CG's CORNER

My question concerns the mandatory wearing of covers inside a privately owned vehicle. This is an annoyance and enlisted Marines do not salute while driving a vehicle. It would also be simpler and safer for officers to just acknowledge a salute rather than having to return a salute from a vehicle. Would it be possible to make wearing a cover inside a privately owned vehicle an option aboard Camp Lejeune?

Your letter concerning the wear of a service cap is acknowledged and your concern is appreciated. Although I have certain latitude in designating how the uniform may worn by Marines in the Camp Lejeune area, you must understand both Navy and Marine Corps uniform regulations prescribe just how far those freedoms may be carried. In this case, both Navy and Marine regulations require the cover to be worn in a vehicle on military installation unless impractical or hazardous. Although to some, wearing the service cap in a vehicle may be uncomfortable or annoying, that is no basis for me to consider changing the base regulations.

Additionally, I have found no instances on record where an accident was directly attributed to an officer returning a salute while operating a vehicle. Therefore, I must deny your request to consider it an individual's option to remain uncovered while in a vehicle. Your initiative and continued interest in our standards of dress are most welcomed.

John J. Brett, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Research, Engineering and Systems designate, visited Monday and Tuesday. Brett's tour included a briefing on the Marine Air Ground Task Force, a cold weather exercise/equipment and ration display, an M198-155mm/Mule brief, rides in a light armored vehicle and, as pictured here, an amphibious assault vehicle 2nd AAV Battalion. # Civil servant completes 40 years of service

Editor's note:

This feature story is the first in a series highlighting civilian workers who have made contributions to the base; in conjunction with the 46th Birthday of Camp Lejeune.

Story by Cpl. Amy J. Cobbeldick

Harold White says he has seen many changes in Jacksonville and can still remember when Lejeune Boulevard was a dirt road.

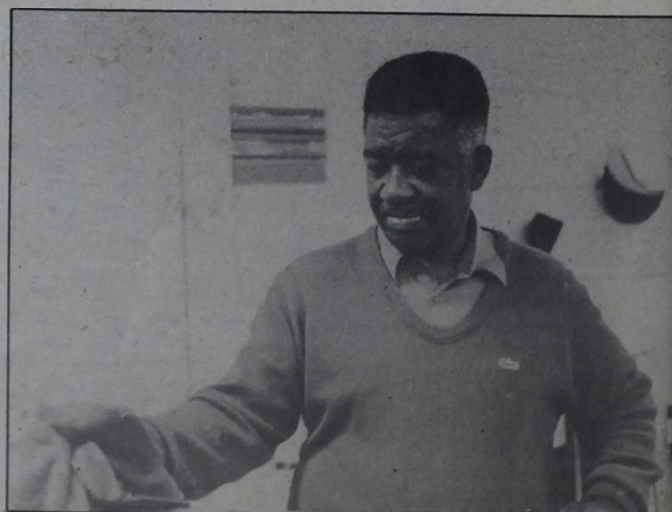

White celebrated his 40th year of Civil Service, April 1. The 68-year-old Anslow County native began working for Special Services, but the majority of his service has been at the Paradise Point Golf Course as the issue-point attendant.

"I really love working at the golf course. The people are friendly and the atmosphere around the course is so pleasant." The job is demanding, but not as stressful as other jobs I could be doing", White said.

White said he didn't realize at first he would spend 40 years here, but he liked the job and the years just flew by. "I would spend another 40 years here if I could. General J. C. Burger, former Commanding General of Marine Corps Base was someone I looked forward to seeing at the course. I would have lemonade for the party of four at the ninth hole every time. The General could count on me," said White.

Harold has many friends, including ducks that have made Paradise Point their home. They usually get a free lunch, according to White.

If lunch is late, the family of Mallards comes right up to the club house squawking for a little piece of bread or anything left out of Harold's lunch bag.

"The ducks don't get anything when I get fried chicken in my lunch; fried chicken is my favorite food," said White.

"It's funny," said White. "I have worked here for 40 years but have never been in the military, have seen three wars and never drafted, and I don't even play golf."

Law Day '87

Two military legal organizations here are combining their efforts to present a host of activities in observance of Law Day and Law Week, May 1-8.

The Legal Services Support Section, 2nd Force Service Support Group and Marine Corps Base Legal Office are conducting classes in legal matters, mock trials and court-marshal at various locations aboard Camp Lejeune and local high schools.

Today, LSSS will conduct Law Day classes at Lejeune High School throughout the day.

On May 1, Law Day, there will be a Legal Assistance Booth at the main Marine Corps Exchange. There will also be a mock trial of a drunk-driving offender presented at Lejeune High School.

A Law Day luncheon will be held at the Officer's Club, with the honored guest, Chief Judge R.O. Everett.

Legal Service Support Section will also conduct several mock court marshals in a field environment during the upcoming operation Solid Shield-87.

Additional events will be held, May 5 at the Base Theater and May 6 and 13 at Brewster Middle School.

Additional activities associated with Law Day/Week will appear in future editions of the Globe.

Secretary of the Navy sends his farewell after six years

John F. Lehman, Jr.

After six years as Secretary of the Navy, I go ashore with very mixed emotions. It is difficult to leave the best job in the world, but it is time to spend more time with my family. My regrets are tempered by the satisfaction of seeing today a Navy and Marine Corps more capable than at anytime in our peacetime history.

We in Washington are often given the credit for this magnificent resurgence of strength and morale. While President Reagan is undoubtedly the father of this historic military recovery, I know that is all of you - the sailors, Marines and civilians, who have really brought about this achievement.

It has been the most exciting experience of my life to have had the privilege of working with you all these past six years. I have often been asked in recent weeks what has been the major accomplishment of the past six years. The answer is not those most visible things like the 600 Ship Navy, but rather the restoration of the self-confidence and sense of historic mission of our naval service. That, in turn, has been restored because we have returned to that most important of all our Naval traditions.

We are not "human resources" and statistics or boxes on a Bureaucratic chart. We delegate to them authority, responsibility and accountability. If we never lose sight of these principles, we will always have a Naval service worthy and capable of its mission as the foundation of American security. Tomorrow I return with pride to the drilling Naval Reserve, and I look forward to serving with you in the years ahead.

MAB completes Cold Winter '87

Story by SSgt. Mike Stroup

Combatants from Camp Lejeune recently returned from extensive cold-weather training in Norway, where they participated in NATO Exercise Cold Winter-87.

The 4th Marine Amphibious Brigade joined with the 6th Division, Norwegian Army March 20-25 for the bi-annual winter field exercise, scheduled by the Commander, Allied Forces North Norway, and conducted by the Commander, 5th Division for Brigade North and other Norwegian training units.

During the exercise, 4th MAB, augmented by the British 1st Para Battalion, Norwegian 3rd Battalion, Brigade North and other Norwegian home guard units, were opposed by the British and Dutch Marines, the United Kingdom and Netherlands landing Force, and the 1st and 2nd Battalions of Brigade North.

For the first time during a winter exercise in northern Norway, the Commanding General of 4th MAB, Brig. Gen. Matthew P. Caulfield, commanded the south forces with operational control of allied units.

Fourth MAB was comprised of the Command Element, Headquarters 4th MAB, Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek Norfolk, Va., and the Aviation Combat Element of Marine Aircraft Group-14 (Forward), Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N.C. The other elements were the Ground Combat Element, Regimental Landing Team-2 and the Combat Service Support Element, Brigade Service Support Group-4, both from Camp Lejeune.

Arctic skills training began in early January for the Marines of RLT-2, with 30 days of a Battalion Operations Course at the Mountain Warfare Training Center, Bridgeport, California.

From there the RLT went to Fort McCoy, Wis., to participate in the Alpine Warrior-87 field training exercise, March 6-8. This training was designed to mirror the scenario of the Norwegian exercise, and was where many 4th MAB Marines received initial Arctic skills.

Throughout the related training, the focus remained on increasing individual combat proficiency, particularly in a hostile cold-weather environment, of the U.S. Marine Corps' most formidable weapon—the individual Marine rifleman.

The experiences of two such Marines exemplified those of virtually all participants in the training, designed to assure combat victory in any cold-weather environment.

A native of Rhode Island, Lance Cpl. Christopher J. Maderia was no stranger to freezing winters, but his experiences as a civilian did not prepare him for the lessons he learned at Bridgeport. Maderia was with Headquarters and Service Company, 3rd Battalion, 4th Marine Regiment, 2nd Marine Division.

"It's a matter of survival; surviving to accomplish a combat mission in spite of the environment," said Maderia. "A casualty is still a casualty, and it doesn't matter if it's caused by enemy fire or frostbite."

To avoid becoming casualties, the Marines learned how to take care of themselves. Physical well-being translates directly to fighting ability, a matter of life or death and mission accomplishment.

The Marines also learned how to protect equipment against the cold.

"We kept a very thin coating of lubricant on our weapons and kept them under guard outside of our tents," explained Maderia. "If the weapons were warm from being inside, then taken outside, condensation would form and freeze, possibly jamming the weapons."

Another Marine who learned the lessons only severe cold weather can teach was Lance Cpl. William V. Hatch, a machine gun-team leader of 3rd Squad, Kilo company, 3rd Battalion, 2nd Marine Regiment, 2nd Marine Division.

"Simply moving from one place to another can be cumbersome and fatiguing," said Hatch, who grew up in Southern California. "Our M-60 machine gun weighs almost 20 pounds. Add another 10 pounds for ammunition and 40-50 pounds of field gear, then climb some mountains with skis and snow shoes, and you'll see what I mean."

Hatch's team did make it to the top of mountains during the training, and back again over the snow and ice through sub-freezing temperatures.

Perhaps there lies the most important learning experience for an individual participant in NATO Exercise Cold Winter-87—the proof from personal experience that an individual can in fact accomplish the mission, despite a harsh cold weather environment.

CSSD Marines work to keep operation rolling

Story by Sgt. Rodney Germain

RAUDSKJER, Norway.—Like a 24-hour emergency road service, Combat Service Support Detachment (CSSD)-22's mobile repair Contact Teams were only a phone call away from helping stranded Marines during the 4th Marine Amphibious Brigade operation Cold Winter-87.

Because of the freezing temperature of Norway, Marines stranded in a vehicle on the road are more than inconvenienced. It actually becomes a matter of survival.

According to Gunnery Sgt. Oscar Olipane, CSSD-22 maintenance management chief, their whole purpose was to provide emergency services.

"If anyone needed emergency vehicle repair or a Contact Team, that request came through me first," he explained. "I was the middle man. Then I passed the information on to the appropriate section. After briefing them on the situation and type of equipment needed, we took immediate action on it."

Three sections shared the load, working around the clock to keep the operation rolling.

Engineer Support provided repairs for all generators, forklifts and derricks (backhoes). Ordnance provided teams for tanks, Light Armored Vehicles and amphibian assault vehicles, while Motor Transport provided wreckers for towing vehicles back when necessary.

"We tried to get as much information as possible so we can carry the parts necessary for repair with us," said Gunnery Sgt. James Maney, who oversaw all maintenance. "Usually, instead of having to drag the vehicle back with us, we could fix it at the site."

After receiving a call, a Contact Team was alerted to standby.

The job was still done, although they often worked without many of the necessary tools.

"It was extremely difficult for them working in the cold," said Maney, referring to the 15-degree Fahrenheit temperature. "It takes more time because it's harder to concentrate and they have to warm themselves often. Working on metal, almost nothing prevents fingers from freezing."

"These guys do a hell of a good job. They're a good group of Marines," added Maney.

Matthews and his team received the word that the transmission they were waiting on had arrived. After removing the whole 'power pack', the engine and transmission, they were ready to make the replacement.

"I've actually pulled a whole 'pack' by myself before in a couple of hours," said Matthews.

Running into problems, it took the team almost six hours. Even though, they still had the 'amtrac' ready by the time they promised.

"They gave us very good support," said Gunnery Sgt. William Lowery, AAVBn. Det. maintenance chief.

About eight hours later, the crew of the assault vehicle reloaded their gear and headed back to their unit. For the Contact Team, it was another long but productive night.

Sending another satisfied customer back to their unit, Matthews and his team proved again that nothing rolls continuously without good maintenance.

BSSG-4 the 4th Marine Amphibious Brigade's Combat Service Support Element positioned its Marines in tactical fighting positions around the CSSE perimeter during operation Cold-Winter 87. The CSSE was responsible for its own security in the rear during the five-day war March 20-25 in Northern Norway. (Photo by Sgt. Joseph Thibodeaux)

MONTH OF THE MILITARY CHILD

BMX rider Billy Washington, will be competing in the state competition, May 2. His parents, Sgt. William and Victoria Washington, are interested in helping others learn and participate in the sport and get a local trail built. For more information, contact David Lynch, Jacksonville Recreation and Parks Department at 455-2600, ext. 243. (Photo by Sgt. D.K. Holl)

BMX bikes provide safe recreation for riders

Story by Sgt. D.K. Holl

As summer vacation approaches for school children, many parents are wondering what they can do to make the most of those three months in the way of family outings and entertainment.

One Berkeley Manor family has been working hard on a plan that may interest other families who have children who ride BMX bikes.

Sgt. William Washington, Air Delivery Platoon, LSB, FSSG, and his wife, Victoria, decided to do more than listen sympathetically when their children complained of "not much to do" after their move here from California last June.

When their 12-year-old son, Billy, wanted to continue motocross, organized bike racing, his parents assisted in every way possible, including taking weekend trips to Raleigh and Fayetteville to the two closest trails.

Billy recently placed third in the novice expert division in a Capitol City BMX motocross event in Raleigh. He also took fourth in a two-day race against 500 racers that qualifies him for state championships in Fayetteville, May 2.

"Our son has been racing BMX bikes for two years and has won several races. It's an exciting sport and much safer than people usually think," said Victoria.

The riders must wear helmets and elbow and knee pads to race, and the bikes are also padded.

While the outings away from Jacksonville are enjoyable for the whole family, the Washingtons hope to get a trail started in this area soon, for both their family and other interested Jacksonville residents.

"There is a small non-competition bike trail at Northeast Creek Park in Jacksonville, but it doesn't meet the correct specifications for racing," said Victoria.

"I have spoken with the Mayor and the director of the Jacksonville Recreation and Parks Department and they are very willing to assist in getting a better trail started," she said.

"We will try to upgrade the current trail as soon as we get the correct specifications," said David Lynch, athletic director for the city Recreation and Parks Dept. "Once we find out the degree of interest of local and military residents we will act. Right now we are in the preliminary stages of planning."

"We are looking for racers who are interested in competitive racing and families who are interested in getting the local trail organized," said Victoria. "This is one way the entire family can enjoy the summer together and meet others with the same interests."

"All each racer really needs is a 20 inch BMX bike and proper safety gear. It's a great way to keep children busy and happy," she said.

All volunteers and interested area residents should contact David Lynch at the Jacksonville Recreation and Parks Department at 455-2600, ext. 243.

Refuelers get 'pumped up' for 24th MAU

Story by GySgt. J. Booker Simmons

Dust billowed from the rotor wash of the giant CH-53E helicopter, enveloping the landing zone. The rear hatch dropped and Marines emerged rolling hoses out and preparing them to be coupled to pumps.

The men, from Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-263, stationed at Marine Corps Air Station, New River were sitting up and employing a Forward Arming and Refueling Point.

"A FARP is employed in a tactical situation for refueling aircraft," said Sgt. Richard Kellie, HMM-263, site noncommissioned officer-in-charge. "With the FARP in place, we can support all types of aircraft, allowing them to be closer to the area of operation and supporting the ground combat element."

"We can support a large number of aircraft right from the CH-53," said Cpl. Richard Brandon, a native of Johnstown, Pa. "We carry the fuel in rubber bladders inside the 'bird' and then just run hoses out from there to the refueling point."

During this operation the squadron refueled six CH-46 helicopters for the 24th MAU. HMM-263 is the air combat element for the MAU. With all the people having individually assigned tasks and doing them quickly, the portable gas station doesn't take long to be put into operation.

"From the time the fueling helicopter is grounded and we have gas delivered at the nozzle is less than 15 minutes," said Cpl. Kevin Burns, a New Haven, Conn. native. "In a combat environment, this could prove invaluable to the ground troops who depend on air support."

"Ground troops also support the FARP by providing security," said Lance Corporal Robert Cooper, a Lake Cormorant, Miss. native. "We work together as a team to accomplish the mission."

This teamwork was demonstrated during this operation as the air and ground combat elements of the MAU rehearsed for a long range raid as part of its predeployment training. As the Marines scurried about setting up the pumps and hoses, Marines from Helicopter Support Team, MSSG-24, began positioning themselves to guide the helos in.

As the wheels of the CH-46's touched ground, Marines from 1st Battalion, 2nd Marines charged from them and deployed in a 360-degree security perimeter. Using two nozzles, the support Marines fed each of the thirsty helicopters 120 gallons of JP-5 fuel. This took less than 25 minutes. Not only was the operation completed quickly, it also demonstrated the flexibility that is a common requirement in Marine Corps operations.

"We'd refueled the last scheduled helicopter in the operation," said Burns. "There was a Cobra still in the area that needed some fuel. He'd seen us as we worked and when we were done, he asked for gas. We fueled him and sent him on his way."

With all the helicopters fueled successfully, the security force back aboard and the mission completed, the Marines rolled up their hoses, closed the hatches and left in a cloud of dust.

FMFLant Racquetball Tourney played here

Story by LCpl. Kari Jo Vaughan

The FMFLant Racquetball Tournament was on the courts April 13-17 at the Nautilus Sports Center in Jacksonville. Seventeen players from 2nd Force Service Support Group, MCAS Cherry Point and MCAS New River participated in the singles and doubles matches.

The competition was played in five divisions: open singles (any age), senior singles (age 35-39), master singles (age 40 and over), open doubles (any age) and senior doubles (age 35-39). The matches were fast-paced and play was intense.

"If I didn't think I was going to win I wouldn't step into the court. I step in there to win. I put my heart into the game and do the best I can. You have to want to play, want to be the best," said Master Sgt. Patricio Flores, MCAS Cherry Point, winner of the senior singles.

"Racquetball can be a dangerous sport. New players get hit with the ball a couple of times and then give up. To be a good player, you have to have patience. You have to learn not to chase after the ball. If you wait, the ball will come to you," said the 12-year racquetball veteran from San Angelo, Texas.

Most of these top Marine racquetball aces are getting their racquets ready for the East Coast Regional Tournament April 19-24 at MCAS Beaufort, S.C.

"I want to do well at the reg ultimate goal in racquetball is to be the Marine Corps on the All-Marine I feel great about my win in the FMFLant Tourney. The trophy is all," said Flores.

The overall winner of the tournament was 2nd FSSG.

Bad habits can lead to weight training injuries

Story by Tony Turkett, M.Ed.

Weight training has become a popular form of conditioning for both men and women. Without proper instruction, however, you can damage your muscles, bones and joints.

Overtraining. Train hard or long, but not hard and long. Don't train more than four days a week, or more than one hour per session.

Lack of Intensity. Complete repetitions until it is impossible to move that muscle...then stop.

Sloppy performance. Slow, steady movements get results. Don't race through repetitions or jerk when lifting.

Poor Warm-up. Muscles must be warmed up by doing a couple of sets of an exercise using lighter-than-normal weights.

Neglecting Muscles. Don't favor one or two muscle groups and exclude others. Train every part of the body with equal intensity to avoid muscle imbalances.

Lifting weights that are too heavy. Know your limit. If you are planning to lift heavy weights, have two spotters working with you.

Breathing. DO IT. Don't hold your breath when lifting weights. Inhale when lowering weights, exhale when raising.

Too Much Protein. A balanced, sensible diet is best. The importance of protein is often inflated.

Adding excess body weight. Don't increase caloric intake just because you're weight training. Increase in muscle mass comes only through high intensity training.

Poor Attitude. Give your workouts a worthwhile direction. Unrealistic goals only set the arena for failure.

BSSG-4 Marines meet for cold weather training

Story by Cpl. J.C. Saris

Preparation for cold weather training involves hours of lectures and lots of gear issue, but nobody said it has to be boring.

For the Leathernecks of BSSG-4, cold weather training preparation took a new twist. The commanding officers got together and implemented the preparation training into a cold weather field meet.

Though the temperatures at Camp Lejeune held in the mid-50s, these hard chargers donned full cold weather gear.

The first event of the training meet was the arctic tent construction. Teams of six Marines rushed to construct the tent as well as the Yukon stoves.

Next came the snow shoe race. Most of the racers had never had the shoes on before, much less seen snow. Shuffling is the best way to remain standing in snow shoes, but technique wasn't necessarily the answer to winning.

The third event was the sledge hammer dizzy izzzy. Fortunately, the Marines weren't allowed to carry the hammer back to the next participant. Fun and laughs were on the menu during this event.

The final event was a clothing race. The racers stripped down to their PT gear and lined up at the starting line. After a sprint back to their cold weather gear, with no help from their mothers, the Marines frantically raced to get dressed and get back to the starting point.

The final event of the day was the staff/officer egg toss. Not exactly connected to cold weather training, the event did offer the troops some entertainment.

The meet was a preparation for exercises in Wisconsin and Norway.

Master Sgt. Ted J. Jones, Division Maintenance Management Headquarters Battalion, 2nd Marine Division practices on WPT Hill field. It takes concentration, patience and agility to be a successful golfer. (C) LCpl. Kari Jo Vaughan)

Master Sgt. chips toward All-Marine Golf Team

Story by LCpl. Kari Jo Vaughan

Spring is in the air and the golfing Marine's mind turns to...birdies, bogies and eagles?

It does, if you're a golfer anxious to clean off your spikes and get onto the greens and fairways of your favorite course.

Just ask Master Sgt. Ted J. Jones, division maintenance management chief, Headquarters Battalion, 2nd Marine Division. Jones is the president of the New River Chapter of the North and South Golf Association and has been an avid golfer for the past five years.

"I love the game. It's such a competitive sport. Golf takes a lot of concentration, agility and patience. If your head isn't in the game, you won't play well. You have to always put mind over matter," Jones said.

Jones is able to keep that concentration while on the course, his numerous trophies won on the NSGA circuit are testimony to that. At the par 72 Paradise Point Golf Course here his hand giving him an average round of Jones thinks that his putting crucial to his low score.

"Once you're on the green, ferent game. It doesn't matter got there. I love to putt; it's the portant part of my game. Put make or break your game because adds that bogey shot or keeps you said the Pittsburgh native.

Jones will certainly use his keep his scores at or under par. I to do well in the Intramural Golf FMFLant Tournament and chip his way onto the All-Marine "If I can make the All-Marine will have reached my military golf I like that level of competition. I that All-Marine team. I'm deter do it this year," Jones said.

With continued practice at putting and chipping Jones should ing off to a great start toward his being an All-Marine caliber golfer

NOTICE TO ALL VETERANS

A Benefit You May Not Know You Have

Military Honor Garden - Your exclusive Veterans Garden is now opening at the coast's most beautiful memorial park. Seaside Memorial Park offers a benefit you may not know you have. You have seen on T.V. and read in the newspapers about the closing of one National Cemetery and the one nearest to us is expected to close in less than four (4) years. There is no National Cemetery in Onslow County and due to soaring costs, none is likely.

Because of great distance and accompanying transportation cost to a National Cemetery, a Veteran's Garden is now being opened at Seaside Memorial Park exclusively for Veterans and their families. As an honorably discharged veteran of the United States Armed Forces, you are entitled to and will be assigned burial property in our new Veteran Honor Garden.

You must however register for this benefit and verification of your serial number and discharge is required. The only cost to you is seventy-five dollars, which includes the amount required by state law for perpetual care. A deed to your burial property will be furnished.

Seaside Memorial Veteran's program has special survival benefits for spouse and all minor children. Seaside will also furnish a family Estate Planning Guide which includes information concerning cash benefits due to you from the United States Government. Due to the limited number of spaces available, these spaces will be reserved on a first come, first serve basis. To assure your reservation and receive your planning guide, mail coupon today or call today for an appointment.

I BECAME AS A JEW

by Ruth Abraham

"To the Jews I became as a Jew, in order to win Jews; to those under the law I became as one under the law — though not being myself under the law — that I might win those under the law. To the weak I became weak, that I might win the weak. I have been all things to all men, that I might by all means save some" (1 Cor. 9:20, 22)
