Gen. Schwarzkopf addresses issues on Saudi Arabia

BY SGT. STEPHEN GUDE

Contributing writer

SAUDI ARABIA—They call him "Bear" and "Stormin' Norman." He's a linebacker-large at 6-feet-3-inches and when he speaks, his words carry an equally large message.

Army General H. Norman Schwarzkopf has commanded units from platoon-level to now what is the largest American buildup of forces since the Vietnam War—Operation Desert Shield. He shared his thoughts on the operation and issues surrounding it with a group of five military journalists representing each branch of the service.

A common topic on the minds of all servicemembers here is possible rotation dates. That was the first question asked of the general, and he smiled as though he expected it.

"That's probably the top priority item that I have my component commanders working on," he said. "Input will come in from the component commanders based on their operational requirements; I'm trying to come up with a universal policy because I don't think it's fair for one service to stay

U.S. Marines board Iraqi ship without warning

Staff report

Demonstrating U.S. capabilities in dealing with defiant Iraqi merchant vessels, U.S. Marines fastroped from helicopters onto the Iraqi ship Amuriyah Sunday, while U.S. fighter planes screamed overhead. This action marked the first time the United States had conducted an unannounced boarding on a moving Iraqi ship, according to the Los Angeles Times. The incident, which involved the first use of U.S. warplanes in an interception, followed warning shots from a U.S. Navy frigate. The Marines met no resistance, and the ship was allowed to proceed after a U.S./Australian boarding party found it to be carrying no cargo prohibited by U.N. sanctions.

Also of significance to Camp Lejeune-based Marines, HQMC announced this past week that a substantial number of Marine Reserves will be called to active duty and sent to the Persian Gulf region. The call-up of reserve servicemen would allow Marines currently deployed in the Mideast to rotate back to the states after six months. The Navy wants to limit deployments of

OUR ENVIRONMENT

BY CPL. F.E. CHARLES

In the 1930s U.S. Forest Service foresters found a black bear cub stranded up a tree after a wildfire. Remarkably, the little cub's only injury was singed paws. Unfortunately, its mother did not survive.

The foresters adopted this little cub, and nicknamed it, "Smokey Bear."

Three decades later, in 1964, a 5-year-old boy happily greeted a mailed package from the U.S. Forest Service. It was his official membership in the "Smokey Bear Club." He was now also an honorary U.S. Forest Service "junior ranger."

Proudly he paraded through the house and up to his parents wearing a replica tin badge just like real forest rangers wore. His parents helped him read the enclosed literature about how he could prevent forest fires. The little boy also found a photo of "Smokey" and a pledge card, which he signed — promising to do his best to prevent unnecessary forest fires.

Unnecessary forest fires are those accidentally, or intentionally set by man. But forest fires are a natural part of a forest's evolution, or growing cycle, according to Danny Becker, assistant forester, Environmental Management Department, here.

The base uses controlled, or "prescribed" burning practices on a five-year cycle to reduce hazardous conditions that could lead to wildfire. It also promotes better health of the timber stand.

But the most noticeable effect is on the aesthetics of the forest, Becker noted. "By opening up the under story, keeping it free from debris and brush, it becomes more pleasing to the eye."

Though after a fire, the forest looks anything but pleasing to one's eye. This vision of a moonscape wasteland led people to believe only until recently that forest fires were detrimental to the environment.

Beliefs like these, prompted awareness programs, like "Smokey Bear," by the U.S. Forest Service.

But after the fires which swept through Yellowstone National Park in 1988, foresters and other environmental experts concluded otherwise.

Upon closer inspection of the blackened and grey moonscape, they found life returning surprisingly quickly.

"Some species of grass return within 48 hours after a fire," Becker said. "Also some pine species propagate better after a fire."

However, prescribed burning is only one technique in a broader-based management plan here. At the same time, according to Becker, "Prescribed burning is our most economical forest management tool."

Though it could be one of the most costly too.

To avoid the threat of wildfire, Becker and the other foresters develop a detailed burn plan, which takes into account temperature, climate and humidity, smoke drift patterns, and how each compartment and range will be "fired," or burned.

This season's prescribed burning will run from Nov. 15 to March 15, 1991.

Since the day "Smokey Bear" was found as a cub, there has been a reversal of thinking about the benefits of controlled burning, according to Becker. "What we're doing in a lot of ways mimics nature."

However, intentional, or accidental wildfires need to be eliminated, because they result in more than just short term wildlife habitat. They result in personal property loss as well.

In this respect, maybe we all can take up the pledge that that little boy took in 1964.

Marines and sailors in Operation Desert Shield to six months. ABC News has estimated the number of reservists called up to be between 3,000 and 10,000.

The 220,000 U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf region may be joined by an additional 100,000 servicemen, according to the Associated Press. The increase in the number of U.S. personnel there is partly to counter a recent hardening of Iraq's defenses in Kuwait, which was invaded Aug. 2. Some of the troops may come from U.S. bases in Germany. The move would give the United States more leverage in dealing with Iraq, which has about 430,000 soldiers and 3,500 tanks in Kuwait and southern Iraq.

This announcement ties in with a recent Soviet message to the United Nations Security Council that it does not believe President Saddam Hussein of Iraq is interested in a negotiated solution to the crisis.

If the Iraqi president does not withdraw his forces from Kuwait, the multinational force amassed in the Persian Gulf is prepared to fight, according to Canadian External Affairs Minister Joe Clark.

But Iraq is not backing down because of the threat. The Iraqis have rigged more than 300 of Kuwait's oil wells with explosives as a precaution against attack, according to London Financial Times.

The pressures of a large portion of the world community are perhaps taking their toll on the Iraqi president, though. Hussein has had more than 300 of his army officers executed since Aug. 2, according to Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta. Their "crime" was that they opposed the invasion. These reports are consistent with behavior that the Iraqi leader has demonstrated in the past. He has never tolerated dissent among his subordinates.

The leader's brutality has had an effect upon his troops. The Los Angeles Times reported that at least 180 Iraqi soldiers have fled to Saudi Arabia as defectors. Dozens more filter back and forth across the border daily, in search of food and water from front-line Arab troops.

The spirit of U.S. Marines in the area is very different. "There will be no morale problems because I say that there will be morale," said Gen. A.M. Gray, Marine Commandant.

CFC reaching midway mark

The Combined Federal Campaign is coming down the home stretch, reaching 102 percent of their preset goal with less than three weeks left in the campaign. Their goal was $350,000.

Leading rushers 2nd SRI Group is on top of the contributing units with 207 percent, doubling their goal. The 22nd MEU is running a close runner-up with 180.4 percent.

The units set a goal of what they wanted to reach, according to Capt. Wayne Anderson, Human Services Director, MCB, and advisor to the CFC committee. II

MEF is holding the third place spot with a steady 132.4 percent.

Other units topping the percentage scales are II MEF-147 percent; NPSAD and 2nd MarDiv.-123 percent; 2nd FSSG- 122 percent; MCAS New River-120 percent; and the Naval Dental Clinic with 109 percent.

The CFC drive is scheduled to end Nov. 15.

Marines recognized

Two Marines from 2nd Combat Engineer Bn., were selected as 2nd MarDiv. NCO and Marine of the Quarter, Sept. 20.

Corporal Samuel R. Blake, H&S Co., and LCpl. Thomas K. Turnpaugh, Charlie Co., took the awards at division-level selection boards. Each Marine will receive complimentary benefits from base services and a Noncommissioned Officers Association plaque.

The 5th and 14th Defense Bn. Association celebrated their 50th anniversary by holding a reunion in Wilmington, Oct. 18-20. During the reunion the members and their spouses visited Camp Lejeune for a tour of the new combat town and two static displays given by Operational Readiness Float, 2nd Maint. Bn., 2nd FSSG and 2nd MarDiv. A unique aspect of this battalion was their Barrage Balloon Platoon which played an important part during World War II by defending bases against air attack. The blimp-like balloons were used by the Corps from 1941 to 1943. The Barrage Balloon Training School was located at Courthouse Bay.

Property class held

Anyone expecting to PCS, retire or separate from the service in the near future who may need information on moving is invited to attend the Personal Property Briefing on Nov. 13 from 9 to 11 a.m. at Marston Pavilion. The class, which is held monthly, answers questions such as what you can move and to where. For more information, call Ruth Evans at 451-2377.

Marine Corps Marathon full

For the first time in the 15-year history of the Marine Corps Marathon, the field limit of 13,000 competitors has been reached; therefore, no further applications are being accepted. For more information, contact the Marine Corps Marathon, P.O. Box 188, Quantico, VA., 22134 or call 1-703-640-2225.

Operation Desert Shield Giant T-Shirt Signing

Today and tomorrow, families of Marines and sailors participating in Operation Desert Shield are invited to the Camp Lejeune Main Exchange to sign a Giant T-Shirt in support of their loved ones. The T-shirt, big enough to fit King Kong, will be covered with family's signatures and then taken to Washington, D.C. where Willard Scott will present it on the Today Show, on Nov. 8. Once completed the shirt will be sent to our Marines and sailors in the Middle East. The giant T-shirt is an exact replica of shirts being sold around the country. Proceeds from the T-shirt sales are going to support the USO.

FSC holds classes

The Family Service Center will hold the following classes: a Health Benefits Class, Nov. 15 from 9 to 10:30 a.m.; Stress Management Nov. 16, from 1 to 3 p.m.; Getting the most out of your money, Nov. 19 from 9 to 11:30 a.m.; and a Veterans Administration entitlements class from 9 to 10 a.m. All classes will be held in the Family Service Center. For more information, or to register, call 451-5417/5997.

The Oldest Americans

American Indian's heritage remembered in November

Story and photos by
CPL. E.H. HUGHES

The image will forever be engraved in the American conscience; Marines atop Mt. Suribachi, raising the American flag high above the battlefield of Iwo Jima. One of the fine weary warriors who helped in the memorial flag raising was Ira Hayes, a member of the Pima tribe, and one of 25,000 Native Americans who answered the country's call to arms.

November is Native American Indian Heritage Month. Also it is a time when we celebrate Thanksgiving with family and friends; counting our blessings and expressing gratitude for everything good bestowed upon us. As we sit down to the holiday feast, it is appropriate to remember that without the assistance of the American Indian, our lives would be much different today.

The Thanksgiving feast itself would probably look pretty strange. A look at the common names for Indian domesticated plants and animals demonstrates the influence of Indian life upon our own. Given the fact that it took centuries to domesticate plant foods to the point of high yield in those days, if the Indians had not done so for corn, potatoes, sweet potatoes, cassava and other, perhaps the Anglo-Europeans would have never done so.

The turkey, the traditional main course of the Thanksgiving meal, is today the only American animal to be raised commercially on a large scale simply for food. The domestication of the bird dates back before Columbus.

Native Americans also domesticated many plants used as narcotics and medicines, such as tobacco. As tobacco is a major source of health problems, it is difficult to list as a major contribution to society. However, it is noteworthy that in less than two centuries after being brought from the New World to Europe in 1558, the widespread use had encircled the globe. This illustrates the rapid acceptance of a product grown by a people thought to be inferior by the "civilized" world.

The number of medicinal plants and herbs used by Indians has decreased since 1880. Many have been replaced by modern drugs and synthetics, but most of the natural drugs made from plants by the Colonists in America were known in some form by Indians.

Indian clothing styles, jewelry, art and architecture have all been incorporated into our culture. Pueblo houses are very popular in the Southwest; Navaho blankets can be found in many homes; hammocks have gained acceptance all over the world; and Eskimo carvings as well as Cherokee baskets are popular decorative items.

Even the English language has borrowed from the Indian. Vast numbers of geographical names in the United States and Canada are derived from Indian languages—5,000 in New England alone, and 24 of our states have Indian names. We also see Indian words such as "hominy," "succotash," "toboggan," and "moccasin" used frequently.

The Native American also figures prominently in our classic literature, such as Longfellow's, "Hiawatha" and Cooper's, "Deerslayer". The Western motion picture and television dramas would not be the same without him. In a way, you could say that without the Indian, there might never have been a John Wayne, a Gary Cooper, or a Lone Ranger.

All through our history, some rather distinguished Indian figures have earned a prominent place for themselves and their people. From Pocahontas and Sacagawea to Chief Sitting Bull and Jim Thorpe, the list of Native Americans who left their mark upon this nation is impressive.

Standing tall and proud, this hand-carved cigar store Indian chief is an example of the picture most people have of the Native American. Enduring many hardships, the Indian still maintains a rich legacy.

In the military, Indians acted as scouts, guides and translators, even as the Indian Wars were taking place. More recently, Native Americans Ernest Childers and Jack Montgomery of the famed Thunderbird Division received the Congressional Medal of Honor, Pawnee Brummett Echohawk trained commandos in hand-to-hand combat, and Osage Clarence Tinker of the Army Air Corps attained the rank of general before being killed in the Pacific during World War II.

Today, Native Americans continue to proudly serve as members of the Armed Forces. Here at Camp Lejeune, there are two officers and eight enlisted Marines of Indian heritage, perhaps many more.

The bloodthirsty savage reputation of the American Indian, mounted on horseback, swooping down on helpless white settlers was responsible for the massive dispossession of the race from their homelands, and their subsequent placement on reservations by the "manifest destiny" policy of the government.

Despite the many trials and tragedies of the Native American, he has endured, and to a great extent, overcome the hardships of the past.

Preserving a proud heritage, a member of the Conseen family displays examples of their craftwork to visitors of the North Carolina State Fair. The Conseens, full-blooded Cherokee Indians, have been making Indian baskets and beadwork crafts by hand since the 1800's.

“here six months and another stays nine months or a year. “The most important thing,” he continued, “is for us to maintain our fighting power. I’ll have a recommendation to the Joint Chiefs of Staff very soon, but one thing we should remember is that the rotation policy will be pegged very much by the ‘end game’—and the end game hasn’t been fully established by our policy makers.”

Another policy that hasn’t been fully established is that of rest and relaxation, and on that topic, General Schwarzkopf said there are suggestions under consideration, but nothing’s final.

“Rest and relaxation was established as a result of studies done during the Korean war,” he began, giving background on his answer. “They showed that when troops first began combat, they still take care of themselves, but after a period of time, they fall out of that, and become less effective.

“But you take them out of that combat. We’re

Army Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, CINC U.S. Central Command, speaks with troops participating in Operation Desert Shield, Aug. 27.

He paused before he went on. “What we’re looking at doing is getting troops to rotate from a field environment to somewhere where they can take a hot shower, sit by a pool, or just do nothing if they want to. That’s already happening with some of our forward units.”

The general said other suggestions including sending field units to a location close to Saudi Arabia, “where they could get away for two to three days or a weekend,” and long-term R&R.

“But we’re a long way from that six-month point. The rotation policy has to be set first. After all, if there’s a six-month rotation plan, what good would it do to have R&R every six months?

The general tackled broader topics with aplomb. Asked about his decision to field a lighter desert camouflage uniform that has less reinforcement at stress points (and are therefore more likely to rip and tear during strenuous operations), he took a “lesser of two evils” approach.

“My intention is to make the troop in the desert comfortable. I’ve been involved in this part of the world the better part of two years, and I once ran into an Air Force unit in the middle of Egypt during an exercise. Of all the things they could complain about, their main beef was that the uniform was too hot.

“I challenged the Army to do something about this, and they’ve responded with the new uniform,” The general continued. “My theory is this—if I can put that soldier, Marine, airman or sailor into a lighter, more comfortable uniform, then I’ll do that. And if it tears or rips, we’ll simply replace it.”

He went on to discuss all-leather and jungle boots versus a boot especially made for the desert.

“We don’t have a satisfactory desert boot. The jungle boot was designed to let water out, when you get a hole in it, it lets sand in. And I don’t know about you, but I don’t like marching around with sand in my boots, your feet can get really hot.”

General Schwarzkopf said he again challenged the Army to do something about that, and the fruits of their labor will debut in November. “I’ve been promised a new boot that will be rough-surfaced, so it’ll be low-maintenance, and it’ll have a comfort band around the top. As I said, my intention is to make sure the troop in the desert is comfortable.”

And it wouldn’t hurt if the men and women here learned something about the desert and its people while they’re at it.

“One of the greatest benefits in my mind that we’ll derive out of us being here is the knowledge of the culture our servicemen will receive. The average American doesn’t understand this part of the world, and let’s face it, the people here don’t understand us either.

“They’re going to find that all Americans aren’t religious infidels, gangsters, or drug-addicted young people, and we’re going to find that all Arabs aren’t close-minded when it comes to religion, and that they all don’t go around trying to blow up people they don’t like,” Gen. Schwarzkopf said.

He added, however, that he doesn’t want servicemen to “win the war and lose the peace.”

“We don’t want a few of our people to make the people here believe all those things the extremists say about us. We want to accomplish our mission and leave a favorable impression on the Arabs at the same time.”

One theme that could have a major effect on mission accomplishment (albeit in a roundabout way) is rumor control. General Schwarzkopf, in his usual manner, answered a question regarding the topic bluntly.

“With rumors, you deal with them head-on; correct them if they’re false, and if they’re true, verify them with official information. One of my first initiatives was to get a radio station—not for rumor control, but because the men and women of our armed forces are bright and articulate and what they want are news, sports, and music, in that order.

“We wanted to make sure we got them that information.”

Another factor in mission accomplishment is interoperability between the joint services of U.S. Central Command. Given an example of a Marine ground unit calling for close-air support from an Army Apache unit, General Schwarzkopf said the mission has given the services the impetus to get the job done, no matter what.

The attitude is “We’ve got a job, let’s get it done right,” he said. “Here, I haven’t had to make any judgements regarding interoperability—the units are working it out among themselves.”

The general hasn’t had to interface in any potential squabbles between services of different nations either.

“It certainly is a very complex, diverse set of forces coming in from all sides. Decisions have to be weighed very carefully. But there haven’t been many problems because we’re all here for the same cause and I think that alleviates a lot of problems before they start.

“My job is to take care of the politico-military decisions that have to be made during any large deployment like this one. The warfighting is left to my component commanders and their staff,” the general said. He emphasized that as a joint operation, Operation Desert Shield has been extremely successful.

“CENTCOM’s force-in-readiness consists of COMIDEASTFOR (Navy for “Commander, Middle East Force”), I MEF, 19th Army Corps, and 9th Air Force. Each are essential in a joint environment,” the general explained.

“Now, I’d have been very uncomfortable having just the 82nd Airborne out here with no air cover, and that’s where the Air Force came in, providing that. Then the Marine Corps arrives—they’re highly mobile, and got here quickly. From a flow standpoint, you hear about a couple of ships broke down and that it should have gotten here faster; well that was never a showstopper; when we really needed it, it was all coming just fine and the flow was great.

“This is basically a contingency-force effort,” Gen. Schwarzkopf added. “The armed forces are obviously going to a contingency-based force, and this is obviously going to be a great learning experience for all the services as to what we are going to need in the future to execute this type of operation.”

The general went on, saying that although USCENTCOM doesn’t have a forward base in its area of responsibility, he didn’t feel it was necessary (because of the contingency-force effort), and has promised host governments that USCENTCOM has no intention of having a permanent base in the area if American presence isn’t wanted.

The 56-year-old general took time to reflect on a 34-year career that has given him opportunities to lead in Vietnam (where he served two terms), Europe and Grenada. He spoke of it as a cycle.

“Now, we’ve come full cycle and the wall has come down. To me that is a tremendously satisfying cycle because it says the policy of containment...of forward deployment the United States and its allies pursued was a successful application of military force.”

The general said, “I’ve been through the other part of that cycle, too. One of the blackest days in my life was the day Saigon fell. I got very close to many of the Vietnamese and I recognized that what they were fighting for was completely just.

“At the time I was stationed in Alaska, and I asked myself about the thousands of lives lost, the many years of U.S. military involvement, and the cost to the taxpayers not to mention the families of the people who were killed, and what was it for? At that time, it may have appeared it was for nothing. I’m not sure about that—I’m not sure whether it wasn’t a piece of the Berlin Wall coming down and being played out somewhere else.”

The general, who was quoted in the non-fiction book Friendly Fire as saying if he was ever in a combat situation again, he’d ask himself if it was worth it, was asked if Operation Desert Shield was indeed, “worth it.” He didn’t hesitate.

“Absolutely. Beyond the shadow of a doubt. Detractors have asked why are the troops defending oil? Why are they protecting a monarchy?”

“Well, anyone who asks that is dumb—there’s no other word for it. We would not be here unless it was in the best of American interests. We’re not fighting for oil, per se, but for world order. What if we stood back and did nothing and let Saddam Hussein get away with his blatant, naked raping of that country (Kuwait)? That would only tell every two bit dictator in the world the United States will look the other way if they invade their neighbor.

“Well, that’s not going to happen, and in Saddam’s case, I think the parallels between him and Hitler are completely valid. Look at how Hitler wanted to create a ‘master race,’ and how Saddam wants to create a ‘Pan-Arab’ nation, with, of course, himself as the leader. We don’t want history to repeat itself. Yes, this effort is worth it for world order.”

Patrol draws line in Saudi wasteland

BY SGT. T. SHEARER

SAUDI ARABIA—Sgt. Brian Renninger thrusts his fist into the air and instantly his squad drops to the prone position, facing outboard into the desert night. It's an instant reaction that releases Renninger; he's the leader of the 12 men.

The rifle platoon is on a night desert patrol. Hours of preparation and passing orders, covering what each man has to do, have jelled the three squads into a cohesive unit that clicks together.

Half-crouched, half-running, Renninger moves forward to where the platoon sergeant halted the patrol. Because his squad is in the rear of the platoon, Renninger isn't sure whether they've simply made one of the checkpoints or run into something that isn't supposed to be in the area that 1st Bn., 7th Marines calls home.

A few whispered words later Renninger returns to the center of his squad and the platoon rises in a domino effect and takes off on the second leg of the security patrol. They have covered 1,200 meters on the map and the first checkpoint is behind them. Renninger picks up the pace count, moving to Checkpoint Two. His men move silently and their keen eyes can be seen under cover brims scanning the flanks for movement.

As he walks, Renninger goes over the patrol warning order in his head. Before evening chow, he briefed the men in his squad on their part of the overall mission. Alpha Co. has been assigned to patrol the battalion's immediate area while other companies had been loaded into amphibious assault vehicles to do a far-reaching patrol of the regimental area.

The basics of a foot patrol are drilled into each rifleman until required reactions are as second nature as sight alignment at the rifle range. Renninger knows each man is up to speed on what to do: He's the one who taught them. He can trust them, and they can trust that he will lead them in the right direction.

"Patrolling out here is easy compared to some places we've trained," said Renninger, a few hours before the platoon left friendly lines. "We can get the fire teams spread out pretty good to cover a lot of ground. It's not like the jungle where you lose sight of everyone farther away than 15 feet.

"For two months the men of Alpha have been going through the desert drills. The fact that they could walk into harm's way at any moment rests heavily on their minds. But the confidence that they can deal with enemy fire is a comforting buffer."

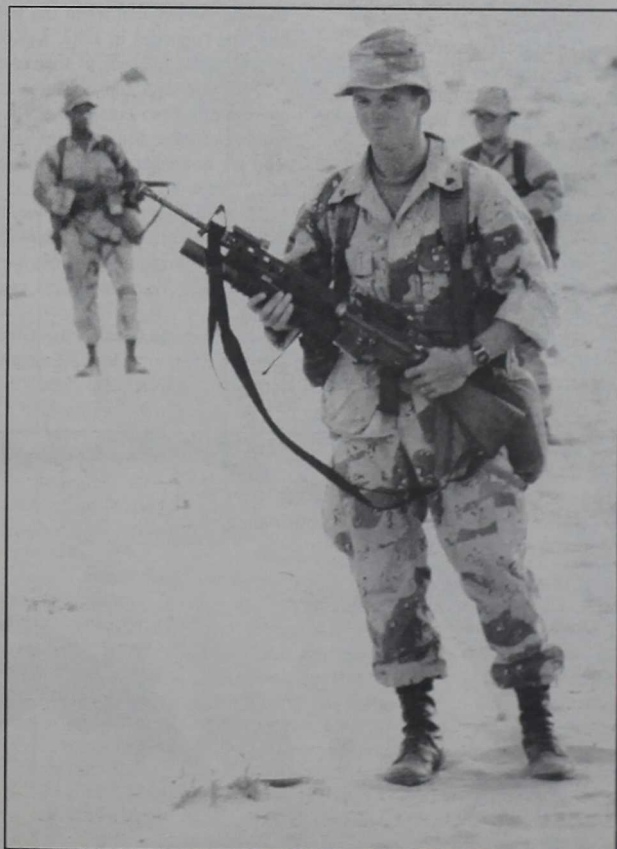

Renninger constantly drills his men to make sure they have the right answers to questions that will keep them alive. "What do you do if we have contact to the right front?" is a question he arbitrarily throws out to his men. The answer he's looking for comes from four directions in unison. "Move in the predesignated manner and cover the flanks."

"Right, and then I determine the type of contact and maneuver the squad to counter the attack," he said.

As the squad moved through the night, the training of months in the desert and years of practicing Marine Corps combat doctrine showed in the fluidity of their movements. As they covered miles of sand surrounding the battalion perimeter, Renninger's hand-and-arm signals were responded to like the barked commands of a drill instructor.

"I've noticed, over time, the debriefs after the patrols are getting shorter," Renninger said. "That means we're getting better."

"We're ready for whatever happens."

Rain always falls on October 23

SGT. JIM FITZGIBBONS

It rained at Camp Lejeune during the morning Oct. 23.

It always seems to rain around here on that day.

The dreariness adds to the sullen mood as people at Camp Lejeune and in Jacksonville are reminded of another Oct. 23 when a black cloud rose up from a barracks in Beirut.

When that black cloud disappeared and the rubble was cleared away, 241 American servicemen were dead. That day the rain was in the form of tears as families and friends of the servicemen tried to cope with their losses.

The rain this year didn't stop many of those same families and friends from attending a memorial ceremony at the Beirut Memorial here.

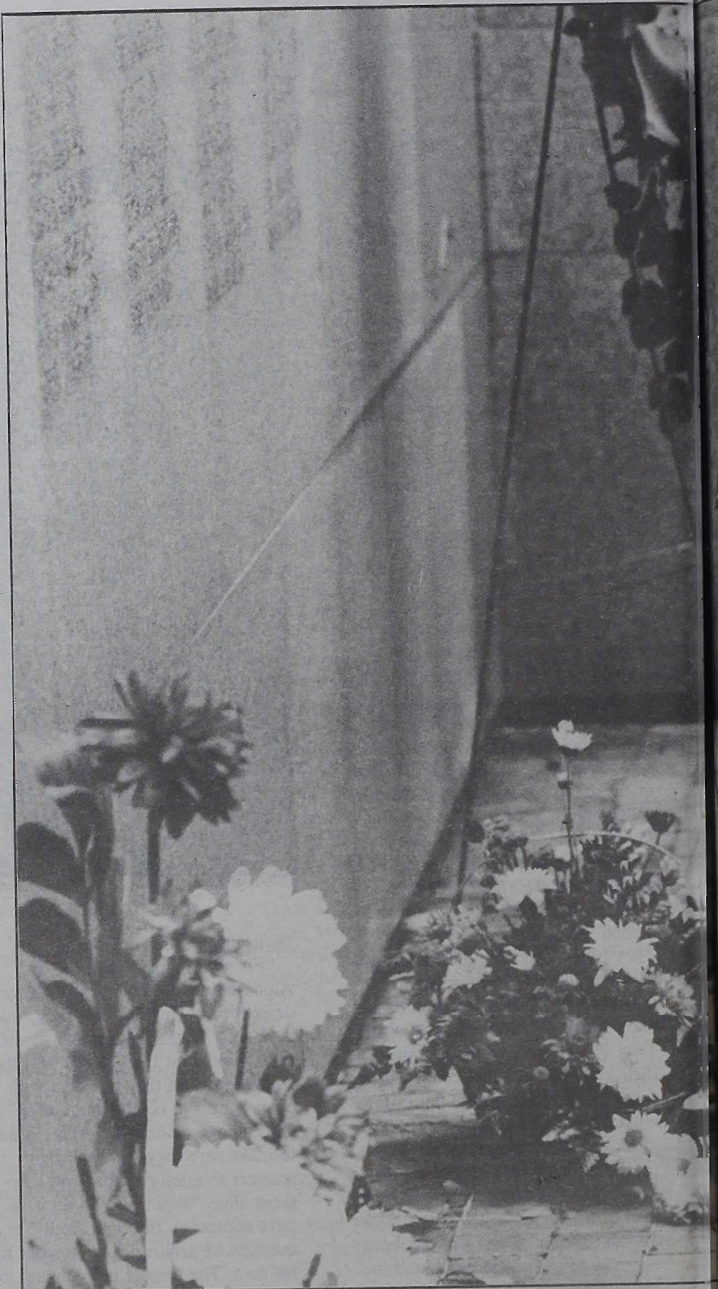

Though the rain cleared before the ceremony started, tears still rained from many of those remembering their special someone.

General A. M. Gray, Commandant of the Marine Corps, who commanded the 2nd Marine Division when the terrorist bombing happened in 1983, was one of several guests to speak at the ceremony.

"As I said then and still mean today, our job now is to take care of the families of those Marines and Sailors who are no longer with us," the general said. "We will."

When the ceremony was over, the families who attended moved to the wall where their loved ones' names are forever etched in stone. Many cried again.

For some, the tears always come ... just like the rain at Camp Lejeune seems to every Oct. 23.

"What is Faith?"

One day, a little girl and her father were walking through the woods behind their home. She was very inquisitive about everything she saw, and her father was patient to answer each question as honestly as he could. As they approached a creek, they noticed the only way to get to the other side was to walk across a fallen tree that bridged the gap. The girl was scared to try and balance herself on the log and asked her father to carry her. He agreed and as he took his first step on the log bridge, his daughter asked a rather pointed question. She asked, "Daddy, what is faith?" The father was surprised by the question, but proceeded to answer. He asked his daughter, "Are you scared?" She assured him that she wasn't and added that she wasn't scared as long as her daddy held her. He then asked, "But what if I drop you?" His daughter looked at her father with childlike faith and said, "You wouldn't, because you love me too much to let me go."

It is the same in our relationship with God. Through the experience evidenced in His world, through the love that he has provided us, through his continued care and guidance, we should be able to have the same assurance, the same faith, in our heavenly father as the little girl had in her earthly father!

Consider where you are currently placing your trust, if your answers are confusing, and questions arise, come see a Chaplain for guidance and let him help you place your faith in something that will last.

Collect labels for base day care

CPL. KIM BUCKNER

Household trash means money for Camp Lejeune's Child Development Centers. Labels and proofs of purchase from various products normally thrown away can be used by the centers to buy playground equipment and developmental toys.

The Wee Care Program is sponsored by the Overseas Service Corporation and "Off Duty" magazine, and is designed to benefit DoD day care centers. The centers receive money from manufacturers for label returns on designated Wee Care products.

The Hadnot Point, Midway Park and Tarawa Terrace Child Development Centers along with the Human Services Directorate are collection points for the labels. The Human Services Office is Bldg. 302 and is located on Holcomb Boulevard.

Labels will be collected through December. The results will be tallied and a check sent to Camp Lejeune in March.

The following list of product labels designated for the Wee Care program:

not only to their fathers or mothers, but sending letters to an "Any Marine" address established by the post office.

However, one 7-year-old in Florida, decided she wanted to show her support in a different way.

After seeing a broadcast on television of the troops in the desert and an explanation from her father, a retired Marine, Christy Clements made her decision.

"My daughter has been watching the news lately and started asking questions about the heat in the desert and the Marines stationed there," said Henry T. Clements Jr., Christy's father. "I explained to her the difference between jungle heat and the dry heat of the desert and mentioned the dangers of desert heat."

"She asked me if she could use her Christmas money to buy Gatorade and send it to the Marines," he said.

"I thought the Marines might be hot and need something to drink," Christy explained.

After receiving permission from her parents, Christy gathered her savings to purchase a case of the Gatorade.

"I took her to the store and she proudly announced to the checkout lady that she was buying the Gatorade for the Marines in the desert," Clements said.

Because of such genuine concern from the young lady, the manager of the grocery store also gave Christy a second case to send to the Marines.

"I was very proud of her offer and even more so when I thought back to my Marine Corps days (Vietnam)," Clements said.

With the Gatorade in hand Christy and her father returned home and proceeded to call Camp Lejeune.

After a conversation with Maj. J.J. Anzaldúa, Base Motor Transport Officer, who was the OOD on that particular evening, the Clementses mailed the Gatorade to Anzaldúa.

After receiving the Gatorade, Anzaldúa gave the packages to the Base Logistics Officer who turned it over to the Public Affairs Office here.

The Gatorade is now on its way to the Marines in the desert with a blessing from Christy.

"I wish the Marines good luck," said the bright young lady.

Here's proof that a practical car doesn't have to be boring to look at...or to drive. In fact, being practical never felt so good. The all-new Mazda 323 is a stylish 3-door hatchback, and it's ideal for loading everything from luggage to lawn chairs. Also practical are its compact exterior dimensions that make for easy city parking and maneuvering. But when the chores are done, this hatchback is also fun to drive, thanks to a responsive 1.6-litre SOHC engine, patented independent rear suspension, and a slick-shifting 5-speed transmission. So come test-drive the Mazda 323—the practical way to play.

Marine Corps boxers knock out Navy in seven of eight bouts

LCPL. ANDREW B. YURASEK

Well, it's boxing season again and Roosevelt Sanders Jr., coach of the Marine Boxing Team here, led his men into the ring Saturday night at Goettge Memorial Field House to fight against the Navy team from Quantico, Va.

The Marines were victorious, losing only one bout to the sailors.

There were eight bouts, three of which won by the referee stopping the competition.

Each of the matches was three three-minute rounds.

The first pugilists were Petty Officer 3rd Class Anthony Burton and LCpl. Martin Rea in the flyweight division.

The boxers battled it out for the full three rounds, Rea winning by decision.

In the second bout, junior lightweight Cpl. Anthony Pena was matched against Seaman Julian Wheeler. Wheeler won by decision, giving the Navy its only win.

In the 139-pound class, Cpl. Didier Hughes won his match against Larry Adams by decision.

"The team's goal is to compete successfully in the Armed Forces. Anything above that is gravy."

— Coach Roosevelt Sanders Jr.

Corporal Jesse Lucero, outpointed Seaman Darrel Wheeler in a toe-to-toe welterweight bash.

As the weight classes went up, so did the action. In the fifth bout, LCpl. Robert Allen pummeled Seaman David Landriault in the 156-pound weight class.

Allen won by the referee stopping the competition 2:48 into the first round.

In the second junior middleweight match, Cpl. Johnny Burgess stopped Petty Officer 3rd Class Richard McLaughlin 1:55 into the first round.

Goodwill Games Bronze medalist Cpl. Michael Demoss met Michel Prayer in the 165-pound weight class, but not for long when Demoss won by RSC 1:13 into the second round.

Lance Cpl. Douglas Liggion brought up the rear in his heavyweight bout against Howard Alston. Liggion went three rounds and came out victorious by decision, adding to the total of seven wins and only one loss for this very promising boxing team.

Pups win first in Homecoming

CPL. DAVE HIGGINS

It's always nice to get the first win of the season; but if that accomplishment comes during the Homecoming game, the smell of victory is twice as sweet.

The Lejeune High School Devilpups grabbed a Friday 8-0 winner against the Topsail Pirates.

The defensive squad of LHS came to life for the first time this season, as the Pirates were blanked by key stoppers from Isaac Hendrix and Mark Mullins.

Lejeune clawed its way out of the Coastal Plains Conference basement, leaving Topsail to hold the league toilet with an 0-9 overall record.

The Devilpups put together a good first offensive drive, but the Pirates dug in to hold LHS on a fourth-and-one attempt.

Topsail came downfield but was halted, having to settle for a field goal try from the 31-yard line. The kick by Pirate Donnie O'Neil was to the left and bounced in the end zone, giving the Pups the ball with three minutes remaining in the first quarter.

Ball possession flip-flopped until just under four minutes to the half.

Topsail's defensive eleven had made a superb goal-line stand; but the Pirates were lacking offensively, and found themselves in an end zone punting situation. The center's snap sailed through the field's end, and gave LHS a 2-0 halftime lead.

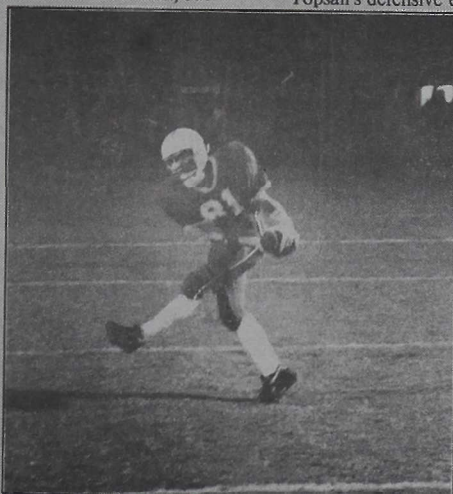

After the crowning of this year's Homecoming Queen at halftime, Lejeune paid homage to the new queen with a 61-yarder for the game's only touchdown.

Quarterback Randy Lenard hurled the flats-pass left for 26 yards. Senior Russell Houle netted the toss, and sped in the needed 35 yards.

The extra-points pass was incomplete, leaving the score 8-0.

The Pirates attempted numerous fourth-down attempts in the remaining 20 minutes of play, but never put together enough to drive past the goal line.

Freshman sensation Corey Price gained 86 big yards for the Pups, who conclude the 1990 season Friday night at 3-5 Dixon High School.

Lejeune Devilpup receiver Russell Houle finds himself wide open for a pass during Homecoming Friday.

Engineers whip SRIG

LCPL. ANDREW B. YURASEK

The Game of the Week for Week Two in intramural flag football was the early game Oct. 24.

The Engineers, who are 2-1, were matched up with 1-2 SRIG. Or was it a match?

The Engineers took advantage of SRIG's team, which seemed ill prepared for the game, winning 21-0.

The Engineers scored three touchdowns and made all of their extra point attempts.

SRIG made some promising attempts to score by changing their quarterbacks three times, but fell short of the goal line every time.

2nd Medical Bn. vs. HqSpt. Bn.

The first game in Week Two of intramural flag football was a blow-out when 2nd Med. beat HqSpt. 20-0 Oct. 22.

8th Engineer's kicker, LCpl. M.A. Green, kicks off an easy game against SRIG.

"Doc" quarterback Petty Officer 3rd Class Terry Watts threw a touchdown pass to Petty Officer 3rd Class James Henneghen, and threw to Petty Officer 3rd Class Ronald Richardson for a two-point conversion.

Watts then handed off to Petty Officer

2nd Class James Harris who ran 40 yards into the end zone.

On the three yard line, with three seconds left, Watts ran 76 yards for the touchdown.

2nd Dental vs. MCSSS

The action was heated when MCSSS outwitted the Dental Dogs 18-13 Oct. 22.

MCSSS quarterback Sgt. Jose Velez threw touchdown passes to LCpl. Berry Jackson and Pfc. Robert Hill.

MCSSS was behind 13-12, and the Dental Dogs punted to protect their win. Unfortunately, the punt was short and with three seconds left on the clock, Velez threw a 22 yard stealth pass to unseen and uncovered Cpl. Robert Loviseck.

8th Engineers vs. Postal

The Engineers won 19-12 in the game against Postal Oct. 23.

HqSpt. Bn. vs. SRIG.

SRIG nipped HqSpt. in its first game last week winning 12-6 in the 6 p.m. game Oct. 23.

In the first half SRIG quarterback LCpl. Robert White threw a 15-yard TD pass to LCpl. Howard Harding.

HqSpt. rallied with its only score before the half.

SRIG's second quarterback Cpl. Derick Rowry to put the game in the bag when he threw to Harding for the games final score.

HqSpt. Bn. vs. MCSSS

Triple "S" was a no-show for the meeting between the two teams Oct. 24 giving HqSpt. Bn. an easy win.

2nd Medical Bn. vs. H&S Bn.

The Doctors overtook H&S 7-0 in the early game Oct. 25.

Quarterback Petty Officer 3rd Class Terry Watts ran in the games only touchdown and passed to Petty Officer 3rd Class Ronald Richardson for the extra point.

LSB vs. 2nd Marines.

2nd Mar. bested LSB 6-0 in the late game Oct. 25.

Red and Gold title races getting tighter

CPL. DAVE HIGGINS

After seven weeks of intramural eight-man football, the quest for the Red and Gold Leagues' top honors has dwindled to only a half-dozen of the total 14 teams.

The post-season of tackle football is still under consideration, but three teams could still be considered contenders for each league's titles after the seventh week.

GOLD LEAGUE

10th Marines — The artillerymen didn't let the lack of practice during an extended field exercise play a factor in the Saturday make up game against winless 2nd Radio Bn., Saturday.

The Yellow Jackets rolled over Radio, 30-12, to put them in a dead heat with MCSSS for the Gold lead. Barring a loss by either team in Week Eight, 10th Mar. and Triple "S" will have a showdown for the Gold at "O" Street Saturday at 9 a.m.

MCSSS — Capitalizing on the absence of 10th Marines, MCSSS set 4-1 HqSpt. Bn., MCB an additional game behind with a 33-28 clipping on Oct. 24. The win also put MCSSS into a no-lose situation with an extra win above the cannon-cockers.

MCSSS had only "below-500" teams to face after week seven, while 10th Marines plays current Red League contender, H&S Bn. Monday at 8 p.m.

HqSpt. Bn., MCB — Base had a hard week following the MCSSS heartbreaker with a replay of the last five minutes of the Oct. 3 contest against MACG-28.

The trick play utilized by MCB for two TD's, including the game winner against the Air-Wingers, has been ruled illegal.

While HqSpt. was again victorious, the final score was changed to a narrow 16-14 win.

An extra loss by MCSSS or 10th Marines would give MCB a good shot at the gold, if it can get by H&S Bn. in the late game Nov. 13.

RED LEAGUE

2nd AA Bn. — The amtrackers are the current favorite to become the All-Camp champions, if a playoff between Red and Gold takes place this year, as in years past.

Although idle in week seven, AA Bn.'s unblemished 6-0 record was Camp Lejeune football's finest.

Unless a "spoiler" comes along, 2nd AA Bn. should end the season with a perfect record.

H&S Bn. — A stunning second half come from behind win over 2nd Supply Bn. demonstrated the team's determination to remain in the hunt for Red in October.

Supply had blanked H&S with 18 first-half points Oct. 23, but intestinal fortitude gave H&S a 22-18 victory.

Fate is in H&S's own hands, as they face two contenders in weeks nine and 10.

2nd CEB — The combat engineers held off CSSD-21, 20-18, Oct. 22, but face the Gold League leaders in the final two weeks' pairings.

With two losses after week seven, CEB needs a loss by H&S and two of the same by 2nd AA Bn.

Playoffs over Lejeune Spikers ousted by Southwest Onslow

CPL. DAVE HIGGINS

Lejeune's girls gave it their all, but were narrowly ejected from the state volleyball playoffs by Coastal Plains 1-A Conference rival Southwest Onslow County High School at Goettge Memorial Field House, Oct. 23.

A flip of a coin had given LHS the CPC second seeding over Southwest, with whom they had split regular season matches.

Having clobbered its first two playoff opponents, the Devilpups looked confident, but lost the first game, 15-9.

Lejeune rallied in the second game behind the leadership of Nikki Vesely and Jill Kalata, to answer with a 15-8 victory.

Rita Browder's front-line superiority gave the Pups a come from behind 15-12 win and a 2-1 game lead after three.

The Stallions regrouped from two deficits to take a 16-14 snip, to tie the match by a whisker.

The match's heat intensified as the score was even six times during the deciding game.

Southwest set out with three hard-fought points, but LHS scrapped to tie the game at four.

"It is imperative that we have fun when playing Southwest," said Pups coach Pam Lindner to her team after it had gained a 6-4 lead.

With consecutive stuffs at the net by Browder and Karen Ola, LHS appeared to be enjoying its 11-7 advance.

The Stallions' persistence took over, however, to put the visitors into a 12-12 tie.

The deadheat continued to 13 before the pressure took its toll on the Devilpups, who hit the two final returns into the net and handed victory to Southwest.

Rita Browder eases the ball over the net to give Lejeune a 7-6 lead during the final game against Southwest, Oct. 23.

Most car owner manuals recommend radiator flush & fill at 25,000-30,000 mile intervals. Under operating conditions, ethylene glycol (antifreeze) within the radiator system begins to break down and the many rust-inhibiting additives in the coolant are literally used up and lose their ability to prevent rust.

Operation Desert Shield

Send your holiday wishes to a loved one in the Gulf.
Marlboro invites you to record a Voice Card, free.

To a servicemember stationed in the Gulf, what could be more appreciated than hearing a friendly voice from home. If someone you love is overseas and involved in Operation Desert Shield, now you can send them your love in a unique holiday card, free.

It's called a Voice Card. And it carries your personal ten-second message that plays back when a button is pressed inside the card. This way, your best wishes, news and greetings for the holidays will be heard loud and clear.

The times and locations for making a Voice Card recording are listed below. Please remember to bring your servicemember's mailing information with you.

Your Voice Card is a holiday gift from Marlboro.
