HH-60 Jayhawk | Rescue efforts

Coast Guard Petty Officer 2nd Class Shawn Beatty, 29, of Long Island, N.Y., looks for survivors in the wake of Hurricane Katrina. Beatty is a member of an HH-60 Jayhawk helicopter rescue crew sent from Clearwater, Fla., to assist in search and rescue efforts.

PPV leases must be signed by Oct. 1

STAFF SGT. MICHAEL T. MINK
Marine Corps Base

The new military family housing privatization project for Marine Corps Base Camp Lejeune is scheduled to begin operations Oct. 1. This Public Private Venture was formed by the partnership between the Department of the Navy and Actus Land Lease, a private Real Estate Development company. The partnership is titled Atlantic Marine Corps Communities Limited Liability Company.

Military members residing in privatized neighborhoods must sign a lease as soon as possible, but no later than Oct. 1. Phase I includes all of: Berkeley Manor, Courthouse Bay, Hospital Point, New River, and portions of Paradise Point (excluding "Crackerbox" and "Capecod" style homes), Tarawa Terrace I, Tarawa Terrace II and Watkins Village (excluding new units).

AMCC has held a series of Townhall Meetings to facilitate the lease signing.

Marines head south to provide humanitarian aid

SGT. TRACEE L. JACKSON
24th Marine Expeditionary Unit

NEW ORLEANS — Approximately 110 Marines from the 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit Command Element arrived Sept. 3 to set up a command and control center and support group to aid Joint Task Force Katrina.

These Marines now comprise the Special Purpose Marine Air/Ground Task Force Katrina, which is based at Naval Air Station Belle Chasse, La., 10 miles southeast of New Orleans.

While the city sits in ruins in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, the MEU is taking slow, deliberate steps to make way for larger forces on the way with large-scale assistance for thousands of victims of the storm.

The members of the new SPMAGTF had minimal notice before packing up and shipping out, said Petty Officer 3rd Class Marlene Cox, a corpsman with the command element.

"Right now, the big effort is getting food, water and the basic necessities of life to individuals. Security plays a role in that, because we have to protect the assets that are used to conduct humanitarian assistance. Of course, we also have to protect our Marines and make sure they're safe as well," said Maj. Devin C. Young, staff judge advocate of the 24th MEU.

"We started planning this on Thursday, and the command element came in Saturday. We were up and operational in less than 6 hours," he added.

"What we're involved in here is military support to civil authority," he continued, "that gives the president the authority to order federal forces to aid civilian agencies for disaster relief and humanitarian aid."

Staff Sgt. Miguel Rivera is the platoon sergeant and frequency manager for communications within the command element. He noted that although this is not a traditional war operation commonly associated with the Corps, it's not an unfamiliar call to duty.

Rivera also noted communications are one of the most critical assets to the command element, and the establishment of solid, reliable contact is a major step at this stage in the game.

As the command element proceeds to build, wire and host out a headquarters for humanitarian assistance, the service members build a strong sense of purpose.

"This is a great effort and I'm glad I got the chance to come out here and help. I didn't want to stay back and do nothing when there are people in a crisis and they need help," said Cox.

"We're coming in here because American citizens need us to come in and help them out. We, as the military, have the assets to do that, the president has decided to use that, so here we are. We're going to help this region out to overcome this major natural disaster," added Young.

Given the size and scope of relief efforts here, the Marines are ready for any mission they may be asked to complete.

"There was really no expectation, we just have to keep adapting. That's what Marines do," said Rivera.

Pentagon to hold 9/11 memorial tour, walk

STEVEN DONALD SMITH
American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department will open the site of the planned Pentagon Memorial and the existing America's Heroes Memorial to the public for the first time Sept. 10, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Military honor guard tour guides will lead tours and answer questions during this four-hour period, and a model of the future Pentagon Memorial will be on display, according to a DoD press release.

The outdoor Pentagon Memorial is currently being developed at the southwest corner of the Pentagon Reservation. The memorial will feature 184 illuminated benches, arranged according to the victim's age, from three to 71.

The America's Heroes Memorial is housed inside the Pentagon, near the site where American Airlines Flight 77 crashed into the building. It contains large black acrylic panels etched with the names of those killed, as well as a book filled with photographs and biographies of each of the victims.

According to a DoD press release, tours of the memorial site will be provided on a first-come, first-served basis. Visitors wishing to take part in the tour can call (703) 697-1776 for more information.

The tours will be available one day before the Defense Department's first

"Will include many of the major monuments in Washington, D.C., reminding participants of the sacrifices of this generation and of each previous generation that have so successfully defended our freedoms."

— Donald Rumsfeld

"America Supports You Freedom Walk." The walk will allow citizens the opportunity to remember the victims of Sept. 11, honor American servicemembers, past and present, and commemorate freedom, according to the Freedom Walk Web site.

America Supports You is a nationwide program launched by the Defense Department to encourage citizens' support for American military men and women and communities that support to members of the armed forces at home and abroad.

The walk will begin at 10 a.m. Sept. 11 in the Pentagon South Parking lot, near the site where the airliner crashed into the building. The walk route will consist of a two-mile journey by Arlington National Cemetery, over the Potomac River, and will end by the reflecting pool on the National Mall, where a live musical tribute featuring country music star Clint Black will take place.

The walk "will include many of the major monuments in Washington, D.C., reminding participants of the sacrifices of this generation and of each previous generation that have so successfully defended our freedoms," Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld said in announcing the event Aug. 8.

Those wishing to participate in the Freedom Walk can register online by visiting www.americasupportsyou.com and clicking on the Freedom Walk icon. Information on volunteer opportunities at the event also is available online.

Marines remain up to task of rebuilding Iraq

Lance Cpl. Zachary Lester
2d Marine Division

Corporal Morgan J. Hendrickson, driver/civil affairs assistant, 5th Civil Affairs Group, 2d Light Armored Reconnaissance Battalion, Regimental Combat Team-2, and the other members of CAG, work on supplying some of the towns in Western Iraq with water, building hospitals, improving schools and helping to rebuild other vital parts of the cities.

LANCE CPL. ZACHARY LESTER
2d Marine Division

CAMP KOREAN VILLAGE, Iraq — Rebuilding Iraq is a long, difficult process, but there are Marines up to the task of helping the country and its people get back on their feet.

Corporal Morgan J. Hendrickson, driver/civil affairs assistant, 5th Civil Affairs Group in support of 2d Light Armored Reconnaissance Battalion, is one of those Marines.

Hendrickson's primary job is driving the civil affairs team leader and his fellow CAG members on operations in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom. He does more than just drive though. The Fairfax, Va. native, and the other members of CAG, are currently working to re-establish water supplies and rebuild or improve hospitals and schools as well as other vital infrastructures of the towns in Western Iraq.

"I help set up meetings with the local town leaders," Hendrickson explained. "We try to figure out what their towns need most and then help them prioritize their needs."

The 29-year-old Marine finds it rewarding to help the people during a tumultuous time country. "We would definitely out here again. The deployment has been great," he stated.

The nature of his deployment specifically the short time doesn't allow Hendrickson to see the final product of the civil affairs projects he assists in.

"It is hard to complete something in the time that we are here, seeing projects get completed the people before us started."

"It is hard because our project on such a grand scale."

PURCHASE THE BEST VALUE PREPAID CARD AT YOUR MILITARY EXCHANGE

AT&T Global PrePaid Cards offer low rates that are optimized for military personnel calling home to the U.S.

The 550-Unit AT&T Global PrePaid Card offers deployed soldiers the best value when calling to the U.S. from Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom — just 19¢ a minute when the Card is purchased at any OEF/OIF location. When purchased online or at other Exchange locations in the U.S. and around the world, it's just 21¢ a minute.*

★ Where can AT&T Global PrePaid Cards be purchased?

Buy yours at your local Exchange or online at www.aafes.com. Friends and family of military personnel can also purchase Cards for you at this site. When deployed in Iraq, Afghanistan and Kuwait, Cards can be purchased at the Exchange, where the price of the 550-Unit Card is just $35.

When calling within the U.S., 1 unit equals 1 minute of calling. When making international calls from overseas, more units are used per minute of call time and the number of units is different based on the country you are calling from. For example, when using the 550-Unit Card, for calls made from OEF/OIF to the U.S., 1 minute equals 3 units of call time. So the 550-Unit Card is good for 183 minutes of calling. For information on other countries, just call the 800 Customer Service number on the back of your Card.

★ Optimized military rates. Great AT&T benefits:

- Minutes never expire.
- Low rates. Remember, prepaid cards bought at other retailers may have higher overseas rates.
- Recharge with AT&T Autominutes® and never run out of minutes.
- Toll free Customer Service available 24/7.
- INFO TO GO available† with weather, sports and more!

★ Visit Camp AT&T.

Before you're deployed, go to www.att.com/mil and check out the Camp AT&T section. It contains information on calling from all the forward-deployed areas, other overseas locations and from U.S. Naval ships.

*A surcharge of at least 10 units/minutes (subject to increase) applies to pay phone calls. Units are based on U.S. domestic calling. International rates are higher than U.S. domestic rates, differ according to destination called and are subject to change. Rates may be higher for calls made to or from mobile phones. See Card for details. †Use of Info To Go information services will incur an additional charge to your Card balance. © 2005 AT&T. All Rights Reserved.

cess. Residents can submit their completed Lease Packages to the following locations, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

AMCC Offices in the Family Housing Office, located in Tarawa Hall, MCB Camp Lejeune.

AMCC MCB Camp Lejeune General Management Office, located at 1021 Baxter Street, River Community Management Office, located at 1021 Baxter Street.

If residents were not able to attend the townhall meetings, they can download the Lease and Community Guidelines from the AMCC Web site, www.atlanticmcc.com. This Web site will provide all information necessary to complete the lease signing process, including a how-to guide.

In the resident's absence, their designated representative may sign these documents on their behalf with a power of attorney that includes lease and allotment language. Residents can contact base legal office for a power of attorney, if needed.

MCCS has agreed to allow AMCC to set up a lease-signing booth at the Main Exchange this Saturday, Sept. 17 and Sept. 24 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

"The AMCC lease has been reviewed by lawyers from the Department of the Navy and MCB Camp Lejeune staff judge advocates to ensure your rights are protected. It is a legally binding document that outlines the term of the lease, rental payment, resident's rights and obligations, insurance provisions and AMCC responsibilities. It also includes several addendums such as Pet, Satellite Dish, Relocation Policies and hazardous materials disclosures," said David Falls, AMCC general manager.

"The initial lease term is six months, and automatically month-to-month thereafter until the resident terminates the lease. Residents will not have to sign the lease again, unless they relocate to a different home," Falls added.

A standard military clause along with provisions in the Service Member's Civil Relief Act will apply to all leases when the service member receives permanent change-of-station orders. He or she can then get out of the lease without any repercussions.

Also, residents intending on terminating the lease prior to the expiration date for any other reason than PCS orders, the resident has to submit a request in writing 30-days prior to the expected move-out date.

Moreover, leases are approved by the Department of the Navy and Headquarters Marine Corps for all service members living in privatized housing; but the process involved with BAH and rent payments is different. Service members other than USMC must sign an allotment form.

Family members can come into any of the AMCC offices if they have questions or concerns they would like to discuss by calling (866) 509-2424.

Marines repel ambush in Afghanistan

ROBERT M. STORM
Line Corps Base Hawaii

KORENGAL VALLEY, Afghanistan — Marines with Company, 2d Battalion, 3rd Marine Regiment, were killed Aug. 18 during an ambush following a mission in the Korengal Valley. The ambush took place at sundown while soldiers were passing through the valley.

The road exploded with propelled grenades and arms fire," said Cpl. Jose Cirenacion, infantryman from Freehold, N.J., who immediately dropped back and dove for cover on the side of the road and fired.

Marines were dangerously exposed to enemy fire from all directions. The insurgents also fired mortars against the Marines during the firefight. After action, the estimate 20 - 30 insurgents attacked the platoon.

The mission involved three companies conducting a stabilization operation in the Korengal Valley. The area is notorious for attacks on coalition forces.

The purpose of the mission was to conduct a show of force and solidarity for the local population.

The platoon's main mission was to clog up the valley and regulate traffic coming in and out of the area.

Over the course of the mission, the platoon moved 20 kilometers including security patrols," said Staff

Lance Cpl. Ryan R. Irving, infantryman with 2d Battalion, 3rd Marine Regiment, returns fire at insurgents in the Korengal Valley. The Elburn, Ill., native was one of the Marines with E Company that repelled an insurgent ambush Aug. 18.

Sgt. Demetrius King, infantry unit leader, 2d Bn., 3rd Marines, from Washington, D.C.

The Marines from second platoon were leaving the valley to return to base and were reinforced with machine guns and Afghan National Army soldiers. At the end of the mission, while traveling in a tactical column on a road that ran the base of the valley, the platoon was ambushed. They were just two kilometers from the extraction point with coalition forces.

"At first, I couldn't tell how many insurgents were attacking, rounds were coming from everywhere and everything just seemed to be happening in slow motion," said Cirenacion. "It seemed like it was going to last forever, and at the same time, it was moving so fast you didn't have time to be afraid, you just reacted the way our training taught us."

Previously, insurgents in small groups of two or three would fire at Marines and then quickly fade into the hills and backcountry. This time, the insurgents were firing at the Marines from three positions, using advanced ambush tactics. They used a pile of rocks placed in the middle of the road as a range marker for their initial volley and fired from both sides of the high ground towards the Marines. The insurgents also fired from ground level toward the front after the Marines' attention was drawn toward the rear.

Marines confirmed the death of at least three insurgents and recovered ammunition and other sources of intelligence after the attack.

TEAM BASS FISHING

Returns to Gottschalk Marina

BRIAN BERGER
Lejeune Sports Editor

Thirty-three teams launched from Gottschalk Marina as dawn broke over the New River May 14. Teams consisting of two fishermen and their boat were competing to catch the most, and the biggest, largemouth bass in the River. The Marina's Annual Team Bass Tournament Series gives area fishermen a chance to earn bragging rights and a share of several thousand dollars in prize money. This is the 16th year in the series history, with two tournaments remaining, one this Saturday and the final 2005 tournament Nov. 5.

The tournament this Saturday commences at 6 a.m. and weigh-in is at 4 p.m. The cost is $70 per team in advance or $85 Saturday.

Vaughn Fulton, a spokesman for the Marina, expects good fish population in the New River. Many of the participants are regulars in the tournament series and have favorite spots on the river they fish regularly.

That advantage does not preclude newcomers, expected to account for eight - 10 teams, from winning.

Marine Corps Air Station New River's James Boyle, and his father-in-law Kenny Dixon, visiting from Augusta, Ga., won first place overall in May, with five fish weighing 11.53 lbs. With their biggest fish weighing 4.41 lbs., the team of Boyle and Dixon looked poised to win the competition for biggest fish as well.

That prize ultimately went to the father and son team of Wayne and Dennis Sutton from Jacksonville, N.C., who produced a prize-winning Marina Manager Ron Jamieson, center, congratulates the third place team in Gottschalk Marina's May 14 Team Bass Tournament, consisting of Paul Anagnous and Ray Brewer. The next Team Bass Tournament in the Marina's bass series is scheduled for Saturday.

4.77 lb. bass

At the time, Wayne Sutton joked that they'd fed the fish beer all day to fatten him up for the weigh-in. Beating the Suttons will be strong motivation for many of the regulars intent on claiming bragging rights.

Teams participating will hope for overcast conditions, which is preferable for getting the fish to bite.

The tournament series, which began in March and features four tournaments annually, allows teams to keep any bass 14 inches or longer and awards prizes for the team whose total catch weighs the most.

The tournaments are open to the public, and active duty participants may use unit funds for the $70 per team entrance fee with the permission of the unit's special services officer.

All fish are alive and returned back into the river after the weigh-in as part of the Marina's aggressive conservation efforts.

The tournament prohibits the use of natural bait and requires teams to use arti-cial lures, which are less likely to be swallowed and harm the fish, said Marina Manager Ron Jamieson.

Generally, bass can be found by areas of heavy cover, commonly around downed trees, lily pads, heavy vegetation and other areas where smaller fish gather. Any "structure" that houses these smaller fish might mean predatory bass are nearby, and in bass tournaments, competition to stake out a prime location can be fierce as participants race to get there first.

While having a fast boat is advantageous, knowledge of the area is also important, and sometimes a small boat that can access hard to reach areas is more of an asset than a more expensive and faster, but bigger boat.

"Hopefully, these tournaments will help acquaint some Camp Lejeune newcomers to the Marina and everything this area has to offer," Gottschalk Marina Manager Ron Jamieson said.

For more information about the tournament, call 451-8307.

Additional 'Fitness Fumbles' trip up athletes

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

CHRIS HALAGARDA

I read your May 2005 Food for Thought article where you listed your opinion of "Five fumbles in the fitness center". Are there any other "fitness center fumbles" that fitness enthusiasts should be aware of?

There are additional "fumbles" that I have come across in the fitness centers and with individual clients. In this article, I will cover a few topics and I will try to explain a few next month too. Let's first look back at the "fumbles" I covered back in May.

The first five I identified were: Consuming a very high protein diet; using poor form while lifting weights; wearing a foil or rubber suit, and/or sitting in the sauna to promote weight loss; exercising in old sneakers; and over-training. To review this article or any other Food for Thought article, please go to the archives of The Globe at <http://www.mcslejeune.com/HealthFitness.html>.

Camp Lejeune is home to some of the strongest minds and bodies in the world. Unfortunately, along with these necessary traits for the worlds best troops, can come extreme behaviors. I like to refer to it as the "more is better" mentality. So that leads me to the first of three more "fitness center fumbles." The other two are not extreme behaviors, but are common mistakes nonetheless.

OVER-CONSUMING SUPPLEMENTS

We take vitamin C to decrease the length of time we have a cold, we take calcium supplements because milk has carbohydrates or upsets our stomach, we take ginkgo biloba to remember where we put our keys, we drink protein powder to give us muscles, we take this to lose this and that to tighten that. We've become a society that will pay and consume anything that is being sold to us. We trust companies enough to swallow their pills, drink their dissolvable powders and lather on their creams all for our health and appearance, yet we know nothing about where these products come from or how they were prepared or who prepared them. We've begun to trust that these products are safe and they are a must in order to survive each day. Unfortunately, this is far from the truth. Our diets do not need to come from a pill or powder. Our diets need to get back to the basics of food. We need to eat a few square meals each day. A bowl of cereal for breakfast, a sandwich for lunch and a small piece of meat (if you're not a vegan), starch and vegetable at dinner. Eat a few pieces of fruit in between, maybe a serving of nuts or seeds and call it a day. That is what this country needs to get back into shape. Not pills, powders and creams that are not regulated by anyone.

USING A WEIGHTLIFTING BELT EVERYDAY

If you have ever "thrown out" your back, you are probably very cautious to never do anything that would cause that discomfort again and you will try anything to prevent that pain. Understandable, but what if I said that wearing a weight belt while lifting weights could increase your chances of hurting your back again? Well, that may be a little misleading, but the truth is that a weight lifting belt will prevent you from strengthening the core muscles, including your lower back, and can actually atrophy (break-down) the core muscles. So when you go to tie your shoes or pick up a pencil or move some furniture around the house, "pop" goes your back. The gym is an important time to strengthen the lower back muscles and help the body develop overall strength and fitness so that it can handle our active lifestyle. The only time a weight belt needs to be worn in the gym is when you are lifting very heavy (1-5 reps per set). Remember, lifting weights properly will not hurt your back; lifting weights with poor form will hurt your back. In fact, most back injuries that I have witnessed in fitness centers have occurred between sets when an individual bends at the waist to pick up a plate, collar or bar. So lose the belt on medium to light weight-lifting days, don't hold your breath, and ensure proper form. If you are unsure what proper form is for a certain exercise ask a Semper Fit personal trainer at French Creek Fitness Center for guidance. Semper Fit's personal trainers will be coming to other fitness centers soon.

NOT ADJUSTING CALORIES AS WEIGHT LOSS IS SUCCESSFUL

Losing weight is hard. No doubt about it. It takes will power, motivation and perseverance. It also takes knowledge and "know-how" to reach a goal weight. Many people successfully lose weight of about 5-10 percent. This is a 10-20 pound loss on a 200 lbs person. But how often does this lead us to a plateau or to "rebound" weight

United States qualifies for 5th straight World Cup

JOE DANBORN
Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Everything's gravy from here on out for the United States, at least until it heads to next year's World Cup in Germany.

The team rests its stars and looks to fill out its roster starting with Wednesday's qualifier in Guatemala. But first it will have to set aside the giddiness that comes with having licked rival Mexico 2-0 to book a ticket to its fifth straight World Cup with three games to spare.

The Americans planned a light workout Monday in Columbus before leaving for Guatemala.

Steve Ralston and Damarcus Beasley scored five minutes apart to account for the U.S. goals.

In between, goalkeeper Kasey Keller made the second of two clutch saves, diving to his left to snuff a low drive by Mexico captain Rafael Marquez. Keller notched his 50th international win and hasn't surrendered a goal in World Cup qualifying since the U.S. lost 2-1 in Mexico City in April.

"To be able to shut them up at the beginning of the second half by getting two goals and just kind of seeing the game out comfortably was fantastic," Keller said of the outnumbered but vocal contingent of Mexico fans.

Coach Bruce Arena said it felt good to correct the lone "blemish" on his team's record in the final round of qualifying. But that was about as far as he went when it came to relishing the victory.

"The goal now is to make our team better for the World Cup," Arena said.

Keller and most other national team members who play with European clubs likely won't suit up for the Guatemala match or the United States' final two qualifiers. Instead, Arena said he would give minutes to players from Major League Soccer teams and others who haven't seen as much international time as he winnows the roster from what is considered the deepest talent pool the U.S. program has had.

"I think it gives the coach a real chance to look at some other players in games that matter," defender Gregg Berhalter said, noting that the other two or three World Cup slots that will come from the Central and North American and Caribbean remain undecided.

One of the more interesting battles for U.S. roster spots is that for the title of Keller's backup.

"We're bringing three goalkeepers to the World Cup, and I want to be one of them," said Marcus Hahnemann, who plays for Reading in the English Premier League and is one of four players besides Keller who've played in net for the U.S. this year.

Two years ago, Major League Soccer's United States Soccer Federation could have given Keller for the starting role. Howard has fallen out with the top-flight English league and hasn't made any appearances for the U.S.

Arena said he was with the play of his defenders against Mexico, the back line remains sorted out, especially at side spots. Berhalter, rising star receiver Oguni Onyewu and Eddie Pope, when he's are mainstays in the mid-reason for this is the body resists weight loss. It is a "starvation prevention" technique. For every 5 percent weight loss the body reduces its metabolism by about 10 percent. Metabolism is how many calories the body needs each day. So if we are still consuming the same amount of food and our metabolism is decreasing, there will be no additional weight loss. Hence a plateau, frustration and possible rebound weight gain if we resume previous eating habits. Some ways to prevent this is to multiply your body weight in pounds by 10 - 11 calories and that will give you an approximate total of calories needed for the day for continued weight loss. A 200 lbs person needs 2,000 -

2,200 calories per day to promote weight loss. If that loses 10 pounds, they should now consume 1,900 - 2,090 calories per day. A smaller body means lower calorie needs. Another way to prevent a plateau is to resistance train a few days each week. This will maintain muscle commonly lost during successful weight loss. This preserved muscle will help maintain the metabolism, hence preventing a plateau.

Nutrition and exercise are exciting topics. With so much information available to the layperson, it can be very difficult to decide what is best for you. For a more in-depth look into basic nutrition, sports nutrition, weight loss and more attend the next nutrition workshop Monday Oct. 3, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. Call 451-2865 for more information.

World Complaints explore options for home games

STAFF REPORTS
Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The New Orleans Saints understand that the NFL wants to consider every option for the team's home field this season since Hurricane Katrina ruined the Superdome.

In turn, the Saints hope the league understands how badly they want to play at LSU's Tiger Stadium.

From general manager Mickey Loomis to coach Jim Haslett to star receiver Joe Horn, the entire organization seems to be lobbying to play about 75 miles from New Orleans in Baton Rouge, La.

"If we can uplift anyone, obviously that's worthwhile to us," Loomis said Sunday. "We're representatives of the people of Louisiana and the people of New Orleans."

Other options are the Alamodome in San Antonio, where the team is living and practicing, or playing all 16 games on the road.

"I hope they keep the games as close as possible," Horn said. "For us to play, having to play, if someone could come and support us near where we were, it would be good."

The team has moved its day-day operations to San Antonio. They were to begin practicing in the area Monday, with Loomis saying that's going to be the case all season, regardless of where they end up playing their home games.

Loomis, Haslett and Horn all said using the Alamodome would be better than playing all 16 games on the road. The Saints already are down for nine road games as their home opener has been moved to Giants Stadium, one of their foe, the New York Giants.

Haslett said NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue "put us behind the eight ball" with that decision.

The Saints open Sunday at Carolina, then play at Giants Stadium on a date to be announced. Their third game is at Minnesota, so the first game still in flux is Oct. 2 against Buffalo.

Club officials and players are living in a hotel across the interstate from the Alamodome and will be practicing at the San Antonio Independent School District's Spring Sports Complex, which was upgraded several years ago when the Dallas Cowboys trained in the city. The Saints practiced there last year while taking refuge from another hurricane.

Everyone involved in the organization, and their families, fled New Orleans a few days before Katrina hit. It was evident soon after the storm that the Superdome wouldn't be available for this season, and likely many more.

Tiger Stadium holds almost 92,000, although there might be issues of whether the turf can handle LSU games on Saturdays and Saints games on Sundays.

The Alamodome is about 540 miles from the Superdome, making it more difficult for fans to reach. However, Texas is now filled with roughly 250,000 Louisiana refugees, including about 25,000 in San Antonio at Kelly USA, a former military base.

Several coaches and players visited Kelly on Sunday. Loomis said the first person their caravan came across was a former team employee whose son now works for the organization. The man was taken back to the team hotel, where he was to be reunited with his son. Their names were not immediately released.

The Alamodome seats about 60,000 for football and has only a few dozen of the moneymaking luxury suites teams crave, part of the reason the nation's eighth-largest city has never been a serious candidate for getting a team via expansion or relocation.

Loomis also announced that the team is creating a relief fund for the hurricane victims. He said Saints owner Tom Benson and his family would make the first donation.

"We are still the New Orleans Saints," Loomis said. "Our commitment to our city is stronger than ever. We want to be on the forefront of rebuilding our city. We'll play this season with the same toughness and resiliency of the people of New Orleans."

Berger's Football Insights

Football brings welcomed distraction to world events

BRIAN BERGER
Lejeune Sports Editor

College football kicked off last week, and the NFL season begins tonight with the Oakland Raiders traveling to Boston to take on the New England Patriots in the NFL's three-year old Thursday night Kick-Off Classic, but the games are at most a brief distraction from tragic events larger than the game.

Hurricane Katrina, its aftermath of destruction and despair, and rising gas prices have Americans on edge and worried. Many of us are hoping the games provide some semblance of distraction, as well as an opportunity to unite and help those in need. In 2001, as Americans struggled to comprehend the terrorist attacks of 9/11, the New York Yankees provided distraction people desperately needed to cope with the tragic loss of life. It also gave the nation, and New Yorkers in particular, an emotional lift.

The psychological and historical affect of professional sports is often underrated. Even many of the most avid Yankees-haters and hardened Democrats had a tear in their eye when George Bush stepped to the mound to throw out the first pitch before Game Three. Donning a bullet-proof vest, Bush was wildly cheered by the crowd, which at times veered from their traditional chant of "Let's Go Yankees" to raucous chants of "Let's Go Snipers" in an ode of appreciation to the security forces keeping watch from the rafters of Yankee Stadium.

National Football League games were cancelled the weekend after 9/11. Legendary NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle was haunted forever by his decision to play after President Kennedy was assassinated in 1963, and many consider it one of the worst calls in NFL and even sports history. Owners did not want to repeat that mistake in 2001.

After a week off, the NFL returned the following week, and in stadiums across America, crowds paid their respects to the victims. Millions were raised for 9/11-related charities. The NFL continued to raise millions of dollars throughout the season.

The NFL and its players, many with strong ties and loved ones in the most affected areas of the Gulf states, began philanthropic efforts immediately. It is virtually certain that throughout this season, the NFL will use its mighty marketing power and machinery to raise millions more for the victims of Hurricane Katrina.

Though the Saints might not play at home this season, and football is the last thing on the minds of the suffering right now, the games still go on. They are a source of diversion, of healing, and of using entertainment to make a positive difference in the world.

MSSG-24 departs for New Orleans to aid in disaster relief

In wake of Hurricane Katrina's trail of mass devastation, Marine Expeditionary Force Service Support Group 24, 2d Force Service Support Group, deployed with more than 250 Marines to New Orleans Sept. 2 to aid in the disaster relief.

The MSSG-24 will be attached to Special Purpose Marine Air Ground Task Force Katrina when they arrive, according to Lt. Col. Joel Berry, commanding officer, MSSG-24, 2d FSSG.

The unit's primary mission is to provide humanitarian assistance to the victims of the natural disaster and disaster relief to areas in and around New Orleans, according to Berry. "Providing humanitarian assistance and disaster relief are a few of the core capabilities of a MSSG," Berry added.

While their primary mission is to aid in damage control, the increase in criminal activity and the amount of looting taking place will add a few more duties during their deployment.

"Hopefully, we can restore the order there and get it back to where it should be," said Cpl. James Anderson of Mobile, Ala., a landing support specialist with MSSG-24.

Deploying 250 Marines and dozens of vehicles anywhere takes a lot of hard work and coordination.

Once given their orders, it took them 36 hours to organize the entire MSSG, according to Berry.

"We went from 175 Marines to 250 overnight," said Berry. "Yesterday, we only had 30 percent of our vehicles, but by this morning we were at 100 percent. All in all, it only took roughly 36 hours to organize the entire group, thanks to a lot of hard work and dedication."

The unit will be taking as many vehicles they will be able to fit on the two ships they're taking, according to Berry.

The deploying vehicles are equipped to handle various situations including water production, storage and distribution, fuel distribution, land and debris excavation, artificial electricity and medical support, according to Berry.

"I am confident we will be able to accomplish it using our specialized training and multi-functional capabilities we're taking with us," Berry said. "These Marines really pulled it together last minute and made everything work according to plan."

Overall, the Marines of MSSG-24 are glad they are able to help out during this time of great need in their country.

"I think it's good that we're helping out in New Orleans," said Lance Cpl. Anthony Damato of Chicago, a landing support specialist with MSSG-24. "It shows we can still help maintain the United States, in the midst of the ongoing operation in Iraq."

Highway named after Medal of Honor recipient

LANCE CPL. DREW W. BARKER
Marine Corps Base

ROPER, N.C. — A ribbon cutting ceremony officially opened an addition to U.S. Highway 64 and dedicated a portion of the road to former Marine and Medal of Honor recipient, Jack H. Lucas, Aug. 30.

"This is a great day for Eastern North Carolina and the people of Plymouth," said Stan White, the Division 1 Department of Transportation representative for North Carolina. "It's been a long time coming, and Jack and his hometown really deserve this honor."

The ceremony, which took place under the new U.S. 64 overpass, began with a presentation of colors by a U.S. Marine Corps Color Guard, followed immediately by the Pledge of Allegiance. After an invocation and introductions, White gave a presentation and introduced Lucas to speak.

"This road is a great benefit not only for Washington County and the local communities, but for all area commuters," said White. "We're proud to be able to dedicate a section of this fine road to such an honorable and distinguished man."

For his courage and devotion while serving during World War II, the North Carolina Board of Transportation honored Lucas by naming a section of the road in Washington County after him.

Lucas earned the Medal of Honor for risking his life while serving with 1st Battalion, 26th Marines, 5th Marine Division, during action against enemy Japanese forces on Iwo Jima, Volcano Islands, Feb. 20, 1945.

While creeping through a treacherous, twisting ravine, which ran in close proximity to a fluid and uncertain frontline on D-plus-1 day, Lucas and three other men were suddenly ambushed by a hostile patrol which savagely attacked with rifle fire and grenades.

Quick to act when the lives of the small group were endangered by two grenades which landed directly in front of them, Lucas unhesitatingly hurled himself

Program regulates Lejeune's air quality

LANCE CPL. BRANDON R. HOLGERSEN
Marine Corps Base

The Air Quality Program with the Marine Corps Base Environmental Management department is dedicated to ensuring the Camp Lejeune is in compliance with all federal and state air quality regulations.

The program achieves this through a proactive approach to increase cleaner technology and remove significant or inefficient polluters, according to Emily Sylvester, the Air Quality Program manager. Doing this not only reduces harmful effects on the environment, but also reduces overall operation costs on base.

"Clean input creates clean output," said Kerry Buchinger, an environmental engineer with the program.

One of the ways the program has helped to keep the air quality clean was the introduction of Ethanol Alcohol fuel, which burns cleaner than regular gasoline, according to Sylvester. The base now has 100 vehicles that can use the 85 percent Ethanol, gasoline mix at the government fueling station here.

Part of keeping the air on Camp Lejeune clean is educating the community through training, for Marine Corps units to show them what different air pollutants are and what they can do to stop them, according to Sylvester.

"Prevention can go all the way to your home. By using energy saving appliances, you can save money, and in the long run, less fuel needs to be burned to generate electricity," Sylvester said.

Vehicle emissions is one of the big pollutants anywhere, and ways to cut down on vehicle emissions is by car pooling, keeping the windows up while using the air conditioning to increase fuel efficiency, according to Buchinger.

his comrades upon one grenade and pulled the other under him, absorbing the whole blasting forces of the explosion in his own body in order to shield his companions from the concussion and murderous flying fragments.

By his inspiring action and valiant spirit of self-sacrifice, he not only protected his comrades from certain injury or possible death but also enabled them to rout the Japanese patrol and continue the advance. His exceptionally courageous initiative and loyalty reflect the highest credit upon Lucas and the U.S. Naval Service, according to his Congressional Medal of Honor citation, which was awarded by President Harry S. Truman, Oct. 5, 1945.

"It's quite exhilarating," said Lucas. "I've been given many awards and received many accolades in my life, but there's nothing better than being recognized and honored by your hometown. I was born and raised here in Plymouth and these people are like family to me."

The new 31-mile stretch of four-lane-divided highway is designed to bypass Roper and should save drivers up to 20 minutes of driving. The addition will also serve as an emergency evacuation route and help promote growth and development throughout Washington County, according to White.

any generators they have are properly maintained. If they are not maintained, they can cause more emissions than normal, and proper maintenance will also save the unit money because the equipment will not break and require further repairs, according to Sylvester.

Taking A Stand for American Families

In times of disaster,

In times of relief,

In times of poverty,

In times of plenty,

In times of necessity,

In times of hunger,

In times of peace,

In times of conflict,

In times of fear,

In times of cold,

In times of hot sun,

In times of storm,

In times to stand up,

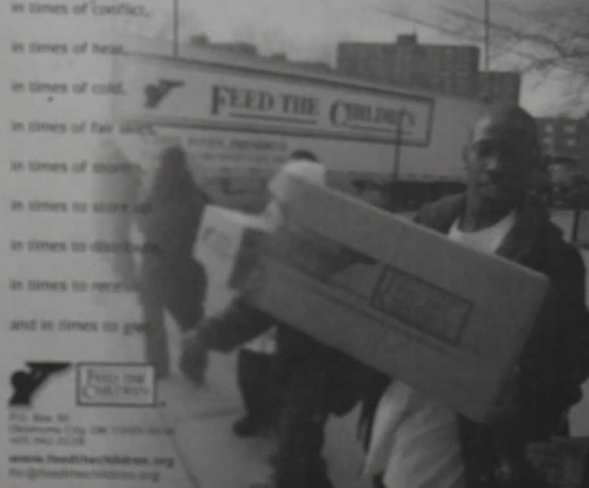

In times to dream,

In times to reach,

and in times to give.

In times when you want to help
America, by helping us deliver food, medicine and other relief supplies, please check 2052 on your charities form. Together we are taking a stand for children and American families who need it most.

Thank you for again checking
2052.

Communicate

FRA is the leading military service organization representing Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard personnel. We're your direct link to Capitol Hill.

We communicate with:

- Elected officials on legislative issues affecting pay, benefits and quality-of-life programs for military personnel and their families.
- Our members and their families through www.fra.org, News Bytes™ (a weekly legislative e-mail update), and our magazines Naval Affairs and OnWatch.
- Military leaders, sharing the views of enlisted personnel.

We need your voice to make ours stronger!

Join for $25 by August 15 and receive a free copy of FRA's guide to Capitol Hill, Communicate With Your Elected Officials.

EDUCATION SURVEY

The Personal and Family Readiness Division at Headquarters Marine Corps is working with local Marine Corps garrisons to conduct an Education Community Services Education Center Program assessment. Please participate in a 10-minute assessment that is being conducted Sept. 11 - 24 online at ncmis.cnet.navy.mil/usmc/AssessmentSurvey. Your confidential response is extremely valuable and will enable Education Center staff to better understand and address your educational needs.

POETRY NIGHT

The main branch library in Jacksonville and the Charlotte B. Smith Library announce the first Adult Open Mic Poetry Night to take place today at 7 p.m. at the Onslow County Public Library. For more information, call 455-7350 x233.

OPEN HOUSE

The Marine Corps Air Station Officers Wives' Club will host an open house for all officer spouses past, present and curious Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the New River O'Club. The open house theme is Decades of Fun and Friendship, and spouses may dress in the attire worn when they became an officer spouse. Numerous children activities and information booths are planned.

CHapel PROGRAMS

The Camp Lejeune Protestant Chapel launches their fall programs Sunday with a service following the 10 a.m. worship service. The youth program begins Sunday at 3:30 p.m., and Sunday school begins Sept. 18 in Building 67 at 8:30 a.m. If you would like to enroll or volunteer, contact Irene Argent at 451-3210.

SPANISH HERITAGE MONTH

A committee planning to celebrate and recognize Hispanic Heritage Month (Sept. 15 - Oct. 15) will meet Tuesday in the Building 27 conference room from 1 - 2 p.m. The committee needs military, base civilians and family members to help organize and volunteer for displays, dance demonstrations or any other Hispanic cultural awareness. For more information, call 451-5372.

WELCOME ABOARD KICK-OFF

The Officers Wives' Club Welcome Aboard Kick-off is Wednesday at the Paradise Point Officer's Club from 10 a.m. to noon and 7 - 9 p.m. The event is for those who are interested in joining the OWC. For more information, contact Jane Fuhrer at 219-4378.

WATER RELIEF

The Jacksonville Mall will serve as a collection point for donations to hurricane Katrina victims through the Onslow County United Way. Bring non-perishable food, water, blankets, baby items, flashlights, batteries and hygiene items Friday 10 a.m. - 9 p.m.

Cultural differences experienced, shared

HEATHER CARUSO
Carolina Living Staff Writer

Surrounded by Japanese culture and history in the city of Tokyo, the temptation lurked to step out of her work mode and soak up the unusual sights, smells and sounds of Japanese life. Mary Beth Poole has been enamored by the Japanese culture ever since she could remember, but instead of sightseeing, her objective was her students back at Camp Lejeune.

As a reading specialist at Russell Elementary, Poole sees the impact Japan has on her students daily. With many students moving to, returning from Japan or geographically separated from their mother or father in Japan, they have more questions about that culture than most other countries. Some young scholars are uneasy about the prospect of moving there or are trying to make sense of the experience after returning.

"Every summer, I go somewhere, because as a teacher, I am also a learner. I go to expand my cultural understanding to teach my students," Poole said.

A year ago, she knew that she wanted to spend three weeks of her summer '05 in Japan and applied for the Japan Fulbright Memorial Fund Teacher Program. "I had a very good educational reason to go to Japan," she said.

"The infusion of Japanese culture in our curriculum has the potential of greatly improving the lives of our students as they transfer to military bases in Japan and throughout the world,"

Veterinarian brings free pet vaccinations to Lejeune's Annual Pet Fair

HEATHER CARUSO
Carolina Living Staff Writer

Dogs will be wagging their tails and cats will be purring at the Annual Pet Fair presented by the Camp Lejeune Veterinary Treatment Facility Saturday at W.P.T. Hill field from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. This year, the fair holds a special treat for service members' pets in need of vaccinations and identification microchips.

Donald Allen, a small animal veterinarian and Air Force reserve public health officer at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio, has been working with the base Veterinary Treatment Facility located in Tarawa Terrace to bring free vaccinations and additional aid as an effort to show his and his wife's gratitude to Camp

Lejeune Marines' service in Iraq.

"[Allen] wanted to do something for the Marines since they are the ones most affected by this war," said Army Capt. Genevieve Vega, chief of the Camp Lejeune branch of Veterinary Services. "He is providing free vaccines for service members' pets as a way to promote animal health."

There will be a lot of exciting animal activities going on, such as pet contests that anyone may enter - anything from biggest and smallest pets to obedience and look-alike contests - as well as demonstrations from military working dogs and chances to adopt a pet through the Carolina Animal Protection Society based in Onslow County. Additionally, several pet related vendors will be on hand with free giveaways.

The base Veterinary Treatment Facility offers pet vaccines and services to military personnel at discounted prices, and this is a unique opportunity Vega was presented with.

"When money is tight, the pets seem to get the lowest priority," said Allen, who remembers eating a lot of peanut butter as an enlisted airman in the late 1960s.

Allen has a fondness for 2d Marine Division and authored Tarawa - the Aftermath, an account of the days leading up to, and following, 2d Marine Division's attack on Tarawa during World War II. His fondness for the division and pets is what led him to Camp Lejeune.

"Pets are very, very beneficial. They give unconditional love and aren't judgmental. Of course that requires, on the owners part, to take care of them and vaccinate them," said Allen.

Additionally, pet owners worried about losing their feline or canine friends can purchase a discounted identification microchip for $17 at the fair, so pets lost without their tags can still be identified by shelters. Both free vaccines and discounted microchips are available to valid military ID holders.

"I really appreciate the guys and girls who are serving. They are doing a great job over there, and I want to help them as much as possible, especially the Marines," said Allen, who is traveling with his wife to Camp Lejeune to distribute the vaccines.

Many of the vaccines and supplies were donated by veterinary supply representatives, and an additional 600 doses were purchased by Allen, who hopes to see a great turnout. A rain date is scheduled for Sept. 17.

"If we can save a Marine family 20, 40, 50 bucks, then that is great. That saves money for them to use on other important stuff," said Allen.

Poole wrote in her application letter, hoping to be one of the 600 United States educators accepted for the program.

Founded in 1997 by the Japanese government, the Japan Fulbright MFTP was launched as a thank you to the United States for enabling more than 6,000 Japanese to study in the U.S. on Fulbright fellowships for graduate education and research for more than 50 years.

After hearing stories of her husband's service in Japan and reading about the Japanese people, culture and country, Poole was elated when she learned of her acceptance to the program. Little did she know how well she would be treated by the Japanese government and people.

"They treated us like the very important people they consider teachers to be," said Poole, as she talked about the food they ate and hotels they stayed in. Poole and another teacher estimated the trip to cost roughly $25,000 per person.

"The schools have a reputation of being very successful," said Poole. "I learned there are some things that we do very well, indeed, and then, there are some things they do very well."

While there, all the information Poole read or heard about became real. She spent much of her time at the schools learning from the students and observing their education system. She watched in amazement as the children were taught English in Japanese and as the children — even the young ones — served lunch to each other in the classroom without guidance from their teacher. Poole observed how the school system didn't individualize lessons. Every second grade classroom in the nation followed the exact same lesson plans each day.

When they were not learning about education, the Japanese government took Poole and the other teachers to cultural art performances and on history tours around the city. "One of their ideas was to teach us about Japan, so when we came back to the United States, we would be advocates," said Poole.

As Poole visited shrines and different marketplaces, bought souvenirs and learned traditional Japanese calligraphy, she stored knowledge that she would come back and teach her students.

"Our students are particularly interested in hearing about Japan, because they have a connection," said Poole as she pointed out how much the Marine Corps and Japanese interact.

Students returning from, and going to, Japan need an outlet to express their experiences in Japan or talk about their concerns when moving to Japan. According to Poole, people learn by talking about their experiences, and children are comforted when they hear other children positively talk about what they will soon face.

As Poole visited the marketplace on one of her two free days during her three-week visit, she bought a kimono from a Japanese woman. The Japanese woman dropped everything she was doing to patiently taught Poole how to tie the kimono properly. In turn, Poole was deciding how she would teach and patiently teach about Japan.

Poole is eager to pass on her knowledge to Camp Lejeune students through a cultural called Nippon is Japan, as well as by holding a wide Celebrate Japanese and American Friday day for students to learn the music, food, geography and traditional dress of the Japanese.

The Nippon is Japan club will focus on Meiji intermediate school-aged students and their parents who expect orders to Japan within the next year as well as students who have recently returned there.

"It will help our schools — in my mind — meet the needs of the students that we teach," Poole.

Must Love Dogs brings love to screen

MUST LOVE DOGS (PG-13)
Must Love Dogs is a romantic comedy about online dating. The story centers on a newly divorced woman who cautiously rediscovers romance on her own, after a series of disastrous mismatched dates set up for her by well-meaning family and friends.

Diane Lane (Unfaithful, Under the Tuscan Sun, The Perfect Storm) stars as Sarah Nolan, a newly divorced preschool teacher in her 40s who is looking for love. Having sworn off dating after her last bad breakup, she is being dragged back into the dating game by her meddlesome Irish-American family, who pushes her into trying the personals to get a date.

Her meddling sisters Carol, played by Elizabeth Perkins (The Ring Two, Cats and Dogs), and Christine, played by Ali Hillis (All the Wrong Places), submit her profile to an Internet dating service, including the line "Must Love Dogs."

When Sarah re-enters the dating scene with mixed results, her encounters with men range from the hilarious to the disastrous.

Making connections through Internet dating, she comes across a dog lover's ad. She borrows her brother's Newfoundland and meets Jake, a very romantic man who builds old-fashioned wooden boats.

John Cusack (Serendipity, Identity, American Sweethearts) stars as Jake Anderson, whose lawyer friend urges him to get back into the game of dating. After coming across Sarah's online ad, he also borrows a dog, a cute little terrier, for his date with Sarah.

Although Jake and Sarah have a wonderful connection, it will take many missed signals and mix-ups before the pair finally gets together.

Dermot Mulroney (About Schmidt, Undertow) plays Bob Connors, the father of one of her students and another one of Sarah's prospects.

Supporting roles go to the marvelous Christopher Plummer (Alexander, National Treasure) as Bill, her father; and Stockard Channing (Le Divorce, Where the Heart Is) as his loyal friend Dolly.

Television veteran Gary David Goldberg (Spin City, Family Ties) directed and wrote Must Love Dogs, which is adapted from the Claire Cook novel.

Must Love Dogs is an endearing and somewhat corny love connection, which would have made a wonderfully adorable little sitcom on television. It is now playing in the Camp Lejeune theater.

THE CONSTANT GARDENER (R)

The Constant Gardener is a sizzling and intelligent political thriller about sex, lies and dirty politics in modern Africa.

When a British diplomat's wife, a socially conscious lawyer, turns up dead in Kenya, her husband sets out to find the truth surrounding her murder.

In the process, he finds out that his wife had been compiling data against a multinational drug company that uses helpless Africans as guinea pigs to test a tuberculosis remedy with unfortunately fatal side effects.

Therefore, those who may have had the most reason to silence her are closer to home than he ever imagined.

Ralph Fiennes (Maid in Manhattan, Red Dragon, The Good Thief, Sunshine) stars as Justin Quayle, the ineffectual British diplomat, who is more interested in tending to his garden than dealing with reality and turns a blind eye to his wife's relentless questions.

However, after his activist wife is found slain in Kenya, he suddenly grows a backbone and discovers what his wife has been working on.

Rachel Weisz (Emvy, Constantine, Runaway Jury, Sunshine) plays his wife, Tessa, a fiery activist, who asks too many questions.

She thinks the high and mighty Brits, led by Sir Bernard Pellegrin, played by Bill Nighy (Love Actually), are in a league with a pharmaceutical company to use suffering Africans for drug experiments.

Now, after her death, Justin takes up Tessa's cause and travels to London, Berlin and Nairobi, risking his career and his life.

Costarring are Danny Huston (The Aviator, Birth);

Archie Panjabi (Bend It Like Beckham); and Pete Postlethwaite (Dark Water, Gangs of New York).

The Academy Award nominated director Fernando Meirelles (City of God) adapted this story from the 2001 novel by John le Carre set in Kenya during Kenyan ex-president Daniel arap Moi's corrupt regime.

Shot mainly in Nairobi, the film challenges viewers' beliefs and spotlights Kenya's slums without pity or judgment.

Interwoven is a mature romance between two consenting adults, Fiennes and Weisz, who bring a certain chemistry and passion to their characters.

The Constant Gardener is a smart and provocative, tense thriller. It gracefully brings psychology, politics and romance to the screen.

The acting is superb and the film is passionately directed.

If you remember and have seen The Year of the Dog, Dangerously and The Quiet American, you will thoroughly enjoy this film. The Constant Gardener now playing in Jacksonville.

Ms. Huneycutt is the public affairs assistant at the Base Public Affairs Office.

Meet the base School Board candidates

The Camp Lejeune School Board Election is set for Sept. 15 to fill existing vacancies on the board. The CLDS School Board consists of nine members, and the election is conducted to fill eight vacancies. A voting site will be available to voters at all Camp Lejeune Dependents Schools. Sept. 15 the polls will open at 7:30 a.m. and remain open until 5 p.m. Eligible voters are parents or legal guardians of students enrolled in CLDS at the time of the election. Each parent or guardian is entitled to one vote and must cast their vote in person by secret ballot the day of the election. A mass list of eligible voters will be housed at each location, and each person will be required to show proof of identification before voting. The election is an extremely important and exciting event because it provides an opportunity to involve new members in the process. Make your vote count. For additional information, contact Rebecca Humphrey at the Community Superintendent's Office at 451-2461, ext. 217.

Below are this year's candidates. In an effort to get to know the candidates, each was asked:

"WHAT QUALIFIES AND MOTIVATES YOU TO SERVE ON THE CLDS SCHOOL BOARD?"

I have served as a Parent Advisory Board president, PTA member and classroom volunteer. I believe the only way schools can succeed is through the cooperation of parents, teachers and administrators whose common goal is providing the best learning environment possible for children at all ages and levels of ability.

CATHY CLOSE

I've always been a big part of my children's education. They are in school, and I feel it is important to be involved with the schools where all decisions are made. Serving on the School Board will mean that I am able to help the school system and the children.

ELIZA FERREE

Encompassing my experiences as an Army Brat, a Navy reservist, and now a Marine Corps wife, I have a complete understanding of each realm of military life. I feel these experiences, along with my bachelor's degree in human services, will support a positive role on the CLDS Board of Education.

CHARISE FRASIER

I am a highly involved parent and professional educator. I've worked with the community to improve schools in many states. I'm an officer with the CLDS PTA. I'll work to see that all children are given the tools and resources necessary to achieve academic excellence. I would appreciate your vote.

ANGELA JONES

I believe in order for schools to be successful they must have active involvement from parents, as well as employees. I am a certified teacher with nine years of teaching experience (four years in Camp Lejeune and Quantico). Also, I have actively volunteered throughout my son and daughter's school careers.

ODELL BENTON

If elected to the school board, I would bring a valuable viewpoint of a parent with 15 years of experience with Camp Lejeune Schools. All five of my children have attended base schools. I have experience advocating for special needs as well as gifted children.

PATRICIA MORIN

I am a parent of two school age children and feel it is my obligation to be physically involved in the decisions that will impact not only my children but yours as well. In the past five years, I have been an active participant in the classrooms and parent teacher organizations.

TERESA SABLAN

Being a mother of four children, I desire to be a School Board member to help set the standard for achievement in our community, assure that the district operates according to sound policies and budgeting procedures, and help set the vision by looking ahead and planning for the children's future.

TAMERA STEELE

General Robert E. Lee said, "You should do your duty in all things. You can never do more; you should seek never to do less." If re-elected to the school board for another term, I gladly will continue doing my duty in support of the educational system at Camp Lejeune.

ANNETTE TESCH

I served on the Quantico School Board as vice chairman from May 2004 until June 2005, which gives me an insight to the responsibilities that will be required to serve. I believe that the School Board is the advocate for your community when decisions are made about our children's education.

Spouse Scholarship Program

All spouses of students receive free tuition for equal or less value for each paid program. Spouses must take classes concurrently. If for extenuating circumstances a spouse needs to sit out a quarter, this temporary time away must be approved by the Dean of the college. Either spouse must complete their program within one year of the first spouse to complete the program. If both spouses complete their programs, any additional programs will be under the same rules—one paid program for each additional free tuition program. If you or your spouse require different classes or want duplicate books, there will be an additional charge for the extra book or books. The "free" spouse must pay other fees such as application, late grading fees, graduation and transcript fees. Please see the schedule of fees in the catalog. This offer is not good with other offers, nor does it apply to money raised by the college for the student through private donors, or monies supplied by the Department of Rehabilitation or the Veterans Administration. The Spouse Special Scholarship Program may not always be offered. However, if a spouse begins it with a paying spouse that free program will be honored until the completion of their degree if it is within one year after the first spouse completes their degree.

Riders form association to keep base stables open

LANCE CPL. DREW W. BARKER
Marine Corps Base

A group of horse owners who board their animals at Camp Lejeune's stables formed the Scarlet and Gold Riding Club and assumed management of the facilities as of June 1, after Marine Corps Community Services, the previous administrative body, announced plans to close the stables due to a lack of funding.

"If we hadn't taken over, there would be no more riding here," said Tammi Green, president of the club. "We all love it here so much, we had to do something."

The horse owners created the association in order to legally lease and operate the stables around Camp Lejeune and continue boarding their animals here. And, although the stables are open and functioning, there are a number of changes people should be aware of, according to Jada Meade, the first vice president of the Scarlet and Gold Riding Club.

The most significant change is the stables no longer board any government owned horses, which means the facility no longer offers trail rides or lessons to the public and is only available to members of the club, according to Green.

Individuals authorized to join the Scarlet and Gold and board their horse at the stables include active-duty, reserve or retired military personnel, family members or Department of Defense employees. Potential members must also own their own horse or be sponsored by an existing member who owns and boards a horse at the stables, according to Meade.

The other important change is the stable's transition to a completely self-boarding facility. The boarding amenities for members include a stall, two turnout pastures which are rotated monthly, a feed pallet, a hay pallet, a tack locker and access to all trails and arenas, including two lighted arenas for night riding.

Membership fees are $50 per year, while boarding charges are $125 per horse per month.

"Compared to other stables in the area, we offer the best facilities for the lowest prices," said Master Sgt. Douglas B. Reynolds, the maintenance officer with Scarlet and Gold. "But the real reason riders should join Scarlet and Gold is the people. We're like a family around here."

Another reason horse owners should consider joining the club and boarding their horse on base is the convenience and prices are unbeatable, according to Green.

"If you love spending quality time with your horse and want a place that is clean and safe, where everyone is friendly, this is the place for you," said Meade.

Thomas Green and Paige Smith, Scarlet and Gold Riding Club members, feed Carmine and Willy, two ponies boarded at the stables.
