to, it's good to know that you're going in with a good outfit."

Part of that preparedness comes not only with field application and training, but also from classroom work.

"I've always felt, wherever I go, the professional military education of our Noncommissioned officers has got to improve," related the general. "We expect them to be professional NCOs by some form of osmosis or some invisible process. There has to be a time in the life of NCOs when we can send them to school."

"And that's the philosophy behind the Brigade schools and NCO Academy. The whole thing is a continuing process where we take Marines out of the busy part of the day, whether it's leading a squad, or turning a wrench to repair an aircraft, and let them sit down and reflect on what the Marine Corps is all about. What it means to be an NCO, what their responsibilities are, and what responsibilities to them are — that was the reasoning behind reactivating the schools," he said.

In the past two years, the MAU deployments have gone from, and returned, to Hawaii several times. Marines and sailors returning to their families and friends have a special place in the general's memory.

"To be able to see the troops come back from deployment has been one of my highlights," said the general. "In every instance, they've been able to come back with their heads held high; they've done well and it shows. To see the wives welcoming their husbands is also a highlight."

"Other highlights have been seeing the troops in the field when they've completed quality training. The troops know it's good and they've learned something; or someone graduating from Small Unit Leaders School or NCO School. When they graduate, they stand a little bit taller; they know they've achieved something. And to me, that's a source of pride, to watch them grow."

"When I brief BGen. Dailey, I'll let him know what a lucky person he is," continued BGen. Steele. "The officers, SNCOs and troops are among the finest. You know, being the best doesn't happen by accident. I'm sure that BGen. Dailey will have a sense of history here. He's been to Kaneohe before, his father was the first commanding officer for the Air Station and he visited here when he was a student at UCLA."

The general then went on to speak about how he perceived the community.

"I feel that the community here has been very involved with the Brigade and the Marine Corps Air Station. I would credit Colonel C. D. Robinson for that attitude. He's certainly been the person who has done much to promote that relationship.

"I think it's important for a commander to find out about the surrounding community and what their attitudes are. For example, during Kernel Blitz, when we hiked down from the Kahuku training area, people came out of their homes and would bring us water; kids would wave, the tourists greeted us from buses. I don't think there was an adverse remark the entire day. People would clap their hands as we went by and it was all very genuine. There really is an Aloha spirit here, especially among the various senior citizen groups."

Brigadier General Steele's next assignment will be as the Commandant's legislative assistant. When asked what the assignment will entail, the general replied, "Ask me that in about a month."

"I'll be tasked with keeping the leadership of the Marine Corps aware of what the members of Congress are thinking, and also keeping members of Congress informed as to what issues are important to the Marine Corps. That's the way I see things now. I may have a different perception after I've been there for awhile."

"I don't know if I'll be coming back here again," concluded the general, with a wisp of sadness, after reflecting on his tour here. "However, being married to an island girl — my wife is from Honolulu — there's a chance of coming here some day. Possibly to retire; I don't know."

With the end of BGen. Steele's tour at the 1st Marine Brigade, another chapter of history ends, and BGen. Dailey's tour begins.

High school grads enlisting in numbers

by SgtMaj.

Rudi Williams, USA

American Forces Information Service
Military recruiters enlisted a bumper crop of new recruits in FY-84; 93 percent of them with high school diplomas.

That same percentage, not necessarily the graduates, scored average or above on the Armed Forces Qualification Test, said Lawrence Korb, assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower, Installations, and Logistics.

"We are confident that we can continue to satisfy our personnel requirements with volunteers," Korb said. "However, the sustained economic recovery, decline in the military-age youth population, and widening comparability gap between military and civilian wages pose difficult recruiting challenges."

High school graduates have a substantially lower first-term attrition rate than non-graduates, according to Korb. "In the Army, about 75 percent of high school graduates complete their first term of enlistment. This compares to only about 50 percent of nongraduates."

The services use the high school diploma as a "dividing line" of quality, but a diploma indicates only that the student has finished a required course of study and passed all the necessary tests. It does not indicate the extent to which a person can learn a particular subject.

Defense Department statistics show that lower-aptitude personnel are harder to train than those who make high test scores — even in low and moderate skills jobs. An important reason is low reading abilities, frequently at the 5th and 7th grade levels.

A DoD survey found that almost 90 percent of more than 1.8 million enlisted members on active duty are high school graduates, compared to 74 percent in 1973.

Two percent have four-year college degrees, and 14, percent have between one and four years of college credit.

"The ultimate criterion of quality, however, is demonstrated performance, which is the only real index of the quality of the career force," Korb said.

Recruiting quality service members helps eliminate the "stigma" that military service is an employer of "last resort" for those who have no other opportunities, he concluded.

Washington Reservists 'mend' the Station

Sixty Marines from Wing Engineer Squadron 47, Detachment B, and 4th Force Service Support Group, Detachment G, Naval Air Station Whidbey, Island, Wash., completed two weeks of annual training duty here.

The reserve Marines worked on several construction projects, ranging from the golf course to the grenade range. "We've had everyone working in their Military Occupational Specialty; it's excellent training for them here," said Major Rogers M. Steed, WES-47 commanding officer.

Six Marines spent a lot of time on the golf course, their job was to provide more safety between the 11th and 12th greens by constructing two fences to stop "incoming" balls.

The WES-47 heavy equipment and motor transport section hauled and moved earth in order to alleviate a safety hazard on the hand grenade range. The work allowed the range to open for the first time in several months when live ordnance was found and made its closure necessary.

One day after the project was finished, some 60 grenades "broke it in." For most WES-47 and 4th FSSG Marines, the half-day spent preparing for and throwing grenades was a refresher familiarization; for five women Marines it was the first trip to a grenade range. Captain Charles J. Dyer, range safety officer, gave the Marines a safety lecture, including procedures to follow in case of a mishap in the pits before practice grenades were thrown.

Protected by flack jackets and helmets, and with a corpsman, ambulance and explosive ordnance disposal technician standing by, each reservist took their turn throwing a live fragmentation grenade. One Marine, throwing her first grenade, said, "We were very well supervised, so I felt confident. I'd do it again if we could — next time I want a bull's eye!" she exclaimed.

Fourth FSSG Marines also received on-the-job training performing maintenance on more than 150 pieces of equipment from the last deployment. They worked on the equipment with Marines from Brigade Service Support Group and Marine Aircraft Group-24.

WES-47's Tactical Air Fuel Dispensing System crew received training on Tactical Air Fuel Dispensing System fuel quality, system set-up and actual fueling of fixed-wing and rotary aircraft. "The team integrated and worked hand-in-hand with the MAG-24 crews here and at Barbers Point," said Gunnery Sergeant Carl Massengale, noncommissioned officer in charge of the TAFDS crew.

Part of the TAFDS training included half a day of firefighting at West Field. The nine-man, one woman crew donned aluminum reflective suits, knee high boots and protective helmets before starting an oil fire in pits specially made for practice fires.

Teams of two to three Marines used twin agent firefighting units, containing a smothering agent and a flame retardant, to extinguish the fire. "It was a good opportunity for training," said Chief Warrant Officer-4 Robert Gordon, officer in charge, TAFDS.

"It's not their main responsibility," said Gordon, "but they are trained in firefighting, so that in the event of a fire during fueling, it could be contained until a crash crew arrived." Combat engineers working at Naval Base Pearl Harbor completed construction of a much needed warehouse loading ramp. "Surveying, metal working, cement pouring and carpentry skills have been put to work," said Captain Michael A. Merrill, officer in charge of Combat Engineers.

Housing funds sought; 10 billion for FY86

by Sgt. Maj. Rudi Williams, USA

Defense Department officials are asking Congress to appropriate some $10 billion for fiscal 1986 military construction programs to improve working and living conditions for military people and their families around the world.

"If we fail to share our people's concern for their families, then our military people will most assuredly leave the armed forces," said a senior DoD spokesman. "I am convinced that providing good facilities is the most effective way to ensure good performance."

"Our military families don't have nearly the housing or community facilities they require in many places overseas or in some places within the United States," said the spokesman.

The fiscal 1986 family housing budget request totals $3.3 billion to operate, maintain, repair or upgrade more than 400,000 family housing units, and to build more than 5,200 new units and more than 300 mobile home spaces.

Families also will benefit from the $324 million associated with this year's medical facility program, $117 for schools, $54 million for child care centers and other facilities.

Defense officials want to spend more than $800 million to build or upgrade more than 43,000 bachelor housing spaces; $329 million on hospital and medical facilities; and $429 million on Reserve and National Guard facilities.

Defense officials want to build 1,454 family housing units in Germany, 400 in Belgium, 140 in The Netherlands, and 750 in the Philippines.

"When we take care of our people, they take care of the defense mission," the spokesman said.

"We transformed an asphalt parking lot into a loading ramp area for base facilities. We spent long hours at the site, but the Camp H.M. Smith dining facility supported us faithfully with great chow throughout the job," he said.

The administration section had plenty to keep them working, as usual. "Regular ATD admin duties start the moment the troops land, with an arrival message to be sent out," said Staff Sergeant Ann Rowland, admin chief. "Duty rosters; service record book audits and entries; ATD fitness reports and proficiency/conduct entries; and mail clerk responsibilities and correspondence are just a few of the long list of admin duties needing attention."

Perhaps a successful ATD

at Kaneohe Bay has a part in helping two Marine reservists decide to reenlist. On March 15, Sergeant Marie H. Arrick reenlisted for six years and was promoted to her present rank. Sgt. Leo V. Gustafson also reenlisted for one year.

Swim qualification was another event during the Hawaiian ATD. While some Marines swam for the first time, others became "water survival qualified." Everyone, however, swam in the station pool on a sunny May day, complete with camouflage utilities.

While working at Kaneohe Bay, many of the Marines from NAS Whidbey Island, had a unique opportunity to ride in a CH-46 helicopter. It was the first such experience for many of the troops. Marine Medium helicopter squadron-165, the "White Knights," had Marine reservists on board during late afternoon operations. Before boarding, passengers received a safety lecture from the aircraft's crewchief, and were given life jackets and ear protection to wear during the flight.

According to First Lieutenant Michael Anderson, CH-46 pilot, the 'joyrides' were actually pilot training operations. As passengers got a bird's eye view of the station and the coastline, pilots practiced external load training operations; instrument approaches; and tactical turns and gail light system landings.

The Marines from WES-47 and 4th FSSG have contributed much to the Kaneohe Bay construction projects, but they also took advantage of the activities the island offers. Snorkeling, swimming and sunbathing are not activities that often lend themselves to Washington State.

"Incredible," "paradise," and "great" are just a few comments the reservists used to describe recreation time. "The people are the best. They're so friendly!" said Sergeant Marie Arrick, one of five women Marines on ATD here.

The Marines from WES-47, Det B, and 4th FSSG, Det G, left Saturday, taking with them many memories of beautiful Oahu, a "job well done" and thanks from the people here for making Kaneohe Bay a better place.

Income tax season is over for most of you; however, income tax planning is a continuous process if you are a homeowner.

This is especially true if you are a service member who has sold or traded your home in recent years, or if you plan to do so in the future.

Tax on the profit from the sale or trade may be delayed if you buy another home within the required replacement period. You must be aware of special rules in federal tax law that must be met in order to delay the tax on the gain.

Generally, if you sold your principal home after July 20, 1981, you are allowed 48 months to replace it and occupy a new home. In other words, if you buy or build another home and occupy it within two years before, and two years after, you sold your old home, you may be able to delay paying tax on the profit you made from the sale of the old home.

The new home must cost as much, or more than the old one. You must hold title and actually live in the new home within the four-year period. It is not enough to simply place furniture or personal items in the new home.

No extra time is allowed to replace the old home even if your delay in occupying the new one is for reasons beyond your control, such as a requirement to live in government housing.

The replacement period is suspended for a service member who serves on extended active duty for an indefinite period, or for more than 90 days. The active service must start before the end of the replacement period. The suspension for a military member generally cannot last longer than four years after the sale of the old home.

Special suspension rules now apply to a service member who is stationed overseas, or who must live in remote government quarters after returning from an overseas assignment. If you sell your home after July 18, 1984, the replacement period, plus any period of suspension, cannot be longer than eight years after you sell your old home.

You must report the sale in the year you sold your old home on Form 2119, Sale or Exchange of Principal Residence. Even if you do not plan to buy or build a new home, you must report the sale of the old one.

You may have to amend your tax return if your new home costs less than the old one. You should also file an amended tax return if you previously paid tax on the gain from the sale of your old home, then bought, or built, and lived in a new home within the replacement period.

It is very important to maintain detailed records on the selling price of your old home; the amount of commissions and other expenses of the sale; moving expenses; and the cost of any expenses for repairs.

You should also maintain good records on the costs of your replacement home, to include the cost of building a new home; the cost of rebuilding; the cost of certain improvements or additions; debts on the new home which you assume; the cost of temporary housing while your new home is being built; and settlement fees and closing costs.

There are other special rules that may affect the reporting of the profit on the sale or exchange of your home. Also, special requirements must be met if you are 55 years old or and choose to exclude the profit on the sale of your home.

You should consult your tax adviser or legal assistance attorney for complete information about these rules.

Survivor benefits

Identifying ways to increase participation in the Survivor Benefit Plan is the aim of a review now under way in the Department of Defense.

Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower, Lawrence J. Korb, is seeking a 75 percent participation rate among retiring service members. The current rate is estimated at 55 percent, and includes 45 percent of retiring enlisted personnel and 74 percent of retiring officers.

The SBP provides for the payment of a portion of retired pay to the survivors of retired service members. The principal beneficiary is usually the member's spouse, who may receive 55 percent of the service member's gross retired pay or 55 percent of a lesser "base" amount of $300 or more per month.

The monthly cost to the service member, which is withheld from retired pay, is $7.50 for the first $300 of retired pay and 10 percent of the amount in excess of $300. Amounts withheld from participating member's pay are not subject to federal income tax.

Among major areas covered by the review effort are the cost of participation, government subsidy rates, the impact of Social Security offsets, and the status of widows whose retired military spouses died before the program was implemented in September 1972.

The MCAS Kaneohe Bay beach cottages can provide the setting for a nice, inexpensive mini-vacation.

Vacationing on Station

Story and photos by
SSgt. Dave Smith

The travel brochures read like a dream: Your new duty station will be situated on an island paradise, with the sound of the ocean gently lulling you to sleep every night.

But it didn't take long after settling in to your new home to realize you'd been somewhat disillusioned. The island is beautiful but barracks' rooms were not on the beach and one of the nighttime lullabies was the sound of Phantoms taking off.

But if you are looking for an inexpensive place to get away for the weekend, let the beach cottages at Kaneohe Bay fill the bill.

Situated on, or near the beachfront, overlooking the ocean and Kaneohe Bay, the cottages have all the essentials, and were recently renovated with new flooring and furniture. A television, refrigerator, stove, cooking utensils and linens are also included in the unit.

Advance reservations for the cottages, which cost $18 a day, are split into several categories. They are:

60 days in advance — active duty personnel aboard MCAS Kaneohe Bay.

45 days in advance — active duty Marines and Navy personnel serving with Marines on the island of Oahu.

30 days in advance — active duty Marines from commands off Oahu.

15 days in advance — retired Marines, active duty or retired personnel of other branches of the service, and other authorized personnel.

"Our reservation policy obviously caters to Station personnel," said Bob Porter, manager of the Temporary Lodging Facility here. Porter was one of the key figures in the conception and construction of the 14 cottages here, which began while he was the Station Sergeant Major.

"The CO liked the job I was doing on the beach cottages, and when I retired in January 1973, he gave me a shot at the manager's job," said Porter. "I've been here ever since."

The cottages are only rented for a seven-day maximum, and the way to ensure you get the reservation is to be at the TLF early.

"I came to work one morning and here was this Marine sitting on the sidewalk, making coffee on a campstove," chuckled Porter.

"He said he'd been there since 5:30 that morning so, needless to say, he got his cottage reserved."

While being at the TLF when the doors open is the surest way to get your reservation, a phone call can serve as an alternate method. "But you can bet we take care of those waiting outside first," added Porter. Within two days of making the reservation, a deposit of one day's rent must be made.

Weekend reservations must be made for a full weekend, with check-in no later than 10 p.m., Friday, and check-out by 10 a.m., the following Monday. A waiting list also exists to fill those cottages which have a cancelled reservation.

"It seems that many Marines here, particularly the single personnel, think they have to be married to reserve the cottages," said Porter. "While most of those who do rent them are married, it is not a requirement. We provide the cottages as an inexpensive way to enjoy the beauty of Hawaii," he said.

So if you're tired of hanging around the barracks, your apartment, or wherever, a tour on Oahu would not be complete without spending a week on the beach. The Kaneohe Bay beach cottages can provide the setting for an enjoyable, as well as inexpensive, vacation.

For more information call 257-2808/3513.

Hostess House caters to military families

The Temporary Lodging Facility gives priority to lodging families checking in or out to quarters.

MCRD, Parris Island, S.C. — Following a Corps-wide trend that emphasizes the importance of the military family, the management of the Depot Temporary Lodging Facility has family comfort as one of their main concerns.

"We're family oriented," says manager Jerry Cable. "The place was built so families wouldn't have to worry about having a place to stay."

Marines, sailors and their families who are reporting in and awaiting housing, or vacating housing, use the facility, as well as guests of permanent personnel, active duty visitors and their families, reserve and retired Marines.

More commonly known as the Hostess House, the current facility has been open nearly three years and has housed more than 64,000 guests in that time. It has 30 rooms with private baths, televisions and heat pumps. Ten of these also have kitchens and are available on a first-come, first-served basis. A laundry room on the first floor has washers, dryers and an ironing board.

For Marines or sailors on PCS orders to Parris Island Cable suggests they make reservations a month or more in advance as the Hostess House normally operates at near-capacity. Civilian and retired military guests can not call for reservations, but can get lodging on a first-come, first-served basis for four days.

Guests must register and pay for their first night's lodging upon arrival. The duty clerk may ask for a spouse's ID card as proof of marriage before allowing a couple to rent a room. No pets are allowed in the rooms and checkout time is 11 a.m.

A manager or a desk clerk is on duty 24 hours a day for the convenience and safety of guests. Questions or suggestions concerning a stay at the Hostess House are always welcomed.

"If you want to make reservations at another military base, stop by and I can give you information on what's available," said Cable.

For more information, call Jerry Cable at (autovon) 832-2976/3460 or (803) 525-2976/3460.

Safety goggles a must in court

by Sgt. L.C. Brooks

Racquetball is one of the fastest, most intense court sports; and as such, the ball has a high potential of causing serious eye damage.

It has long been recommended that players of the sport wear safety goggles to protect their eyes. To enforce this recommendation, Headquarters Marine Corps recently made it mandatory that goggles be worn while playing racquetball or handball at Marine Corps installations.

All players, including dependents and retirees, are required to wear goggles in the court area at all times. This rule applies to unorganized, as well as, competitive matches.

In addition, all military personnel participating in Marine Corps sponsored tournaments are required to wear goggles.

"Players at this gym, like at most military installations, have always been required to wear goggles," said Master Sergeant Gary Hill, NCOIC of the Station Gym.

The only exception is people who wear glasses, according to Hill. "Their glasses provide protection and are needed by the players to play the game," he said. But prescription safety goggles are available and can be ordered through sports magazines.

The goggles protect a player's eyes not only from the ball but also from the opposing player's racquet. "I remember getting cut twice above the eye by my opponent's racquet," related Hill. "If I'd had on goggles it wouldn't have happened."

Twenty pairs of goggles are available for issue at the gym here. With three courts and a maximum of four players per court, there is no shortage of eye protection for handball and racquetball players aboard the Air Station. The goggles are also available for purchase at the exchange.

MCAS Beaufort, S.C. — Gunnery Sergeant Steven Bernard, MCDEC Quantico, Va., won the All-Marine Racquetball Men's Open division, May 2, by defeating Major David Bartlett, Camp Pendleton, in a match that ended in a tiebreaker.

Staff Sergeant Angel Sandoval, Twenty-nine Palms, Calif., ousted Master Sergeant Rickey Inniger, HQMC, to win the Men's Seniors (over 35) division; Lance Corporal Skielnik, Kaneohe Bay, beat First Lieutenant Loralee Tangen, also from Kaneohe Bay, to take the Women's division.

In Open play, Bernard and Bartlett fought hard in the championship game. Bernard took the first game 15-11, lost the second game 13-15, but was able to come back in the tiebreaker, played to 11, to outscore Bartlett by 8.

Sandoval defeated Inniger, 1984's Senior Singles and Doubles champion, two straight games. Sandoval breezed past Inniger in the first game, 15-3, who fought hard in the second game but an injury halted his assault making him settle for a 15-14 loss.

The battle for the Women's division by the two Hawaii Marines was decisively won by Skielnik when she defeated Tangen, 15-5, in the first game and 15-11 in the second.

In Men's Open Doubles competition, Bernard and Staff Sergeant James Jenkins, MCAS Beaufort, teamed up to defeat Gunnery Sergeant B. J. Farrington, MCAS Cherry Point, and Staff Sergeant John McCall, MCAS Iwakuni. Bernard and Jenkins won the first game, 15-9; lost the second, 10-15; and returned in the tiebreaker to oust their opponents, 11-2.

Seniors Doubles was won by Sandoval and Captain David Jacobus, Twenty-nine Palms, after a team consisting of Inniger and See RACQUETBALL/B-3

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want,
Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss! Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers
Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse, Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

Hawaii State Ballet
Hawaii State Ballet is under the direction of John Landovsky, former director of Duluth Ballet, Bartlesville Civic Ballet and Ballet Hawaii. Landovsky was assistant professor of ballet at the University of Illinois, University of Kansas and Goucher College in Maryland. He also served on the faculty at Interlochen, Mich. and the National Academy of Arts. Landovsky has created a curriculum based on the methods of Vaganova, Cecchetti and Bournonville, to provide his students with the best possible training in classical ballet. This program begins with Preballet students ages 4-6, and follows a continual development to the advanced, student with good performance quality and a clean, proper approach to ballet technique. The student's individual development is watched closely and an evaluation of each student will be given at a scheduled interview. The school also offers beginning classes for adults who wish to keep in shape and learn more about the art of classical ballet. Students may enroll for classes at any time. Hawaii State Ballet is located at 436 Atkinson Dr. For more information, please call 947-2755 or stop by the studio any weekday after 3 p.m.

Sakuma's Ukulele Studios
Roy Sakuma began playing the ukulele more than 20 years ago and has since developed a unique and creative style of teaching the instrument. He is founder and director of the Annual Ukulele Festival, which features a children's ukulele band of over 200 and many of Hawaii's top entertainers. Sakuma has been teaching for the past 20 years and with a staff of 24 instructors, develops children as young as 3 and adults of all ages. Both private and group lessons are available. His protege, Sheri-Lyn Cabbab, 10, is the youngest ukulele virtuoso in Hawaii. She and Roy just returned from Japan, where they were invited to perform on an special called "Super Kids of the World."

Trinity Lutheran School
Trinity offers several different streams and students may register for all or part of any program, subject to certain limitations. Students needing to improve basic skills can register for Language Arts, a class designed to help reading and language development. Catch-up Math will offer similar review and reinforcement of basic skills. Both classes offer individualized programs for students at various levels of growth. Science in Hawaii is an enrichment class that will help students to see our island world from a scientific view. Four field trips will be included in the tuition for this class.

PARENTS: Help Your Child to BETTER SCHOOL SUCCESS - Now!
Learn how a summer reading and study skills program can give your child new success in school. Reading Progress Summer Study Programs for grades 2-12 will teach your son or daughter the basics of how to read and study with the most modern methods available in Hawaii.
FREE COMPUTER TESTING
Your child is given a computer-scored, diagnostic reading test before enrollment. The computer printout will tell you, and will show us, the exact reading skills your child knows, and the skills he needs to learn. After he is tested, you have a conference with his Reading Progress Counselor. You receive the test results in clear, plain talk - no holding back. If we feel we can help, your child is put in the proper class for complete attention to his individual needs. You will be very pleased by the results. Ask your neighbor, perhaps her youngster is one of the more than two thousand children we have taught in Hawaii private schools.
TWO PROGRAMS: BASIC READING & SPEEDREADING
Our READWRITE Speedreading course is offered at many of the best private schools on Oahu, and is open to qualified students, grades 7-12. Our READING PROGRESS PROGRAMS will give your child grades 2-8, the ability to read at full capacity, and give you the best insurance for his success in school next fall. The reading and study habits your child is developing during these crucial school years will either help or hinder him the rest of his life.
