Camp Lejeune Update

Marine Corps Base receives new commanding general

Story by Cpl. Paul Younghaus

Brigadier General Louis H. Buehl III
CG, Marine Corps Base

Brigadier General Louis H. Buehl III took over as commanding general, Marine Corps Base, from Major General Donald J. Fulham in a change of command ceremony held at W.P.T. Hill field June 13.

MAJOR GENERAL AL Gray, commanding general, 2d Marine Division, was the commandant of the Marine Corps' representative at the change of command.

Prior to coming to Camp Lejeune, BGen. Buehl served as director, facilities and services division at Headquarters Marine Corps. In the 30 years since the general became a Marine he has served two tours in Vietnam and in numerous command and staff billets with the 1st, 2d and 3d Marine Divisions.

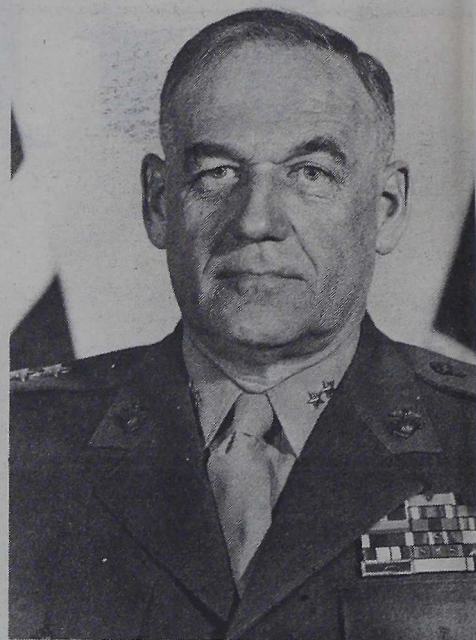

"I'm delighted to be here," BGen. Buehl said. "This is a magnificent base. I had been here as a commanding officer of a battalion landing team a number of years ago, so I know this base from the FMF commander's point of view.

"NOW, I LOOK forward to being the guy who provides the services after 30 years of using the services and facilities," he said.

The general said there are a couple of challenges facing him in his new job.

"I think one challenge facing me is in the area of economy and efficiency. There's no question that we have to make the dollar stretch further," BGen. Buehl said. "After spending two years in Washington appearing before Congress arguing for funds, it became clear very early on that Congress expects the Marine Corps to get the most out of the money allotted."

HE ALSO EXPLAINED that preserving a viable training base is probably the most challenging facet of his new job.

Major General Donald J. Fulham
AC/S, C-5

After MajGen. Fulham leaves Camp Lejeune, he will transfer to Korea where he will serve as assistant chief of staff C-5 under the command in chief, United Nations Command and Combined Forces Command, Seoul, Korea.

"It's been a very good tour here," MajGen. Fulham said. "But when you've got good people working for you, it's always a good tour."

DURING MAJGEN. FULHAM's tenure here, there have been improvements in housing, the commissary and on many of the base's ranges. Also, the new Navy Hospital was opened.

As for his upcoming tour in Korea: "I'm very excited," he said. "I haven't been there since 1954, so of course it's entirely different now."

"I'll be more involved with the infantry side of the house, which is more my bailiwick, so I'm glad to be getting back to that," MajGen. Fulham said. "This will also get me involved with many other countries and other militaries and I'm sure that will be very challenging."

Helping hands

Story by Cpl. Pamela Vajner

A helping hand in times of need does not always mean the lending of money. For the Navy Relief Society visiting nurses, it means long hours and the use of their gentle, skilled hands.

FOR MORE THAN 20 years, the Visiting Nurse Program has provided assistance and instruction to Marines, Sailors and their families.

The two registered nurses employed by NRS, Doris Gay and Nona Jones, have worked with the program here for 22 years. "The most rewarding part of the job," said Jones, "is seeing improvement from visit to visit."

The nurses visit convalescing military men and women, the elderly, new mothers and infants. They have an office in Bldg. 14 and on the third floor of the Naval Hospital.

HOUSE CALLS ARE made county-wide in both military and civilian housing. The ladies take referrals from the hospital, Red Cross and other service organizations, commands and individuals.

Monday through Friday mornings Gray and Jones provide instruction to new mothers in preparation for discharge from the Naval Hospital. Current literature on infant care, gift packs and visit cards are given to all new mothers. Home visit cards are filled out with the baby's birth date, weight and size and any additional information for nurse's use during the visit.

Routine visits to mother and child are made two to three weeks after birth. Premature babies or those who require special care are seen sooner.

WELL BABY CLINICS are scheduled the first Tuesday each month at the Tarawa Terrace Community Center and the second Tuesday at the Midway Park Community Center from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Visiting nurses participate in the Child Abuse Prevention Committee as resource and supportive consultants.

IN 1983, THE Camp Lejeune visiting nurses cared for more than 6,000 sick, elderly, infant and post-partum patients.

NRS update

The Navy Relief Fund Drive, which was scheduled to end June 8, has been extended.

The drawing will be held June 22 at 11 a.m. in the Goettge Memorial Field House.

Tickets will remain on sale at the field house up until the time of the drawing. The following percentages represent the number of Marines and Sailors contacted for the drive:

Marine Corps Base	150.8%
2d Marine Division	104%

Maintenance modernized

Major General Donald J. Fulham, former commanding general, Marine Corps Base listens in as John Kelleher, a clerk with Maintenance Department, takes a work order and inputs into the new computer system that is designed to increase the service to commands here. The new system prints out a record of each request and as it goes into the system the appropriate shop immediately gets a copy on a terminal which should provide a quicker response to all requests for maintenance aboard the base. Civilians tour base, learn about Corps

Story and photos by Cpl. Paul Younghaus

Civilians adorned in red, white, blue and green baseball caps watched as Camp Lejeune Marines had a one-hour war and a tank killer demonstration. It was all part of the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference held June 7 aboard the base.

THE CIVILIANS HAD already been briefed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Pentagon, and had visited Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., and Fort Bragg, N.C. The visits were for civilian opinion leaders invited by Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine officials.

"This tour teaches civilians about the Department of Defense today, and gives them a demonstration of our readiness," said Lieutenant Colonel Richard J. Weidner, assistant chief of staff for training, Marine Corps Base. "These civilians don't know the caliber of people and equipment we have today so we educate them."

"I've been impressed with this tour and pleased to see the degree of readiness in our forces," said Bob Blanchard, a businessman from Tampa, Fla. "The pride in the military today surpasses anything I've ever witnessed before. These people are good and they know it."

"THE JCOC TOUR is the finest thing that could ever be done," said Jerry Geckle, a Baltimore businessman. "It brings together people from all walks of life into contact with the military and gives them an opportunity to evaluate whether the money this country has put into defense spending is worth it."

Geckle, a former Marine added, "This conference has been a reaffirmation for me that our defense dollars are being well-spent."

"These people are opinion leaders and they can directly influence their elected officials on the state of our military readiness," said Lieutenant Commander Charles D. Smith, office of the assistant secretary of defense for public affairs. "These people get to know what the military's needs are and what is needed to improve the deficits each service has."

"BY DIRECTLY INFLUENCING these civilians we hope they can carry our needs and desires to elected officials," LtCmdr. Smith continued. "I have seen a very positive response from these individuals thus far. They have seen how a motivated military is invaluable to the defense of this country."

Marines and Sailors around the tri-command showed off their wares and demonstrated their abilities during the one day the JCOC visitors were here. After leaving Camp Lejeune, the JCOC conferees visited the USS Kennedy, June 8.

Counter Mortar Radar Shop

The eyes and ears of the artillery

Private First Class Moises W. Castillo, Target Acquisition Battery, 10th Marine Regiment, plots a gun position on a map. The radar computer had already determined the gun site.

Story and photos by Sgt. Joseph Steele

The mission of the infantry battalion is to close with and destroy the enemy or to repel his assault by fire and close combat. If that enemy happens to be artillery batteries, mortars or rocket launchers, then the weight of destroying those positions falls on Naval gunfire or friendly artillery batteries. To assist those units in finding their targets, the Counter Mortar Radar Shop (CMRS) is called for help. CMRS is part of Target Acquisition Battery, 10th Marines.

"OUR PRIMARY MISSION is to locate enemy artillery, mortars or rocket launchers," said Sergeant Jerry Hellyer, radar team leader. Through the use of radar an enemy gun position can be located fairly accurately. "A high angle trajectory can yield a location to an accuracy within 50 meters. The low angle trajectory within 200 meters."

The radar sends out two RF energy beams that, when broken by projectiles, make echoes on a screen, called a B-scope, at the computer terminal. "When the echoes appear, we mark them with a grease pencil and place the range azimuth strobos on them. The computer then computes here the projectile came from," Sgt. Hellyer said.

After locating the enemy position and plotting on a map, the radar crew contacts the Target Processing Center. They will determine what type of weapon was fired and when and who fires back in the located position.

BESIDES LOCATING ENEMY positions, the radar is also used to zero in on weapons. "The radar is used for registering weapons," Gunnery Sergeant Danny Allen, radar chief said. "We locate the mean point of impact (where the rounds impact at). Several rounds are fired at the target, the radar crew plotting each impact. "We strive for first round hits on targets," he added. The process is just the reverse of locating gun positions. Instead of tracking the round during the ascending branch, it is traced on the descending branch of the trajectory. The computer locates the impact.

Other missions include hasty survey and locating haven or no fire zones for friendly units. Hasty surveys are used for mass firing. The radar crew surveys their position into the computer, leveling the radar and, dialing in the computers' height from the ground.

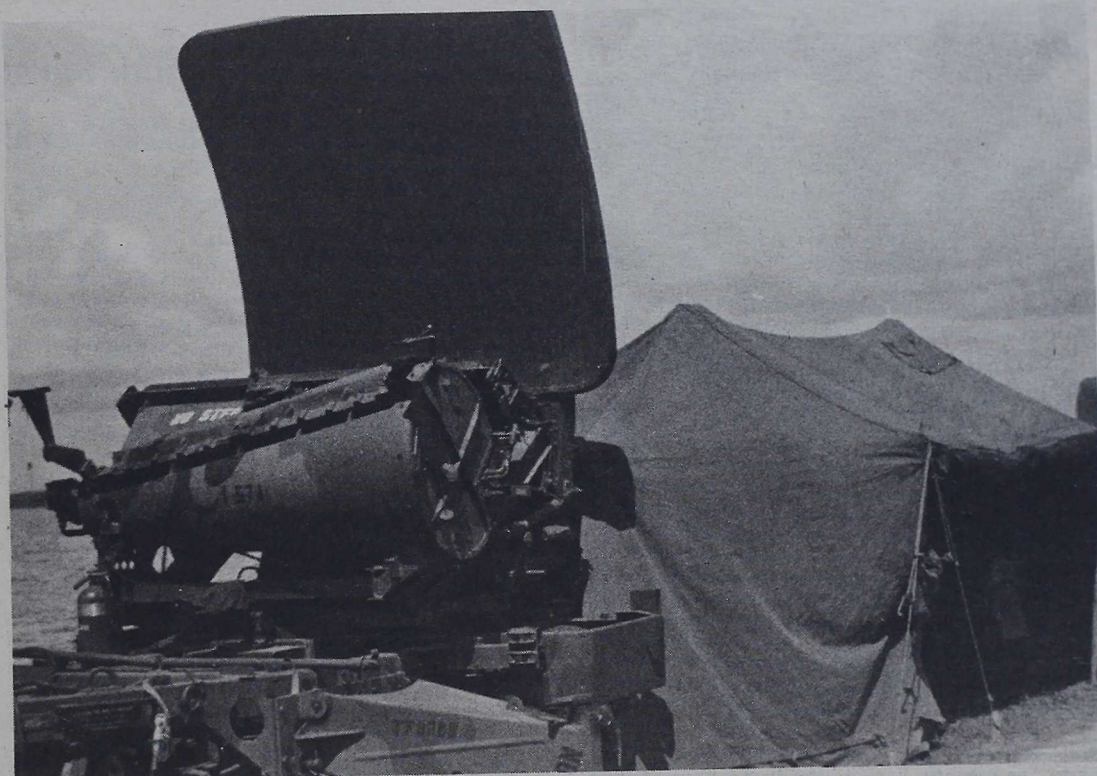

The radar ranges as far as 15,000 meters and has a 360° capabilities at 22° at one time.

Nine men are on a radar team. Only one man can view the screen at a time and operate the computer. As a round is intercepted by the radar, the operator has to almost simultaneously mark the echo on the screen and hit the timer to stop it. As the second echo is seen, he has to mark it and hit the timer again to stop it. It takes approximately .8 of a second for a round to pass through the beams at a high angle. The low angle beam is broken at .6 of a second. This function is called Delta Time.

"IT HAS BEEN determined during testing at Ft. Sill, that .8 and .6 is the average time, (delta time) for a round to pass through the beams," Chief Warrant Officer 3 Louis Lozada, CMR officer said. "The computer uses this delta time to calculate where the gun position is located with greater accuracy."

Locating enemy gun positions is the primary mission of the counter mortar radar team. The rest is up to the artillery.

To make the counter mortar radar team radar and mapping room operational takes approximately 7½ minutes, however, setting up the mapping tent takes a little longer.

Staff Sergeant Janet Ebert studies computer printouts. She recently became the first woman honor graduate from the Camp Johnson Staff Noncommissioned Officers Academy.

Making the grade

The first female honor graduate sets school record with a 98.14 overall average

When she joined the Marine Corps seven years ago, Staff Sergeant Janet Ebert did so for a "change of pace." As the first female honor graduate of Camp Johnson's Staff Noncommissioned Officers Academy, she is setting the pace for others to follow.

THE PITTSBURGH NATIVE had a 98.14 overall average for the six-week course, the highest ever for the school.

"It came as a surprise," she admitted as she shrugged her shoulders and grinned a perfect smile. "I don't worry about scores. I do my best...that's the key to success. When you spend all your time worrying how you stack up to others, you lose track of your own goals."

Admittedly, the Staff NCO Academy and its hectic pace should come as no surprise to someone who spent two years as a drill instructor. SSgt. Ebert reported to Camp Lejeune's Consolidated Fiscal Accounting Office (CFAO) from Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C., more than two years ago.

DESCRIBED AS A "hard-charger, a go-getter," the 27-year-old Force Service Support Group Marine attributes her success to the fact that she always gives things her best shot.

"I'm very particular about everything," dark-haired Marine said, "from my PT, to work I do or my personal appearance. It's all tremendously important."

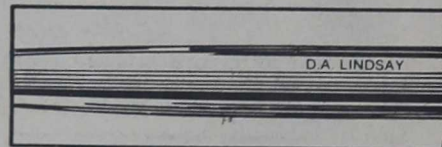

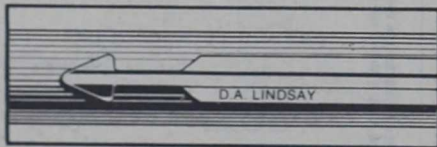

Standing a mere 5 feet 5 inches tall and very lean, SSgt. Ebert said the aspect she enjoyed most of the 5-84 Staff NCO Course was the competition. "It was a totally different environment," she explained. "In garrison, there's no competition; we're working toward the same goal."

RECENTLY SSGT EBERT had the opportunity to address a group of junior Marines. Her deep-set brown eyes assured them of her sincerity. "If you're wrong, admit it; don't be afraid to ask questions. Always keep an open mind because it helps you to grow. Work to improve your skill appearance and yourself. There's always room for change."

"Most of all," she added "don't ask for recognition, just do the best you can all the time. Give it your best shot."

Top notch

ory by Cpl. Pamela Vajner

Camp Lejeune's 2d Force Service Support Group has put the slogan "A Force in Readiness" to a test and passed with honors. Seven of the eight most recent Staff Noncommissioned Officers Academy honor graduates have been 2d FSSG Marines.

"THERE ARE MORE than 900 staff NCOs in 2d FSSG," said 2d FSSG Sergeant Major Walter Welch. "These Marines are just the tip of the iceberg."

Honor graduates are determined by an overall average from academic, drill and physical fitness abilities.

The first to start the trend of excellence was Staff Sergeant Jeffrey A. Peters from Headquarters and Service Company, 2d Radio Battalion. The 28-year old Omaha, Neb., native was honor graduate for the Class 4-83.

STAFF SERGEANT MITCHELLE W. Schaefer was the 5-83 class honor graduate. The 29-year old Mission, Texas native is stationed with 2d Radio Battalion.

Following in the tradition, Staff Sergeant Michael F. Mullarkey was first in the 6-83 class. The 28-year old Leatherneck works for 2d Radio Battalion and hails from Matteson, Ill.

Although one class graduated without having a 2d FSSG honor graduate, the 2-84 class presented Staff Sergeant John L. Gulick with the traditional honor graduate's plaque for excellence. The 28-year old Groveton, N.H. native is with Headquarters and Service Company, 2d Radio Battalion.

The first in the 4-84 class was Staff Sergeant Mark A. Brinker. The Electronics Maintenance Company, 2d Maintenance Battalion Marine, 26, is from Evansville, Ind.

The most recent honor graduate was also the first female to place first in the academy. Staff Sergeant Janet Ebert of Headquarters and Service Company, Headquarters and Service Battalion is a 27-year-old Pittsburgh native.

ALL SEVEN LEATHERNECKS agreed that the academy's instructors were the very finest and required the excellence they achieved. "Although we may have been number one," one staff sergeant interjected, "it's a rewarding learning experience for everyone who attends the class."

A beaming SgtMaj. Welch said, "Truly the Marine Corps' future is that much brighter with leaders like these."

Home on the range: Marines maintain training areas

Story and photos by GySgt. Bill Reese

Marines of the Range Maintenance Section lift a roof for a mobile storage shed into place. To accomplish the mission of keeping ranges up to par, workers in this section have to be masters of all trades.

As the 105mm guns on the tanks blaze away at targets down range, seldom do the gunners or tank commanders take the time to consider what has taken place before their chance to fire.

FOR MARINES OF range maintenance in the training facilities department, many hours have gone into the preparation of the ranges.

"It takes many hours of work to ensure that all the ranges are ready," said Gunnery Sergeant Kenneth R. Cox, range maintenance. "Not only do we have to maintain the regular ranges, but there are special problems on the ranges that have moving or pop-up targets.

"For the normal ranges there is grass cutting, removing obstacles, building targets, digging and moving dirt for berms as well as transporting vehicle shells into the impact areas -- and the list goes on," he added.

IN ORDER TO complete their mission these men must be jacks of all trades.

"There is welding, carpentry and electrical units that are all a part of the ranges and it is our job to make sure things are in good order before the first units go on the firing lines.

"With the improvements to a couple of the ranges here at mainside, G-6 and at OP-5 in particular, the 2d Tank Battalion and infantry regiments have a real fire and maneuver range that they don't have to be transported to," GySgt. Cox added.

THE IMPROVEMENTS AT G-6 include a moving target mounted on a monorail system as well as pop-up targets.

"For the members of tank battalion, the overall improvements mean they can fire at a moving target while they are also mobile. This gives them a capability they used to have to go to Fort Pickett, Va., or Twentynine Palms, Calif.," GySgt. Cox said.

A major change that will occur because of this added range will involve the closing of Highway 172 from the Triangle Outpost Gate to the intersection of 172 and Sneads Ferry Road near Onslow Beach while live firing is being conducted.

AT OP-5, THE improvements include clearing the area of all trees and bushes which gives the infantry unit room to maneuver.

"Before the project to improve the OP-5 area was undertaken, if an infantry unit wanted to live fire and maneuver their elements at the same time they had to go out to the 'K' ranges in the Verona Loop area. The transport time could take away from training time for the units," GySgt. Cox concluded.

"In the past year, with a great deal of support from the commanding general, we have really been able to make great strides in improving and developing the ranges here," according to Lieutenant Colonel Kenneth Zitz, range control officer.

OVER THE YEARS there has been a great deal of time and money spent on areas of the base other than the ranges. As the troop billeting and other improvements were contracted out, the ranges and training areas came under scrutiny.

Now there are projects on the board that will increase the quality of training available for tenant commands.

"The more work we put into the training areas the more it improves the quality of training the Marines receive and the pay off will be their performance wherever they deploy in the world," LtCol. Zitz continued. "There is no end to the job of range maintenance. The Marines assigned, most of whom are working here, are sent to us under the Fleet Assistance Program, and are always busy either in the shops building targets or on the ranges.

"THEY ARE HERE for six months and we get six months of work out of them. They certainly don't come over here and get over on anyone. There is a never ending variety of work to be done and we do it," LtCol. Zitz said.

Keeping travelers along the Intercoastal Waterway safe is as important to Range Maintenance Marines as is having an adequate training area.

NCO club system unique to the Corps

Taking that special person in your life out to a nice evening meal can often be a very expensive occasion. Finding that special restaurant with the right atmosphere may be a hit and miss situation. And what if he or she also wants an evening of entertainment afterward? Do you consider driving north or south to another city for fine food or

The Hadnot Point NCO Club's ballroom is never empty during normal working hours.

WHEN GOING HOME DOESN'T MEAN GOING BACK TO THE BARRACKS.

When you're on leave, you have more reasons than ever to leave on Piedmont Airlines. We fly to 105 hometowns now, including nonstops where other airlines often don't stop at all. And if you have to change planes, we'll save you time in smaller, less crowded airports.

Finally, our military discounts are just right for your military budget. So call your SATO agent or Piedmont when you fly home. We'll make leaving the barracks better than ever.

even across town to the old standard restaurant?

HAVE YOU EVER given it a thought that you may find all of your desires right at your own Hadnot Point Noncommissioned Officers Club, near the traffic circle on Camp Lejeune? Your own club may be just the place you're looking for. Once inside, you'll find the atmosphere is very nice, pleasant and where can you find such food, beverage, and entertainment at such a reasonable price? "You can take your wife, husband, or very special companion and have a special evening with a full range of entertainment," explained Lieutenant Colonel Paul Bloom, officer in charge of the club system. "There is a family type environment."

Noncommissioned officer's looking for a place to unwind with close friends after a hard day's work can also find good food, a place to pay a few games of pool or even relax and watch some television.

The Camp Lejeune NCO club system is unique, being the only officially established NCO club system in the entire Marine Corps. "Other bases throughout the Corps have private through sergeant clubs that may or may not have separate NCO lounges," explained LtCol. Bloom. "If there is an NCO lounge and the club has entertainment, the entertainment is usually in the main ballroom so privates through sergeants may enjoy it. We've discussed the matter with both NCO's and junior enlisted Marines and Sailors and they are all strongly in favor of having their own separate clubs."

AS INDIVIDUALS BECOME mature and begin to develop their own desires and ideas, their daily needs often change, said the lieutenant colonel.

The club system works seven days a week to provide a service to meet the desires and requirements of noncommissioned officers.

The main Hadnot Point NCO Club has the same type of dining facilities as that of the senior Staff Noncommissioned and Officer's Clubs. The Enlisted Clubs are mainly fast food operations which adhere more to age group desires. A home-cooked style lunch is served between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the NCO club. While NCO's do support their clubs, LtCol. Bloom would like to see more utilization of such wonderful facilities.

ABOUT 150 MEALS are served during the lunch hour and 100 meals per evening at the main club. While management would like to have more customers (as would any other business) the NCO clubs have been very profitable over the past years. Totally self-sufficient, the NCO clubs have generated enough profit to totally pay for the construction of the NCO club at Camp Geiger.

The NCO branch of clubs are located at Camp Geiger, Courthouse Bay, Camp Johnson and Hadnot Point. Looking to the future, a newly renovated NCO Club is in the final stages of completion at French Creek. This will provide a facility much needed for our NCO's at French Creek since the new enlisted club will serve only privates through lance corporals.

Noncommissioned officers often do not realize the unique opportunity they really have here at Camp Lejeune. They have their very own NCO Clubs and are limited to lounges often mixed with junior fellow Marines.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL BLOOM advised, "you must support the NCO clubs the command has made available for you or like many good things that often fade away they will become a part of history of the Marine Corps."

Soft lights, music and fine dining experiences are provided by all the NCO clubs.

Best possible medical care - anytime, anyplace

A variety of medical instruments were used during the set-up of the Rapidly Deployable Medical Facility.

Story and photos by Sgt. K. M. Zabawczuk

Wandering upon the bustle of activity at Camp Lejeune's Tactical Landing Zone (TLZ) Gander, June 7, an observer might have been reminded of television's long running *M*A*S*H* series as he watched the crates of medical gear being broken open.

NAVY SEABEES WORKED steadily, building tables and other wood structures to complement the encampment while corpsmen, doctors and nurses tended to the tools of their trade.

Under construction was one of the newest additions to the Navy's field medical repertoire...the Rapidly Deployable Medical Facility (RDMF).

"They have one day to set this up," said Navy Commander Elizabeth Hart, a training program coordinator from the Navy's Health Education and Science Command at Bethesda, Md. "What we're doing is training about 25 percent of the staff for one 250-bed field hospital," she added.

CURRENTLY, THE NAVY has four of these facilities which are staffed by doctors, nurses, corpsmen and other medical technicians from four different regions of the United States. The facilities are designated RDMF's 1-4 with medical people coming from the Navy's Southeast, Southwest, Northeast and Northwest Regional Commands.

The staff for the RDMFs come from Naval Hospitals throughout the country. "They already know their trade," said Cmdr. Hart. "Now, they're learning how to set up their hospital."

Navy Captain Dennis Wright commands the unit training here, designated RDMF 1. "We have about 120 RDMF personnel out here," he said.

CAPTAIN WRIGHT EXPLAINED that since the RDMFs gear is all prepositioned on ships, the gear used for training comes from Camp Lejeune's 2d Medical Battalion.

The RDMF is set up and can provide the same care as a Naval Hospital according to Cmdr. Hart and is something of an extension of a medical company.

The four RDMFs can be configured separately or brought together to form a 1,000-bed field hospital near a combat zone, however, the RDMF is not designed to be operated with less than 250 beds.

"THE CONCEPT CAME about as a way to enhance the medical department's capability to support combat operations," said Capt. Wright.

Training included not only setting up the field hospital, but maintaining it and actually handling simulated casualties. In addition, the staff underwent NBC training while in the field.

The intent of the training, according to Capt. Wright, is for the unit to be fully deployable and functional without everyone having gone to the field.

WHAT IS LEARNED here will be taken back to various Naval hospitals which provide staff for the RDMF and shared in local training sessions.

The 60-bed surrogate RDMF used for training featured two complete operating rooms, an x-ray lab, intensive care unit and a complete blood lab and pharmacy. All of this would be available at a 250-bed unit but on a larger scale.

For many of the Sailors assigned to the RDMF, the training marked their first experience away from the clean, sterile facilities of a Naval hospital. For them, training such as this is an invaluable learning experience according to exercise officials. For others, it is simply a new twist to an old practice...providing the best possible medical care, anytime and at anyplace.

"The technical skills I'm learning are helping me with my civilian job."

The Marine Reserve is more than a way to stay in touch with old friends. More than just a chance to earn extra money. It's also an opportunity to learn a new skill. Or get more training and stay up to date in a technical field you're already trained in.

Many Marine Reservists also find that the skills they learn and the training they receive while on active duty come in mighty handy in their civilian jobs.

So, if you're thinking about leaving the Corps or have already left, look into the Marine Reserve. You'll not only be staying on the team, you'll be keeping up to date.

You'll also have the chance to learn something new and keep many of your benefits like retirement, base exchange privileges while on active duty and much more. The Marine Reserve is good for you, your job and your country. Look into it. Call 800-423-2600, toll-free. In California, 800-252-0241.

Father's Day: Not just another holiday but a day of sharing, caring

Story by Sgt. Joseph Steele

Father's Day is here again. It's the time of year when kids give their fathers cards and bottles of aftershave. This day has been set aside for recognizing this country's fathers. But for military fathers that day takes on an added meaning. Will he be there to enjoy it?

AT ONE TIME or another, military father's are told to pack up and be somewhere. Whether it is a six-month deployment, an unaccompanied tour, or just a short three-week exercise in some country no one has heard of.

Then there are the working hours. Some evenings the workload calls for staying late into the night. Other times it calls for starting the day before dawn. Whatever the schedule, the military father spends only a few hours with his children. Too often, that time is spent doing other things, like reading the paper, watching TV or just taking it easy.

Though Father's Day is in June, I experienced that special day while on leave in Florida. I, like many others, fell into the routine of coming home and reading the paper after dinner. By the time I finished, it was time for my year-old son to go to bed. The routine didn't change very often.

BUT, WHILE SPENDING the day at Disneyworld, all that changed. Since many of the rides didn't allow strollers, I was forced to carry my son. The eight hours we spent at the park, I got to know him well; and he I.

I noticed things about him I hadn't picked up before. Things that my wife told me about that I just took for granted. Things like using his hands to aid in "talking". Or the different sounds he had put together to form a language all his own.

By spending time with him, I learned to understand his "speech" and pick up on what he was trying to say with the help of his hands.

EVENTUALLY I STARTED pointing at things and telling him what they were. By the end of the day I had taught my son to say "bird". Although now everything he sees is a "bird", the encouragement I gave him in learning to say the word has prompted him to experiment with other sounds and to add to his vocabulary.

My son and I developed a closeness that day. We are closer now than we've ever been. It all came about because I was forced to carry him around and really try to understand him.

Yes, Father's Day is here again. But instead of just letting your children give you cards and aftershave, plan to spend time with them that day. Get to know them and understand them. Father's Day will not be just another holiday, but a loving and growing experience.

tle Beach Shopping Mall and the Myrtle Beach Air Force Base.

Cammie-clad Marines weren't out of place in Myrtle Beach

by and photos by LCpl. Charles Ross

In the words of the Marine Hymn, "We have fought in every clime and place where we could get a gun;" indeed Marines have, and any cammie-clad Devil Dog would probably tell you that they would feel more at home in the field than on a beach resort shopping mall.

DURING THE FIRST weekend in June, 2nd Force Reconnaissance Marines traveled almost 200 miles from Lejeune to Myrtle Beach, S.C. to help kick off the Sun Fun Weekend Festival.

Arriving at the Surf City Beach in South Carolina, a four-man team from the 2d Force Reconnaissance Company found Marines already there, displaying the tools of their trades. Probably the first thing to catch their attention was the sight of about 30 curious civilians surrounding an M60 tank supplied by the 8th Tank Battalion (Reserve) in Columbia, S.C. The tankers were all active duty Marines from the Inspector-Instructor Staff in Columbia. They encouraged their guests to venture inside their mammoth vehicle and answered a lot of questions.

Also on display was an Amphibious Tracked Vehicle (Amtrac) by the 2d Assault Amphibian Battalion. The "trackers" also encouraged visitors and answered questions about the craft. According to the "trackers," one of the more common responses from the veterans who came aboard was, "amphibious vehicles sure have come a long way since the old ones we landed in."

TRUCK DRIVERS FROM the 2d Maintenance Battalion were tasked with transporting the amtrac to and from displays during the weekend.

The tank, with the aid of rubber cleats inserted in the track to prevent road damage, was able to cruise down the roadways under its own power.

Imagine the surprise of the motorist, who while waiting for the light to change at an intersection, heard the roar of a loud engine, looked in his rear-view mirror expecting to see a truck and saw the tank bearing down on him.

COMMON LEATHERNECKS WERE not the only ones on hand for the weekend's events. The 2d Marine Division Band performed two parades. Spectators filled the streets and hung out of windows as the band strutted down the street.

The Marine Corps Silent Drill Team also mesmerized onlookers during exhibitions at the Myrtle Beach Shopping Mall and at the Myrtle Beach Air Force Base. The drill team from the base also performed and afterward, as they watched their Marine peers, they tried not to show their awe until finally more and more of the airmen permitted themselves open displays of respect.

While visiting Myrtle Beach, the Marines enjoyed the accommodations of a Myrtle Beach hotel. With its indoor pool, sauna and private beach, the Devil Dogs had more than enough performing and taking in the sights to occupy their free time after spending a day in the spotlight.

Major David Roberge, 2d Force Reconnaissance Company, talks with a small group of interested civilians about the mission of a reconnaissance team.

Sergeant Richard W. Ashton explains the need for communication gear to visitors at the Sun Fun Weekend Festival.

Swoop!

Packed and ready to go. Friday afternoon's Swoop Circle, located across from the NCO Club on the Main Service Road, is filled with Marines and Sailors looking for a ride.

Story and photos by Sgt. Fred Dodd

Half the cost of a bus ride and precious time wasted in terminals can sometimes be saved by stop at Swoop Circle. Friday afternoons, c Thursdays on long weekends, Swoop Circle fill with cars, vans and Marines who walk from vehicle to vehicle, looking for someone going the way.

FOR MANY IT'S a regular stop before embarking on a weekend jaunt. Lance Corporal Marvin Valasquez arrived early, at about 10 a.m. looking for someone needing a ride to Washington D.C. At 2:30 p.m. he still sat alone in his car waiting for someone to help defray gasoline costs. "It's kind of hard right now to get riders, there's lots of floats away. Last year was a lot easier. I sit here a half an hour and get three riders, but not now," he said.

Private First Class Tommy R. Neigel sat near his clothing bag at the rear edge of the parking lot. The back of his T-shirt read "Connecticut Marine."

"All the planes are booked," he said. "I tried for the last four days to get a flight out of Jacksonville, Wilmington and even Charlotte but everything is booked. Not many people go as far as Connecticut very often, but I can catch a ride to New York easily then get a bus the rest of the way."

ONE OF THE van drivers walked over to PFC Neigel. "We're going to take off as soon as we get two more riders if you still want to go," the driver said before walking away.

Competition between vans going to New York seems to be tough. Riders want the most comfortable ride available. At least one van had several rows of bus seats bolted into it so it could fit a dozen passengers easily. Some have television sets, others have video recorders, for "in flight

Corporal Joe Bailey sat near a car reading a newspaper. "I already have a ride. The driver is waiting for two more people." He pointed to the 1-sized car which already had three adults and a cool-aged child waiting for its departure. "I go to Baltimore every weekend and have never had problems getting rides or getting to where I want to go," Cpl. Bailey said.

JUST THEN A military police vehicle pulled into the parking lot. Sergeant Jose Martinez got out and walked around the lot. "I'm checking to see if these cars belong here. There have been a few liars who try making a fast buck by filling up a car with snoopers and not taking them all the way where they're supposed to go. They'll just leave them on the side of the road somewhere."

Sergeant Martinez had a few tips for snoopers.

"Ride with someone you know. A lot of these drivers go every weekend. Some of the vans have citizen band radios and carry lots of spare parts. I'm a swooper myself and I watch for that."

A driver standing nearby cut in. "We have enough spare parts between us (the vans headed to New York) to rebuild an engine," he boasted.

"Make sure you have your 96 hour chits, or out-of-bounds passes. Sometimes sergeants major and battalion commanding officers stop by and check at random. They'll ask where you're going and if it's beyond 300 miles they'll ask to see your chit."

The license branch has a warning for drivers carrying more than 12 passengers. "In North Carolina a chauffeurs licence is required for 12 or more passengers. Once you get out of state the law varies, so be careful," the representative said.

A salesman for a national insurance agency was asked whether or not a driver who is being paid for his services would be covered in case of an accident. "It depends on the insurance company and the type policy they have," he explained.

ONE MARINE WHO used to pick up riders at swoop circle remembered an incident he was involved in. While driving with two swooping passengers they were involved in an accident which totaled the vehicle and slightly injured the passengers.

"The insurance company kept asking me if I had been paid to drive them," the Leatherneck said. "Luckily, they had been filling the car with gasoline when we stopped so no money had changed hands. Otherwise I would have been required to have a chauffeur's license to be covered by my insurance."

Tour Days

Story by Cpl. Pamela Vajner

Although visitors don't always agree upon the correct pronunciation of the historic town of Beaufort, N.C., most agree on its quaint, unspoiled beauty.

THE TOWN WAS incorporated in 1722 and has been the seat of Carteret County since then. Named for Henry Somerset, the Duke of Beaufort, it is the state's third oldest town.

The Beaufort Historical Association has set June 29 and 30 as their annual Old Homes Tour. In addition to the tours of restored old homes and buildings, historical arts, crafts and a drama will be presented. Tours aboard double decker buses will be provided and guided tours of the Old Burying Grounds will be given. Cost is $10.

In the center of Beaufort's Historical District is the restoration area. Friends and members of the Historical Association donated their time, talents and skills to completely restore the several homes in this area.

The county's first courthouse, the old jail and an herb cottage were moved from their original locations to the Restoration Grounds. The area is open to the public Monday through Saturday 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

BRICKS, STONES, shells, and slabs of cypress wood mark graves that date back to the early 1700s in the Old Burying Ground. This peaceful place of history was deeded to the town in 1731 and became the first public burial site.

Stately, aged oaks and colorful azaleas add shade and beauty to this serene resting place that was added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1970. Gates are open daily 8 a.m. to sunset.

The final event of the Old Homes Tour Days is the reenactment of the 1747 pirate invasion. The drama will take place on the waterfront at 7 p.m. June 30.

BEAUFORT IS LOCATED just north of Morehead City on U.S. Highway 70.

For further information call the Beaufort Historical Association, 728-5225.

'Going to the chapel and we're going to get married'

Story by Judith Banks
Community News Reporter

She's said yes. After you call your parents and tell your best buddies, what do you do next? Do you call the florist, go shopping for a ring, pick out a china pattern? Well, yes, all those things are important, but if you want it to be the wedding of her dreams, don't neglect one often overlooked detail - the place.

A LOVELY SPOT for a wedding is the Base Chapel, but Command Chaplain R.M. Radasky advises that the chapel is not just a "place," but is the site of a ceremony in which a couple pledge themselves to a certain way of life. Everyone will not want to be married there. The prospective couple and the unit chaplain can decide together the appropriateness of the request.

When planning a wedding, Gwen Steger, secretary for the command chaplain, suggests that the unit chaplain be contacted immediately. The kind of wedding planned - Protestant, Jewish, Catholic, Orthodox, etc., will determine which chaplain a couple will see. After the initial interview, if a wedding in the chapel is decided upon, the chaplain will make the reservations. The date and time of the wedding should be established well in advance of the desired date. Two months is desirable. Steger emphasized that Sunday weddings are discouraged, and no more than three weddings are performed on Saturday, so that the florists can work their magic, and the cleanup can be accomplished with the smallest possible delay.

As a courtesy, the commanding officer should be informed of the upcoming nuptials. He or the unit chaplain will recommend that the prospective bride and groom attend the two day Marriage Preparation Workshop sponsored by the Family Services Center and coordinated by Chaplain R.A. Olander. Couples to be married in the chapel are required to take the workshop. It is designed to offer information and a better understanding of the legal, financial, moral and other responsibilities of marriage for Marines, Sailors and prospective spouses as well as those recently married. Couples married less than two years are also eligible for the workshop. It also fulfills religious requirements for premarital counseling. When possible, both parties to a marriage are encouraged to attend.

THE WEDDING LICENSE must be applied for at the Registrar of Deeds in Onslow County. If both parties are at least 18 years old, parental consent is not required, but proof of age must be presented to the Registrar of Deeds. If under 19 years old, a birth certificate, which will be kept by the Registrar of Deeds, is required. Tuberculosis and physical examinations are necessary for both parties. The medical report must be made on a North Carolina form and is valid for 30 days only. Military personnel can get an exam at military medical facilities. There is no waiting period to obtain the license after the TB test and physical examination have been made. The license, which is valid only in Onslow County and which costs $15, is good for sixty days.

Prior to the wedding, the prospective spouse and family may stay at the Hostess House as the guest of the active duty bride or groom.

Military weddings make very pretty pictures, but according to Steger, they are extremely rare. "It is perfectly acceptable to wear a dress uniform as either a member of the wedding or as a guest, but that does not make it a military wedding. For this, special rules and regulations must be followed, and apparently they are too formal for most people," she explained.

WITH A LITTLE pre-planning, and help from those in the know, your wedding can be as memorable as you've always known it would be.

Bookmobiles are for 'novel' lovers

Story by Judith Banks
Community News Reporter

There is rejoicing this week among the residents of Tarawa Terrace, Berkeley Manor, Midway Park, Camp Geiger and other areas served by the Base Library Bookmobile. No longer will they have to wear raincoats while choosing books; no longer will they wait fruitlessly and impatiently for a visit from the library on wheels. The old red and white bookmobile with the Yankee Doodle horn has been retired at last. Waiting in the wings is a brand new, super luxurious model.

BOOKMOBILE SERVICE HAS been in existence in base housing areas for at least six years, according to Carolyn Mason, administrative librarian for the base library system. "We've found that most of the time the husband takes the only car to work and leaves the wife home with small children and no way to get to the library. So we bring the library to her," said Mason. The bookmobile also visits the troops at Courthouse

Bay and the Rifle Range and other work areas. "We try to hit the troop areas as close to meal time as possible so that they will have free time in which to choose a book," she added.

The present bookmobile was already 10 years old when it was purchased for the base library system at a cost of about $7,000, said Mason. They were delighted to get it then, but now feel it has definitely outlived its usefulness. "It has been on the road for 17 or 18 years, and it has put in its time," she said.

The old bookmobile spends a great deal of time at the motor pool - old parts are hard to find. The generator is unreliable, and the bookmobile is often without lights, heat or air conditioning. On rainy days Library Technician June Stanley had to wear a raincoat inside the vehicle, and patrons were likely to leave soggy than when they came in.

BUT AH - THE new bookmobile.

"It cost $54,390 and was worth every penny," said Mason. The new vehicle is four feet longer than the old one, which means eight extra feet of shelves will be added, and will hold approximately 1,000 more books, for a total of about 3,500. "It is prettier, lighter and brighter inside. It has a tape player and a radio, with two roof mounted air conditioners. It is smooth operating and smooth riding," said Mason, displaying her delight.

But the real excitement is reserved for the fact that a lot less "down time" is anticipated due to repairs being made. Mason said the motor pool was consulted before the purchase was made, and they recommended an automatic transmission as being longer lasting - the old clutch had to be replaced three times.

One particularly nice feature of the new bookmobile, according to Public Services Librarian Mary Cullop, who is in charge of bookmobile service, is the watertight display space on the outside of the vehicle. She says she is looking forward to putting up announcements of special upcoming library events.

THE NEW BOOKMOBILE should be in operation this week. Mason said there will be very little interruption in regular bookmobile service. Last year, 15,769 books were circulated on the bookmobile, and there was an increase of more than 35 percent during summer vacation, so she is pleased the bookmobile will be in service during this time. "As many as 400 patrons use the bookmobile during a 3 1/2-hour visit during the summer," said Mason. "That's a lot of people who would be disappointed if the bookmobile was stuck by the side of the road somewhere."

The Yankee Doodle horn will be retained, but many regular customers are in for a delightful surprise when they come running at the sound of its familiar tune.

Group soccer players down Quantico squad, win East Coast title

Story and photos by Sgt. Scot Jenkins

Second Force Service Support Group captured this year's East Coast Regional Soccer crown, June 6, by downing a once-beaten Marine Corps Development and Education Command, Quantico, Va., team, 4-1, in the tournament's finale.

A TOTAL OF six teams representing major commands from the Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, and MCDEC, Quantico, Va., participated in the round-robin, double-elimination tournament.

Quantico and 2d FSSG fought tough competition to reach the final contest in a tournament beginning May 31. The 2d FSSG team gave Quantico its then only blemish of the tournament May 31, when it downed the Virginia squad, 4-2, in a tough-fought contest.

The final game started out evenly as offensive moves by both squads were countered by defensive moves by the opposition. The FSSG eleven took command of the first half when Lance Corporal Marcos Chernes scored the first goal of the game by heading the ball past the MCDEC goalie into the net to give his team a 1-0 lead. Throughout the game, FSSG players stonewalled Quantico's offensive punch. They concentrated on stopping Quantico's premier player -- acting coach and Olympian bound player, Corporal Julio A. Arag -- from scoring any goals. Every time he had the opportunity to put the ball in the net, a quick-moving FSSG defense would foil his attempts.

ALL-MARINE CONTENDER PI Shelley Noel of 2d FSSG, scored the game-winning goal midway through the first half when he moved rapidly from center field to the leftside of the field before slamming the ball past Quantico's goalie and into the goal to FSSG's lead, 2-0.

A few minutes later, Lance Corporal Daryl S. Esterly succeeded in escaping FSSG aggressors and booted the leather ball. His kick, accurately assailed the net but rose too high and flew over the net. Undaunted by this faulty kick, Esterly seconds later tried another boot. Again, a defensive strategy by FSSG players prevented a score.

Corporal M. W. Burrows of Quantico waits for the soccer ball to fall before attempting to literally use his head while a couple of 2d FSSG players wait for further action.

While the Quantico scoring machine was shut down, Private First Class Douglas Sturm rushed into action and maneuvered the ball down the field and scored the third goal of the half.

A FELLOW PRIVATE First Class Willie Lawson echoed his opponents' effort and scored the Group's fourth goal of the first half, upping FSSG's lead, 4-0. In the last minute of the first half, Aragon tried reducing the FSSG lead with a very accurate kick. Interservice goalie, Sergeant Bobby Meyers, prevented the score, thus keeping Quantico scoreless.

The second half opened up slowly and Quantico was unable to take advantage of a sometimes temporarily abandoned FSSG goal. Corporal J. "The Pres" Reagan, foiled Quantico's dreams of scoring drives by nabbing the ball and rushing it from the Group's own left corner up to midfield before booting it to fellow teammates.

Quantico players nearly got their first goal of the game when a player kicked a hard right smack. The ball sailed towards the goal but metal, not people, prevented this ball from scoring. The ball hit the metal frame of the goal and bounced outward.

SERGEANT RONALD B. Frederick, another All-Marine contender, grabbed the ball and began moving downfield displaying his skills of stopping and starting the ball at will.

Aragon again received the ball from a teammate and after moving about the field for a few seconds booted the ball up the center of the goal to score Quantico's first and only point of the game. The score did not upset the Group players as they continued booting the ball and passing it to fellow teammates. A few minutes later, Aragon again tried to grab another score, but a bolstered FSSG defense again stopped him.

In addition to Frederick and Noel's selection to the All-Marine tournament and Meyers' automatic selection for interservice competition, the following Camp Lejeune area Marines were picked to take part in the All-Marine tournament, scheduled to be held at Quantico, June 10 - July 6: Private First Class Karl O. Steinkopff of Marine Corps Base and Lieutenant James Spann Jr. of the 2d Marine Division. Lance Corporal Carlos P. O'Connell from Marine Corps Air Station (H) New River was also selected for the All-Star tournament.

Private First Class Willie Lawson boots the ball and follows it as Group defender Sergeant E. R.

Miles and Quantico's Sergeant H. Riche follow closely behind.

Area runners challenge Lejeune's streets

Dozens of runners hurdle heat, humidity

Story by Sgt. Scot Jenkins

Approximately 80 running enthusiasts attended the 1984 Spring 10-kilometer run and one-mile fun run the morning of June 9. The races, sponsored by the Consolidated Special Services offices located at Camp Lejeune, began under sunny skies and warm temperatures.

WHILE THE BULK of the runners hailed from commands at Camp Lejeune, or were the wives and children of Marines and Sailors stationed here, some runners arrived from places as far away as Kansas City, Mo.

The one-mile fun run kicked off the spartan festivities at 9 a.m., and Allen McDuffrie crossed the finish line 4:44 after the starting gun sounded. Doug Roberts finished 40 seconds later, and at 5:35 Rick Zickerman completed the run.

The first female finisher was Lisa Ann Deitle, who completed the one-mile jaunt in 7:20. Tiffy Hinton took second place while Sarah Greenpier placed third.

AFTER THE SHORT race was concluded, contestants for the main event lined up at the starting point located at the corner of "F" Street and Main Service Road. Rising temperatures and increased humidity presented the runners with an unforeseen obstacle to hurdle--the weather.

S. J. Schmidt, representing the youthful male group 14-19, crossed the finish line first with a time of 34:37. His quick-moving time was followed by John Leach of Kansas City, Mo., who took second place with his 35:15 six mile plus time.

Alex Walmsley finished third with a time of 35:53.

Camp Lejeune's youth baseball season kicked off June 2 with opening ceremonies held at the

Jocks Shorts

THE WORLD'S JUNIOR Middleweight Championship fight between Thomas Hearn and Roberto Duran will be televised live via closed circuit television June 15 at 8:30 p.m. at the Goettge Memorial Field House. There will be no live television or radio broadcasts of this fight. Limited advanced tickets are on sale through special services for $8, and $10 on the day of the event. For more information call the Base Athletics Office at 451-3125.

THE 2D MARINE Division Special Services will be hosting a Boxing Smoker June 20 at 7:30 p.m. at the Division Special Services gym. The Smoker will be a tune up for the All-Marine Trials in July. For more information call SSgt. Edgerton at 451-2061.

Tarawa Terrace I athletic field.

THE LEAGUE FEATURES four age groups for children from five to 15 years old. The league is broken down into T-ball for five to 7-year olds, minor league for eight to 10-year olds, major league for 11 and 12-year olds and Babe Ruth for 13 to 15-year olds.

Each team will play an 18-game schedule expected to end July 28. League commissioners are hoping to arrange All-star games in each of the four age groups.

Teams will play two games each week on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at either Stone Street Elementary School, the New River Air Station or the Tarawa Terrace I athletic field.

EVENING GAMES BEGIN at 5:30 p.m. with Saturday games starting at 9 a.m.

THE 1984 ALL-Marine Boxing Trials will be held at the Goettge Memorial Field House July 23-27. The competition will be single elimination. For more information call Paul Nilson at 451-2061 or 451-3125.

THE 1984 2D Marine Division Intramural Tennis Tournament will be held June 25-29. A pre-tournament meeting will be held in the conference room of the Goettge Memorial Field House June 21 at 1 p.m.

FOOTBALL OFFICIALS NEEDED for 8-man/11-man tackle football in the Camp Lejeune/Jacksonville area. Experience desired, but not required. For further information contact Bill Kuhn, 346-6741. Clinics will begin after July 4.

THE 1984 CAMP Lejeune Body Building Championship will take place June 16 at the Camp Theater. Men's competition will be divided into three weight classes; lightweight (155 and under), middleweight (155-175) and heavyweight (176 and above). There will be one open class for all women. Medals and T-shirts will be awarded to all participants. For more information call LtCol. Brinkman at 451-5920 or 451-1308. The deadline for entries is June 14.

ANYONE INTERESTED IN forming a Rodeo Club, call Cpl. Lombardo at 451-1024.

THE BONNYMAN BOWLING Center will be closed from July 5 through August 19 in order to install new pinsetting machines and to rescreen the lanes. The closing includes the pro shop as well as the snack bar. The bowling center management reminds all patrons who maintain lockers within the center to remove all belongings that they feel they will need before July 4. For more information call 451-5121.

TAKE A DAY OFF FROM WORK THIS WEEK

You'll save more money than you could make.

From Now Through Father's Day Is The Best Time Of The Year To Shop The Barn Door Furniture Company.

There's never a bad time to shop Barn Door Furniture Company, but this weekend is a real "humdinger!"

This weekend we will reduce—and we really mean reduce—livingroom suites, sofas, chairs, bedding, dinettes, recliners, bunk beds, and General Electric home video products.

There will be "whopping" reductions on the new country willow bedroom with complete waterbed, the all new wicker and rattan living room, and the more basic provincial living room.

All Barn Door furniture products will be on sale at drastic reductions. Everything else in the store will be marked down too, and that includes our line of La-Z-Boy recliners and General Electric video products, great presents for dad on Father's Day.

CHECK OUT THESE PRICES TO SEE WHAT WE MEAN...

This weekend only you can get the all new wicker and rattan living room complete with sofa, 2 chairs, 2 end tables and coffee table for only $1359. That's a $700 savings. The willow bedroom with door dresser, mirror, door chest, night stand, queen size waterbed complete with baffled mattress, heater, thermostat and decking pedestal, a regular $2100 suite is on sale for only $1399.

WE'VE GOT STOREWIDE VALUES such as the queen size hide-away bed and love seat, regular $642 on sale for $429. The regular $209 Barn Door livingroom chair is sale priced at $139, a Barn Door 5' dining room table and 4 cushion chairs, regular $832, now only $555, Barn Door end tables, one of a kind, regular $75 on sale for $49.95, Barn Door coffee tables regular $90 on sale for $59.95, the solid wood Barn Door etagere, regular $384 sale priced at $256, and the famous captain's bed with built in drawers, regularly $580 now only $299.

Our General Electric 13 to 19 inch televisions start at the low, low price of $249. Compare, you can't get a better deal. And we've got La-Z-Boy recliners as low as $179.95.

DO YOUR HOME, YOURSELF, AND FRANKLY US A FAVOR by attending the Barn Door Furniture Company's greatest clearance ever. You won't forget it. The sale starts when this ad hits the streets and ends promptly at 6 p.m. Sunday, June 17.

You'll have to look closely to find us. We're back in the corner at 2011 Lejeune Blvd. next to Domino's Pizza, Gary's Shoe Repair, and HFC. Look for the Barn.

Area experts offer bodybuilders useful tips for upcoming contest

The Mr. and Mrs. Camp Lejeune Invitational Bodybuilding Contest is nearly here. Scores of people plan to participate in the athletic event. Many of these contestants are novices.

SEVERAL AREA BODYBUILDING experts offer their advice on how to prepare for bodybuilding competition and offer some insights on things judges look for when they inspect.

"The sport requires a lot of training," said Gunnery Sergeant George Berridge, a long-time bodybuilding contestant. "Probably the most important thing a person must have in this sport is a positive attitude. A person must exude confidence and enthusiasm. This trait will carry into other aspects of the sport."

Another bodybuilding expert, Sergeant Ira Kelly, offers some advice on the importance of muscle definition and symmetry. "A person must show the whole body has been developed," he said. "If a person is all shoulders and arms and no legs and thighs, then that lack of legs and thighs will be judged against him."

"THE JUDGES ARE looking for symmetry and well-proportioned bodies, not ones which have gargantuan shoulders and little biceps, or vice versa," said Berridge, former Mr. San Diego and recipient of more than 40 other bodybuilding trophies.

Many bodybuilders spend months, even years, preparing for a contest such as the one scheduled to be held here June 16. According to Kelly, the actual posing time is short. He said the maximum time a person will be on stage is two minutes.

Kelly talked about different types of poses bodybuilders can do. "Each person will have relaxed mandatory posing and seven mandatory poses such as chest shots, front shots and abdominal shots," he said. "A person must do exactly what the judges ask for."

ALTHOUGH THE BODYBUILDING aspirant is only on the stage for a short period of time, he is under very close scrutiny. According to Berridge, the judges at a competition view the contestants from head to toe from four different views. "They are looking for many things. They look for muscle definition, vascularity (veins in body), a well-proportioned body and symmetry. I've seen many people who weren't as big as some of their opponents but still won. They won because they had shoulders and arms which blended. Many people are too big in one of these two areas."

Throughout the individual posing portion of the contest, each contestant selects a song. "A person should pick a song which expresses himself or herself," said Kelly. "If a person picks a fast song, they should move fast. If they pick a slow song they should move slow."

BODYBUILDING IS NOT only a sport men participate in, it is a sport of constantly-growing popularity among women. Jan Beitz, recipient of several bodybuilding titles, offers her advice to potential women bodybuilders. "Posing takes a lot of practice," she said. "It requires a lot of work and concentration."

1st Lieutenant
Craig Ehrenberg

She noted the increasing popularity of bodybuilding among women. "Women are now going for size just as men do," she said. "Of course, women must approach lifting weights with a sensible attitude. They must work at it gradually."

Bodybuilding is like many sports and hobbies. The more a person participates in it, the better he or she becomes. "This sport takes time," said Berridge. "Many people become frustrated when they don't do better in the sport than they do. Placing first in an event really isn't important. It's nice but it's far more important that a person learn how to improve himself or herself."

THE BODYBUILDING CONTEST will be held June 16 beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Base Theater. The event is open to the public and admission is free. People interested in bodybuilding who haven't signed up yet, can still do so by calling Chief Warrant Officer Freeman at the Base Correctional Facility at 451-5920 or 451-1308.

Also, bodybuilders seeking additional information or tips on the sport prior to the contest can do so by calling Kelly at the Correctional Facility at 451-5920 or 451-1308.
